About Bapuji

Bapuji (full name: Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly called “Dadaji” by the younger generation) was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. However, he spent his childhood in another village named Ambasan, also located in the Mehsana district.

In the early part of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realizing the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realize their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on Earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy (CA), he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law (LLB) degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called “Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay” in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as “Maa,” worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to 18 hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realized through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of superconsciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji’s teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy, and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as “behad souls.” According to Bapuji, these “behad souls” will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

Preface

This book is a gift of supreme knowledge.

Within these pages, Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel shares, directly from his own experience in deep meditation and divine vision, the history of the universe as he has seen it from within. This is not a theory and is not drawn from academic research. It is the direct inner seeing of a soul who has reached deep levels of spiritual realisation — offered with humility as a complement to the timeless wisdom of the sacred scriptures.

The Hindu shastras illumine the truth of a single solar system with extraordinary depth, and modern science explores the cosmos through its instruments of gross matter. Bapuji's discourses open a complementary inner doorway — the direct experiential seeing of the soul in deep meditation. From this vision, the visible universe measured by modern telescopes is, in Bapuji's words, not even a dot in comparison to the totality of creation. The true universe spans countless light years, containing trillions upon trillions of galaxies. And beyond this universe lie parallel universes. And beyond those, the multiverse. And beyond even that, something far greater.

This book begins at the very beginning, with the formless, radiant presence of Param Mahashiv, the creator of this universe and follows the journey of souls from their origin as pure light, through their gradual descent, through the formation of galaxies, solar systems, and the Earth, all the way to the present moment. It explains why souls forgot who they are, where they came from, and how the great cycles of creation and dissolution have unfolded through immeasurable spans of time.

Read this book slowly. Let each idea settle. The knowledge is vast, and the mind that receives it must be still. Bapuji has said: those who can truly hear this knowledge are rare. This is not an obstacle; it is an invitation.

Chapter I

Introduction — The History of the Universe

What is the history of the universe?

Not merely the history of stars and galaxies, but the history of everything: the history of the soul, the history of human beings, the history of the Earth, and of creation itself. This is the question that opens these teachings, and it is the question that Bapuji answers, not from books, not from instruments, not from theory, but from direct seeing through the power of divine vision received in deep meditation.

The universe, as Bapuji explains, must be understood in three ways. First, there is what science can currently observe: the visible universe, which modern telescopes have measured as a region spanning many tens of billions of light-years. Second, there is the Behad (beyond-limits) universe, the full extent of this universe as it truly exists, spanning 1,200 billion light-years or more. And third, there is the realm of multiple universes, countless other universes, each as vast or vaster than our own, that exist beyond all of this.

To understand the history of the universe, we must first understand who created it, why it was created, and how it is sustained. We must understand the different categories of souls, from the lowest to the highest, and the vast arc of time through which creation has unfolded. Only then can we understand how a human being standing on this small Earth today is, in truth, a supremely ancient soul, one who has journeyed from the very heights of existence to arrive here.

♦ Insight: “The visible universe that science can currently observe is not even a dot in comparison to the true totality of creation.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

There are different categories of souls. Moving from the human level upward, there are devatas (divine souls), then farishtas (angelic souls), and then the supremely high Param, Param, Param Atma, the most elevated souls. At the absolute top of this scale is the creator of the universe itself: Param Mahashiv, the Supreme Great Shiv, the Almighty Authority.

The universe has a history. It has a geography. It has a time. And it is all connected, from the very first moment of creation to this present day. Bapuji lays it out, step by step, level by level, so that the soul may begin to remember who it truly is.

Chapter II

The Creator — Param Mahashiv

At the beginning of all things, there was Param Mahashiv, the Supreme Creator, the owner and maker of this universe.

Param Mahashiv was nirakar, or formless. In the formless state, his innermost essence was Param Prakash, supreme light, a radiance of infinite power. Surrounding this light, like the glow that emanates from a great sun, was mahatattva, a vast, luminous field of supreme energy. The light within was Param Prakash; the radiance around it was mahatattva. Together, they formed the being of Param Mahashiv.

The Three Levels of Ownership

To understand the scale of creation, Bapuji describes three levels of cosmic ownership. A Brahmand, or a solar system, has one Shiv as its master. A galaxy has one Mahashiv as its master. And the universe, the entirety of this vast creation, has Param Mahashiv as its master. Above even this lie multiple universes, parallel universes, and dimensions of creation so vast that even their owners are incomprehensibly great.

Param Mahashiv belongs exclusively to this universe. The masters of the multiple universes, the multi-universe level are beings of an entirely different magnitude, whose story Bapuji says he will share on another occasion.

The First Thought

Param Mahashiv, in his formless state, formed a Sankalp, a pure, supreme thought-intention: “I will create infinite, endless creation.”

In the instant that thought arose, souls began to emerge from him. First, two souls came forth. Then more. Then more still. They spread outward in all directions, forming a boundary: a vast circular space. This was the first act of creation: the marking out of space itself, the defining of the universe's boundary.

The boundary that Param Mahashiv drew at the very start, a boundary of Param Prakash, supreme radiant light, remains to this day. Even now, this boundary of supreme light encircles the entire universe, and within it, the param tattva (supreme elements) are still present. What was established at the beginning was never erased.

