About Bapuji

Bapuji (full name: Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly called “Dadaji” by the younger generation) was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. However, he spent his childhood in another village named Ambasan, also located in the Mehsana district.

In the early part of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realizing the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realize their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on Earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy (CA), he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law (LLB) degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called “Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay” in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as “Maa,” worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to 18 hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realized through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of superconsciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji’s teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy, and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as “behad souls.” According to Bapuji, these “behad souls” will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

“Gyan Daan Maha Daan (Sharing Knowledge is the highest Charity) — share to maximum extent with all.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Every thought you think leaves a mark on the world. Not metaphorically — literally. When a human soul generates a thought, it creates a vibration. That vibration moves through the subtle layers of the atmosphere, reaching other souls, other places, and other realms.

This book is drawn from the spoken discourses of Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, in which he explores the nature, mechanics, and transformative power of vibration. The teaching is not abstract philosophy. It is a practical science — one that has direct bearing on the health of the body, the peace of the mind, and the atmosphere of the world we live in.

Bapuji’s insight is both ancient and urgent. The world we inhabit today is saturated with negative vibrations, and their consequences are visible everywhere — in the suffering of the body, in conflict, in environmental imbalance, and in the quiet unrest of countless souls. Yet the solution is equally clear: a shift in consciousness, beginning with even a small number of awakened souls, can reverse what took centuries to accumulate.

The teachings presented here have been drawn faithfully from Bapuji’s original discourses. Nothing has been added. Nothing has been changed. Only the presentation has been refined, so that these timeless teachings may reach new readers with clarity and grace.

Chapter I

What Is Vibration?

Vibration, in the language of Bapuji's teachings, is simply the movement created by thought. Every time a human soul thinks, a kampan — a vibration or tremor — is generated. That vibration enters the atmosphere and becomes part of the invisible fabric of the world we all inhabit.

The atmosphere is not merely made of physical air. At a subtler level, it is composed of the accumulated sankalpas — the thoughts and intentions — of every soul that has ever lived on this earth. Every hope, every fear, every act of love, every moment of anger — all of it has been deposited into the atmosphere as vibration. The air we breathe, in this sense, carries within it the collective consciousness of humanity.

These vibrations influence: Aura, mind, karmic patterns, environment, relationships, collective consciousness.

Thus vibration is essentially thought-energy.

Thought Is Vibration

Bapuji explains this with striking simplicity: thought is Vibration. When a soul forms a sankalpa — an intention or thought — that sankalpa creates a subtle movement in the atmosphere. This movement is what we call spandan or vibration.

These vibrations are not random. They carry the quality of the sankalpa that created them. A sankalpa born of peace creates a peaceful vibration. A sankalpa born of anger creates an agitated vibration. A sankalpa born of love creates a warm, connecting vibration. The nature of the sankalpa and the nature of the vibration are inseparable.

♦ Insight: “Sankalpas — the thoughts and intentions of the soul — create vibrations (spandan) in the atmosphere. Every soul’s sankalpas enter the atmosphere and shape it.”

This understanding removes any sense that our thoughts are private. They are not. Every sankalpa reaches outward — into the home, into the city, into the sky, and eventually into realms far beyond the physical world.

Desire, Sankalpa, and Vibration

A question often arises: is vibration the same as desire, or is it something different? Bapuji clarifies that desire is one form of sankalpa, and all sankalpas create vibration. When a soul desires something — material comfort, recognition, power, or even destruction — that desire takes the form of a negative sankalpa. And that sankalpa vibrates outward.

Desire carries the five vikars — kaam (lust), krodh (anger), lobh (greed), moh (attachment), and ahankar (ego). When a sankalpa is driven by any of these, the vibration it generates is correspondingly negative. When a sankalpa is clean — rooted in genuine care or in the longing