♦ Insight: “The boundary of supreme light that Param Mahashiv drew at the moment of creation, it exists to this day, surrounding everything.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

From the moment that first thought arose in Param Mahashiv, time began. The history of this universe started at that instant. And with time came geography: space, location, direction. History and geography were born together, inseparable from the beginning.

Chapter III

The Creation of Souls

The first souls to emerge from Param Mahashiv were twelve in number. These twelve souls came forth and formed a space — a vast, roughly circular boundary, like the first outline of a home. Within this space, the universe would be built.

From those twelve, more souls emerged. Two became four. Four became eight. From eight, sixteen. And so, the process continued — souls multiplying, spreading in all directions, filling the space that was being created.

The Sacred Numbers of Creation

The progression of soul-creation followed a precise unfolding. From the initial twelve, souls multiplied to 108. From 108, the number grew to 16,000. And from 16,000, the souls continued to multiply until, in this first stage of creation, nav lakh or nine lakh (900,000) souls had come into being.

These nine lakh souls were the original inhabitants of the Behad ka Paramdham, the supreme abode beyond all limits. They were entirely nirakar, or formless. They were formed of Param Prakash or divine supreme light. For this reason, they are called Param, Param, Param Atma, the most elevated class of soul. They were Mahashiv, reflections of the creator himself.

The Atmosphere of the Supreme Abode

As souls were created, with one soul giving rise to another through Sankalp, a process of interaction generated a vast field of radiant energy. When one soul brought forth another, the power that flowed from the first soul's being radiated outward. This created the atmosphere of the Paramdham.

During the first phase, when 16,000 souls had emerged, this atmosphere was of param mahatattva, the supreme great element, the most refined substance of existence. When the number grew to nine lakh, the atmosphere shifted to param aakash tattva, or the supreme space element. Thus, the very environment of the original realm was built from the radiant overflow of soul-creation.

♦ Insight: “These souls were formed of Param Prakash, divine supreme light. They were Mahashiv, a reflection of the creator himself.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The nine lakh Mahashiv souls were described as shodash kala sampurna, perfectly complete in all sixteen kala (cosmic qualities, or degrees of fullness). They were entirely without any trace of impurity, sampurna nirvikaari, doubly non-violent, completely peaceful. This was the highest possible state of soul-existence.

Chapter IV

From the Formless to Form

The nine lakh Mahashiv souls had been born into a state of perfect nirakar or pure formlessness. But this was not to remain their permanent condition. Gradually, imperceptibly, these souls began a journey — from formlessness into form.

The Seed and the Sprout

Bapuji describes this transition with the image of a seed and a sprout. The formless soul was the seed. Within the seed lay everything needed for full flowering, but the form was not yet visible. Just as a seed contains the tree within itself, so the nirakar soul contained the aakar or form within itself. As time passed, the sprout began to emerge.

The process of transformation from formless to form corresponded to the descent through the kala scale. Kala can be understood as a measure of a soul's fullness, purity, and radiant power; the higher the kala, the greater the completeness. At sixteen kala, the soul was at its fullest and most radiant, pure light, pure power, pure formlessness. As the kala descended from sixteen to fifteen, from fifteen to fourteen, and so on, the soul gradually took on form.

How Form Was Built

As the souls descended from sixteen kala to fifteen, the surrounding param aakash tattva, the supreme space element, began to move inward. First, the soul was surrounded only by mahatattva. Then param aakash tattva entered and began to shape itself around the soul's light. A form began to emerge, gentle, still only partial at first, but real. The formless soul was acquiring a body made of the supreme space element.

This form grew more defined as the kala descended. By fourteen kala, a distinct shape had formed, one that resembled, in its basic outline, the form of a human being. Not the dense physical body of today, but a body made of param tattva, the supreme elements. Radiant. Vast. Incomparably refined.

Mool Vatan — The Original Home

The zone of creation from sixteen kala down to fourteen kala is called Mool Vatan, the original home. This is where the soul first took shape. This was the primary region of the Paramdham, where souls transitioned from pure light into their first forms.

During this period, the number of souls had also grown significantly. From nine lakh, the souls had multiplied to two crore (twenty million) Mahashiv souls. This growth itself was a sign of the vitality of creation at this stage: life expanding, forms multiplying, the universe filling with radiant, conscious beings.

♦ Insight: “Just as a seed contains the full tree within itself, so the formless soul contained its form within itself. The journey was not a creation of something new, it was the gradual revelation of what was already there.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Chapter V

The Journey from Sixteen Kala to Zero Kala

The descent of souls through the kala scale was not a single leap. It was a long, gradual journey, from the perfection of sixteen kala, through the intermediate stages, down through nine kala, through eight, seven, five, two, one, and finally to zero kala, the state in which the universe now finds itself.

The Three Supreme Elements

From sixteen kala down to fourteen kala, the world was built entirely of param aakash tattva, the supreme space element. This was the realm of Mool Vatan.

As the descent continued from fourteen kala toward nine kala, two further supreme elements appeared. Param vayu, the supreme air element, began to form. Then param agni or the supreme fire element emerged alongside it. Together, param aakash, param vayu, and param agni constituted the entire world of the param tattva or the supreme elements. This was still an entirely transcendental realm, far beyond anything that science can observe or measure.

Nine Kala — The Devtas Emerge

By the time souls had descended to nine kala, their number had grown to 33 crore (330 million). These beings are referred to as the Behad ke Devta, the beyond-limits divine beings, or Aadi Anaadi Mahadev Mahadevi, the primordial, eternal great deities. This is the origin of the phrase in the Hindu scriptures: Aadi Anaadi Devta Dharma, the eternal, primordial religion of the divine beings.

At nine kala, the process of Purusha and Prakriti, the male and female principles, also emerged. Each Mahashiv drew forth from within itself a Mahashakti, a supreme feminine counterpart. Just as Shiv brings forth Shakti from within, and Vishnu brings forth Lakshmi, so it was here, at nine kala, on the grandest scale. The 33 crore Mahashivs and their 33 crore Mahashaktis, together forming 66 crore souls, formed the first great population of divine beings.

The Gradual Mixing of Elements

From eight kala onward, a new process began. The tattvas, as gross elements started to appear alongside the param tattva. At first, the proportion was 90% supreme elements and only 10% gross elements. Then it became 80/20. Then 70/30. Gradually, as the kala descended through seven, five, two, one, the gross elements increased and the supreme elements diminished.

When the kala finally reached zero, the entire universe; everything that had been built from sixteen kala all the way down, had become composed entirely of gross elements. The param tattva world was no longer dominant. This is the universe as it exists today: a zero kala universe, built entirely of gross matter, the very universe that science observes, measures, and studies.

♦ Insight: “The visible universe that science measures, all of it, is a zero kala universe. It represents the furthest point of descent from the original sixteen kala perfection.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Our Present Universe

Our universe was created in sixteen kala power. At the time of creation, it spanned many lakh-billion light years. Today it is in zero kala — with a diameter of 2,400 billion light years.

Chapter VI

The Formation of Galaxies

As the souls descended from nine kala toward the lower levels, the 33 crore Mahashiv and Mahashakti began to create. What they created were not small things. They created galaxies.

The Great Competition of Creation

In the beginning, the galaxies they formed were colossal, stretching many hundreds of thousands of light-years across, built entirely from param tattva. The galaxy that today measures 100,000 light-years across, our own Milky Way, is itself a fragment of what was once far larger. The original galaxies were so vast that today's galaxies are but pieces of them, broken apart through the long ages of time.

A spirit of creation and competition arose among the Mahashiv. Some created one galaxy. Some created two. Some created ten, or a hundred, or a thousand. Some created as many as 20,000. Each galaxy was distinct, built with unique colour combinations, unique internal structures, and unique radiant atmospheres. The variety was as vast as the number of creators.

These original galaxies are called Param Maha Brahmand, supreme great universes. They were formed from the highest param tattva and inhabited by beings of extraordinary spiritual power.

The Fragmentation of Galaxies

As time progressed and souls continued to multiply, the original vast galaxies began to fragment. One Mahashiv would give rise to three Mahashivs, and the galaxy would divide into three. Each of those three would then create three more, and nine galaxies existed where one had been.

Then twenty-seven. Then eighty-one. And so, the multiplication continued across immeasurable spans of time, until the trillions upon trillions of galaxies that fill this universe today had all come into being.

What science today calls the visible universe, 200 billion galaxies within 93 billion light-years, is only a tiny fraction of the full zero kala universe. And that zero kala universe is itself only one part of the full Behad universe, which spans 1,200 billion light-years in diameter. All of this, in turn, is contained within the vast boundary drawn by Param Mahashiv at the very beginning.

♦ Insight: “The more than 200 billion galaxies that science has observed, are all within a single dot compared to the totality of this universe.”

Our Own Galaxy: The Milky Way

Our galaxy, known as the Milky Way, or Aakashganga, spans approximately 100,000 light-years in diameter. It is a spiral galaxy with multiple arms, containing, by modern estimates, between 100 and 400 billion stars. From Bapuji’s vision, the true count of luminous bodies within this galactic system, including subtle realms beyond the reach of any telescope, is vastly greater than any number that science can presently measure.

At the centre of this galaxy lives Mahashiv, the master of the Milky Way. Around Mahashiv, at the galactic centre, there is a region of approximately 3,000 light-years, within which 2,000 light-years are still composed of param tattva: supreme space element, supreme air element, and supreme fire element. Here, the most elevated souls reside: Mahashiv, Maha Vishnu, Maha Brahma, Maha Indra, and countless other high-quality souls, surrounded by the original radiance of creation.

What science describes as the supermassive black hole at the centre of our galaxy, that immense point of gravity and energy, is in Bapuji's understanding, something altogether different. It is the concentrated energy field of Mahashiv himself: a vortex of supreme radiant power. From the spiritual vision Bapuji describes, what appears externally as immense darkness is, on the inner plane, an intensely concentrated field of radiant divine energy.

Our entire galaxy moves at 2.5 million kilometres per hour through the universe, orbiting the centre of Param Mahashiv, just as the planets orbit the sun within a solar system. Every galaxy in the universe follows this same motion, drawn by the immense gravitational force of Param Mahashiv at the universal centre.

Chapter VII

Mahashiv, Mahashakti, and the Devtas

Within every galaxy, Mahashiv resides at the centre. Around Mahashiv, Mahashakti, the supreme feminine principle is always present. Together, Mahashiv and Mahashakti form the creative source of all that their galaxy contains.

The Three Great Levels Within a Solar System

Bapuji describes the inner structure of a single solar system, a Brahmand, in precise spiritual terms. Within every solar system, there are three primary levels of creation:

At the highest level is Shivpuri, the abode of Shiv, the realm of pure formlessness and supreme light. This is also called Paramdham.

Below Shivpuri is Vishnupuri, the realm of Vishnu, known in devotional traditions as Vaikunth. Vishnu, the combined form of Laxmi-Narayan, resides here.

Below Vishnupuri is Brahmapuri, the realm of Brahma, from whose navel Vishnu gave rise to Brahma. It is Brahma who, through sankalp, creates the vast multitudes of farishtas and devatas that inhabit the solar system.

The Creation of Angels: Farishtas

Brahma, together with Saraswati, created the farishtas, the angels. Through a single sankalp, Brahma could bring crores of farishtas into existence simultaneously. These beings were formed of param tattva: their bodies were of param aakash, param vayu, and param agni, while their souls were of Param Prakash, supreme light. In this state, a single soul carried the radiance of thousands of suns.

These farishtas are the celestial beings whose qualities resemble those described in Hindu scriptures as devatas. In truth, they came before the devatas; the farishtas were the original, highest form of created being within a solar system. They were the beings of whom the scriptures say: Aadi Anaadi Devta Dharma, the eternal primordial religion of the divine ones.

♦ Insight: “Through a single sankalp, Brahma could bring crores of farishtas into existence. Each one carried the radiance of thousands of suns.”

The Reverence of the Hindu Scriptures and Bapuji’s Vision

Bapuji holds the Hindu scriptures — the four Vedas, sixteen Upanishads, and eighteen Puranas — in the deepest reverence. These eternal texts preserve the profound truth that Mahashiv absorbs all creation into himself at the time of dissolution. The detailed unfolding of how the farishtas came to be, how they were created, what they were, and how they gradually descended is now shared by Bapuji from his own direct experience in deep meditation. The shastras and Bapuji’s discourses together illuminate the same eternal truth from different vantage points — the timeless wisdom of the scriptures and the direct inner seeing of a realised soul standing side by side, complementing one another.

Chapter VIII

From Devtas to Angels to Human Beings

The descent did not end with the farishtas. As time progressed, the farishtas gradually lost power. The supreme elements of their bodies became mixed with gross elements. They descended further. They became devatas, or divine beings of three elements: aakash (space), vayu (air), and agni (fire). The gross elements of water and earth were not yet present.

Why Power Was Lost

The reason for this gradual loss of power is the process of multiplication itself. Every time a soul creates other souls, bringing new souls into existence through sankalp, energy flows outward from the creator. The more souls are created, the more energy is expended. Over the vast timescales of this creation, the cumulative effect was inevitable: the creators themselves became gradually depleted. What began as sixteen kala fullness descended, stage by stage, to zero.

The First Humans: Manu and Shatrupa

When the devata began to descend further and the gross elements of water and earth entered their being, they became human. The first humans are known in the Hindu scriptures as Manu and Shatrupa. Many ancient spiritual traditions across the world hold parallel accounts of a first human couple, each tradition honouring this moment in its own sacred way.

Hindu tradition describes the moment of the first descent into body-consciousness (deha-bhan) of the soul. Before that descent, the first humans existed as Atma Swaroop, soul-conscious, free from the awareness of the physical body. With the descent into denser elements, awareness of the physical body arose for the first time. This is the inner story of the soul's entry into full human incarnation: the moment awareness shifted from soul-consciousness to body-consciousness.

♦ Insight: “Before the descent into the gross body, the soul was soul-conscious, Atma Swaroop. After it came body-consciousness. This single shift began the entire story of human suffering.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

From Human to Lower Forms

The descent did not end with the human form. Souls who accumulated heavy karma, whose consciousness became deeply entangled in the qualities of animals, or whose causal body was damaged by repeated negative action would, upon leaving the human body, be drawn toward lower births. The Hindu scriptures describe this as the soul passing through chaurasi lakh yoni, or 8.4 million species of life.

Bapuji explains this with simple logic: “Anth mati so gati”, the quality of awareness at the moment of death determines the next birth. If the mind was animal-like at death, the soul returns in an animal form. If the mind was serene and elevated, the soul rises. This is not punishment. It is the natural law of consciousness, operating through the logic of karma.

Chapter IX

The Creation of the Sun, Earth, and Planets

For as long as the farishtas and early devatas existed, there was no need for a physical sun. Their own souls radiated the brilliance of thousands of suns. The realm they inhabited was entirely self-luminous, filled with param agni from their own beings.

The Sun Is Created

As the devatas descended further and the natural radiance of their souls dimmed, darkness began to encroach. It was at this point, when the divine light was no longer sufficient to illuminate the world, that the physical sun was created.

Surya Narayan, the presiding deity of the sun, created the solar body. Once the sun was ignited, once hydrogen-to-helium fusion was set in motion, it sustained itself. In the beginning, the sun was far less intense than it is today. As the devatas continued their descent into denser matter, the sun gradually intensified.

Each Planet Has a Creator

Each planet in our solar system was created by its corresponding deity. Budh created Mercury (Budh). Shukracharya created Venus (Shukra). Shani Dev created Saturn. Each deity, through the immense power of sankalp, brought their planet into being.

It is Brahma who, at the appropriate moment, also directed the creation of the Earth (Dharti). This occurred approximately when Brahma's first twenty years had passed, a scale of time that, measured against the human lifespan, is incomprehensibly vast.

♦ Insight: “The physical sun was created not at the beginning, but when the light of the soul was no longer enough to illuminate the world. It was a response to descent, not a cause of it.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The Rings of Saturn and the Lower Realms

Below the human realm, the Hindu scriptures describe seven patal lok, underworld realms, and below those, 55 crore (550 million) narak, or hell realms.

Bapuji reveals that what science observes as the rings of Saturn, the countless tiny fragments of matter orbiting the planet, are the remains of these lower realms. As Saturn’s gravity pulled, and the sun’s gravity drew them into orbit, the shattered remnants of 55 crore narak collected around Saturn in the rings that can be observed today.

The Scale of Our Solar System

Our solar system extends to the orbit of Pluto, 587 crore (5.87 billion) kilometres from the sun. The full diameter of the solar system, measured to its gravitational boundary, is 94 lakh crore (9.4 trillion) kilometres, equivalent to one light-year. This entire structure is what is called a Brahmand, one cosmic system, with Shiv as its master.

Chapter X

Time Cycles — Yug, Manvantar, and Brahma's Cosmic Calendar

Time in this universe is not uniform. It operates differently at every level of creation, and this is something that even modern science is beginning to recognise in its study of the relationship between time, space, and the speed of light.

The Four Yug

On Earth, time is measured in yug, cosmic ages. There are four yugs in a complete cycle:

Kaliyug (the Iron Age) lasts 432,000 years. Dwaparyug is twice that, 864,000 years. Tretayug is three times the length of Kaliyug, 1,296,000 years. Satyug, the Age of Truth, is four times the length of Kaliyug, 1,728,000 years. Together, one complete cycle of four yugs (called a Chatur Yug) totals 4,320,000 years.

Manvantar: The Age of Manu

Seventy-one complete cycles of four yugs constitute one Manvantar, the reign of one Manu. At the end of each Manvantar, an Ardh Pralay (partial dissolution) occurs. The souls of higher quality survive; those who have fallen deeply into density are dissolved. Vishnu then appears, taking the form of Matsya (fish), and directs the surviving souls to preserve all seeds and life-forms in a great vessel before a new humanity is established. The Vishnu Purana describes this as the Matsya Avatar.

Fourteen Manvantar complete one Kalp, one full day of Brahma. One day of Brahma is equal to 4.32 billion years on Earth. A night of equal length follows. One day and night of Brahma together equal 8.64 billion years. At the end of each Kalp, the three lower worlds, Bhu Lok, Bhuvar Lok, and Swarg Lok, are dissolved. Vishnu enters the sun and generates the heat of twelve suns, burning all three worlds into ash. A new cycle then begins.

Brahma's Life: 100 Years

Brahma lives for 100 of his own years, each year consisting of 360 of his days and nights. This means the total lifespan of one Brahmand (solar system) is approximately 311 trillion Earth-years. At the end of Brahma's 100 years, the entire solar system undergoes Maha Kalp Pralay, the great final dissolution. The presiding Shiv, his energy depleted, enters the sun and generates kaal agni, the fire of time, which draws all creation back into itself.

♦ Insight: “If you stayed for just one second in Brahma's realm, 100,000 years would pass on Earth. The relationship between time and the level of consciousness is a profound spiritual truth long preserved in Bharatiya wisdom.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Time and Its Levels

The relationship between time and levels of creation is consistent: the higher the realm, the slower the passage of time relative to the Earth. One day in Swarg Lok (heaven) equals one year on Earth. One second in Brahmapuri equals 100,000 Earth-years. The timescale of Mahashiv is such that one moment for Mahashiv contains 100 years of Brahma. And for Param Mahashiv, one moment contains 100 years of Mahashiv.

Bapuji states: moment by moment, Mahashiv creates and dissolves infinite solar systems. This is what the Hindu scriptures describe: “Pratipal Mahashiv ki pratipal anant anant Brahmand bante hain aur bigadte hain”, every moment, infinite universes are created and destroyed.

Chapter XI

Pralay — The Great Dissolution

Pralay, or dissolution, is not destruction in the negative sense. It is the natural completion of a cycle. Just as a breath must be exhaled after it is inhaled, so creation must be absorbed back into its source when its time is complete. Bapuji describes five levels of pralay, each corresponding to a different level of the cosmic structure.

Five Levels of Dissolution

Nitya Pralay, the daily dissolution, is the death and rebirth of individual beings. Every soul that leaves its body and returns to a new one is experiencing a small pralay.

Ardh Pralay, the partial dissolution occurs at the end of each Manvantar. The Earth is cleansed. Lower souls are dissolved. Higher souls survive and seed the next cycle.

Pralay, the standard cycle dissolution, occurs at the end of four yugs.

Kalp Pralay, the dissolution of three worlds occurs at the end of Brahma's one day. The three lowest realms are burnt away, and Vishnu sustains the remaining souls through the night of Brahma.

Maha Kalp Pralay, the total dissolution of the entire solar system, occurs when Brahma's 100 years are complete and the presiding Shiv's energy is fully spent. Shiv enters the sun, generates kaal agni, and draws all matter, all planets, all beings, all worlds, back into himself. This is the Mahakaal state.

Mahakaal and the Black Hole

When the Mahakaal state arrives for a galaxy, when the Mahashiv at the centre of a galaxy has exhausted his creative energy, the galactic centre becomes a supreme point of dissolution. All the solar systems of that galaxy are drawn inward, consumed by what Bapuji calls Mahakaal Pralay.

What science calls a black hole is, from the perspective of this teaching, the external appearance of this Mahakaal state. Bapuji explains that, on the inner plane of consciousness, this is not absence or void. It is an intensely concentrated field of radiant divine energy — a supreme vortex of inner radiance visible to the inner eye of meditation. From Bapuji's vision, the galactic centre, even in its Mahakaal form, is a vortex of supreme radiant energy, not an absence of it.

♦ Insight: “What science calls a black hole, Bapuji calls Mahakaal. From the inner vision, it is not darkness but the intensely concentrated energy of Mahashiv’s dissolution, a supreme vortex of radiance.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The Wisdom Preserved in the Hindu Scriptures

The Hindu scriptures preserve the profound truth of this great mystery in a single sacred phrase: when Mahashiv becomes Mahakaal, he absorbs anant koti Brahmand, infinite crores of solar systems, into his very being, cell by cell, each cell containing one solar system. Bapuji's discourses now unfold the full inner story behind this revered phrase — how the galaxies were built and dissolved, how the souls descended and rose — complementing the eternal truth held in the shastras with the direct vision of a realised soul.

After dissolution, Mahashiv returns to the centre of the universe to receive new energy from Param Mahashiv.

Renewed, he returns to his galaxy and begins creation anew.

Chapter XII

The Fall of Souls and the Loss of Memory

One of the most quietly devastating aspects of this long history is what happened to memory. Every soul that was created, whether as a Mahashiv of sixteen kala, or a farishta, or a devata, or a human being, carried within itself the complete record of its entire journey. The soul is not a blank slate. It is a vast repository of experience, stretching back to the very first moment of its creation.

The Soul in Its Pure State

In its formless, original state, nirakar, the soul is purna gyani: completely knowing. In one moment, it can access billions of light-years of awareness from within. Its memory is not stored externally. It is embedded in the very substance of the soul itself. The Atma in its pure form holds the complete record of all time.

How the Cover Was Added

As param tattva layered itself around the soul, and as the soul descended from formlessness into form, each successive layer acted like a cover. Mahatattva first. Then param aakash. Then param vayu. Then param agni. Then the three gross elements: aakash, vayu, and agni. Then water. Then earth. Each layer reduced the soul's ability to access its own inner knowing.

By the time a soul reached the fully human state, with a karan sharir (causal body), a sukshma sharir (subtle body), and a sthool sharir (gross physical body), the original memory was buried very deep. And as karma accumulated on top of karma, as the record of actions, reactions, impressions, and habit patterns filled the causal body over many lifetimes, the soul's access to its own origin was effectively lost.

♦ Insight: “The soul is not blank. It carries the complete record of its entire journey, from the first moment of its creation. But layers of elements covered that memory, and then karma covered it further. This is why the soul has forgotten.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The Fall from Great Heights

Bapuji reveals something extraordinary about why so many supremely great souls are currently living on Earth. Beings who were the masters of 400 billion universes. Beings who governed entire Maha Brahmand, the great universes beyond this one. These souls came to this solar system, to this Earth, out of curiosity; to visit and to explore. And they became trapped.

First one came, then another came to find the first. Then others came to find those. And one by one, great soul after great soul, Param, Param Mahashiv, lords of galaxies, masters of universes, became entangled in the density of Mrityulok, the mortal realm. They are here now, living as ordinary human beings, having forgotten entirely who they are.

It is to find these souls, to awaken them, and to guide them home, that the Almighty Authority itself has descended. This is the mission behind these teachings.

Chapter XIII

The Zero Kala Universe of Today

The universe as it exists today is a zero kala universe. This means the original sixteen kala of perfection has completely run its course. The supreme elements that once constituted everything have become gross elements. The souls that once shone with the brilliance of thousands of suns now inhabit dense physical bodies. The galaxies that once stretched across hundreds of thousands of light-years have fragmented into countless smaller systems.

What Remains

And yet, not everything has been lost. At the very centre of the universe, Param Mahashiv remains. The original boundary of Param Prakash that was drawn at the very beginning still encircles everything. Around the galactic centres, 2,000 light-years of param tattvas remain intact. The Almighty Authority's power, though diminished, is still present. Creation is still being sustained.

Today, the zero kala universe has a diameter, as Bapuji describes from his vision, of many hundreds of billions of light-years. Of this, modern science has presently observed a far smaller region, within which more than two hundred billion galaxies have been identified. The full universe, the part beyond the reach of current instruments, is, in Bapuji's words, incomparably larger.

The Human Soul: Tamo Pradhan

The human soul, in the present state of this zero kala universe, has reached what Bapuji calls tamo pradhan, the state of maximum density. The soul's light is at its dimmest. Its memory is at its most obscured. Its power is at its lowest. This is the bottom of the cycle.

The population of the Earth, which was only 50 crore (500 million) as recently as 1750, rose to 75 crore by 1850, and to 150 crore by 1936. Today it exceeds 800 crore. This rapid expansion of population is itself a sign of the soul-descent: vast numbers of souls that once occupied higher realms or lower-density births are now concentrated in the human form, in this final stage of the cycle.

♦ Insight: “The rapid growth of human population is not a separate historical phenomenon. It is the concentrated descent of souls, from all levels of creation, into the human form, at the end of the great cycle.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The Time of Transformation

The zero kala state is not the end of the story. It is the turning point. The Almighty Authority, Supreme Power, is now present within this creation, and is working to reverse the direction of flow. The knowledge being given through Bapuji is a part of that work. The instruments of science, made of gross tattva, will one day be transformed into instruments of param tattva. The sun itself may one day be converted. The mortal world will become, in time, an immortal world.

Bapuji has placed this sankalp with great force:

This is Behad Gyan, the beyond-limits knowledge. This is the knowledge of who we are, where we came from, and what we are here to do.

Glossary

Terms and definitions drawn from the official Param Shanti glossary.

1. Atma (Soul) — The soul; the source of energy in all living beings. The true self. In its original, pure state, it is formless divine light, Param Prakash, also understood as consciousness in the language of modern science.

2. Param Atma (Supreme Soul) — The creator of souls. A soul with the power to create other souls through affirmation (sankalp). Also called Satyam Shivam Sundaram in Hindu scriptures, the true, divine, and beautiful state of a creator such as Shiv.

3. Kala — A unit of measurement of a soul's or creator's power. Just as watts measure electrical capacity, kala measures the spiritual capacity of a celestial being. Sixteen kala is the highest; zero kala is the present state of our universe.

4. Sankalp (Affirmation) — The determination or thought arising in a soul when it resolves to act. The mind-power of a soul. The higher the kala, the greater the power of sankalp. Through sankalp, supreme souls manifest creation.

5. Nirakar / Nirakari (Formless) — The formless state of a soul, its true divine state in the form of pure light. Also called the incorporeal state. In this state, the creator is described as Satyam Shivam Sundaram. This is the ultimate stage of a soul.

6. Aakar / Akari (Subtle Form) — A form of energy, subtle, not physical. Like the form created when fire burns. Not visible to the physical eye. When a soul loses energy through sankalp, it descends from its formless state and assumes this subtle form made of supreme elements.

7. Sakari (Physical Form) — The fully physical form assumed when a soul's energy has degenerated to the gross level.

8. Tattva (Element) — Element. The visible world is composed of five elements broadly: earth, water, air, fire, and ether. A spiritual term referring to finer grades of matter than those in chemistry.

9. Param Tattva (Supreme Element) — Supreme element. As the atom's nucleus is finer and more energetic than the atom itself, so param tattva is finer and more powerful than tattva. The building material of all supreme-world creation.

10. Paramdham (Supreme Abode) — The highest dimension of creation in a solar system, where Shiv, the creator, resides. The topmost layer, entirely in the form of supreme divine light. An incorporeal world of creation. Equivalent levels exist at the galaxy (Maha Paramdham) and universe (Param Maha Paramdham).

11. Shiv / Mahashiv / Param Mahashiv — Shiv: the incorporeal creator of a solar system, residing in its Paramdham. Mahashiv: the incorporeal creator of a galaxy. Param Mahashiv: the incorporeal creator of the universe. All are incorporeal worlds of supreme light.

12. Shakti / Mahashakti / Param Mahashakti — The counterpart to Shiv at every level of creation. Shiv first creates an Akari form from within itself, then that form creates Shakti. Together Akari Shiv and Shakti further the creation of a solar system, galaxy, or universe.

13. Peedi (Generation of Creators) — A generation of creators or supreme souls, analogous to generations of technology. First-generation creators hold 101 kala; higher generations hold progressively greater power. There are generations of 21, 101, 1001, 11001 Peedi and beyond.

14. Param Prakash (Supreme Divine Light) — The energy or power of a soul in its incorporeal form. The state of pure soul consciousness. Its power is measured in kala.

15. Param Maha Tattva (Supreme Great Element) — The divine radiance that surrounds Param Prakash in the incorporeal state. The highest energy level after Param Prakash itself. Also called Supreme Great Element or Mahatattva.

16. Had ki Atma (Limited Soul) — A soul created at the lower levels of a solar system, constituted of ether elements at most, without Param Prakash. A soul of very limited power.

17. Behad ki Atma (Beyond-Limits Soul) — A soul constituted of Param Prakash and Param Maha Tattva. Supremely powerful. A Behad soul, the type of soul this knowledge is intended for.

18. Behad ki Duniya (Beyond-Limits World) — Creation so vast and limitless that no boundary can be assigned to it. Infinite solar systems, infinite galaxies, infinite dimensions, all without end.

19. Behad ka PM (Beyond-Limits Supreme Master) — The most powerful supreme soul in this limitless creation, the controller of the Behad ki Duniya. The Almighty Authority.

20. Mukti (Liberation) — Freedom. In this knowledge, Mukti is the stage when a soul no longer exists in creation — it dissolves back into its creator.

21. Jeevan Mukti (Living Liberation) — Freedom from all karmic accounts while still living. The soul has complete knowledge of its creator and exists in a blissful state, eternally with its creator.

22. Vyakt (Manifest / Visible) — The visible five-element world of creation.

23. Avyakt (Unmanifest / Invisible) — The invisible subtle and supreme-subtle world of creation.

24. Bhavatit (Beyond Feelings) — Without any feelings or emotions. A state of complete inner stillness.

25. Karmatit (Beyond Karma) — The soul has attained freedom from all karmic bondages — it is beyond the law of karmic accounts in any plane of creation.

26. Gunatit / Nirgun (Beyond the Three Qualities) — Beyond the three qualities of nature: Satva (purity), Rajo (passion), and Tamo (inertia/darkness). The pure soul-conscious or incorporeal state, free from all qualities of nature.

27. Param Purush (Supreme Male Energy) — The first Akari (subtle-form) creation of an incorporeal supreme creator in any dimension. He always exists with his counterpart Shakti, the Supreme Female Energy.

28. Vikarm (Sin) — Sin committed by a soul, action that creates negative karmic debt.

29. Brahmand (Solar System) — A solar system. One cosmic unit with Shiv as its master. Often translated as 'universe' in older texts, it refers specifically to a solar system.

30. Maha Brahmand (Galaxy) — A galaxy. The level of creation governed by Mahashiv.

31. Param Maha Brahmand (Universe) — The universe. The level of creation governed by Param Mahashiv.

32. One Billion — 10^9 or 100 crore.

33. One Trillion — 10^{12} or 1 lakh crore.

34. One Light Year — 9.461 trillion kilometres (9,46,100 crore km), the distance light travels in one year.

35. Subtle World — The world of subtle elements, the realm of devatas and farishta, visible to subtle-body perception but not to the physical eye.

36. Causal World — The world finer than the subtle world, made of supreme-subtle elements. The realm of the soul's deepest covering.

37. Roop (Clone) — A clone of a soul, created by a supreme soul from its own energy through sankalp. Its creation reduces the original power of the supreme soul.

38. Incarnation — A cell of a supreme soul or higher-dimension soul used to carry out specific work on Earth. Less energy than a Roop. Example: Vishnu's incarnations such as Parshuram.

39. Pralay (Dissolution) — The process of dissolution of a creation at any level, from the death of a single being to the dissolution of an entire universe.

40. Behad ki Kala ka Paramdham — The supreme abode of the highest dimension of creation, whose power is infinite and inestimable. The abode of the Almighty Authority.

41. Behad ka Baap (Supreme Father) — The supreme master creator of this limitless vast creation. Unique and singular. The ultimate source of power of all creations. The Almighty Authority.

42. Jeev — When souls fall to the lower levels of creation with physical bodies due to uncontrolled desires, they are called Jeev. The ignorance that causes a divine soul to live like an animal.

43. Shastra (Scripture) — A Hindu scripture discussing spiritual matters.

44. Puranas — Part of Hindu literature, ancient wisdom in the form of stories describing the history of the creation of this solar system.

45. Isht Dev (Chosen Deity) — In the path of devotion, the individual's choicest, personally beloved deity — the one they worship and show allegiance to throughout their life.

46. Guru (Spiritual Instructor) — One who shows the right path to a soul, guiding it from darkness to enlightenment.

47. Ishwar (Master of Creation) — The master or owner of creation. This is incorporeal Shiv.

48. Gyan Marg (Path of Knowledge) — The path of realising the Supreme Father through knowledge. The soul continuously acquires and contemplates supreme knowledge until it realises its ultimate destiny.

49. Bhakti Marg (Path of Devotion) — The path to one's Ishta Dev through surrender, chanting, worship, fasting, and ritual.

50. Behad Gyan (Beyond-Limits Knowledge) — The knowledge about the Supreme Father, the Almighty Authority, and his boundless infinite creation, from the very beginning to the very end of all vast creation. This supreme knowledge, as shared in the complete, integrated form revealed through Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel's discourses, draws together the eternal truths held in the sacred scriptures with the direct experiential revelation of his own deep meditation.

51. Paramshanti (Supreme Peace) — The original state of the soul when it is first created — the state of supreme peace. The soul always seeks this state. Achieved when the soul re-establishes itself in its pure incorporeal state of supreme light.

52. Seva (Selfless Service) — In Behad Gyan, the highest form of service is to disseminate this supreme knowledge of the self for the benevolence of all souls.

53. Sanskar (Character / Record) — The character of a soul, the record held in its causal body. The mind works according to its sanskar. Self-transformation begins with transforming one's character by imbibing Behad Gyan.

54. Yog (Connection) — Connection with the Almighty Authority. When a soul, having acquired Behad Gyan, immerses itself in deep love for its creator and completely forgets the physical world, this state is Yog.

55. Dharana (Embodiment of Knowledge) — When a soul, through regular practice of Behad Gyan and Yog, gradually transforms its sanskar, until its true divinity emerges, the soul becomes the embodiment of knowledge itself.

56. Sanatan Dharm (Eternal Religion) — Before any religion was established on Earth, there was one eternal religion since the very beginning of creation of this Brahmand, Sanatan Dharm. Hindu religion is also called Adi Sanatan Dharm.

57. Karan Sharir (Causal Body) — The causal body, the innermost layer of a human being's covering, containing the complete record of karmic accounts. The storehouse of the soul's history. Synonymous with the mind.

58. Loka (A Dimension of Creation) — A layer or dimension of creation inside a Brahmand, galaxy, or universe. In a Brahmand: Bhu-Loka (Earth), Bhubar-Loka, Swar-Loka (Heaven), Maha-Loka, Jana-Loka, and higher.

59. Yug (Cosmic Age) — A cosmic age on Earth. The four yugs: Satyug, Tretayug, Dwaparyug, and Kaliyug, together form a Chaturyug (four-age cycle) of 4,320,000 years. These cycles repeat until Maha Kalp Pralay, when the entire Brahmand perishes.

60. Purusharth (Spiritual Effort) — The spiritual effort made by a human being to understand the soul-science through self-enquiry and meditation.
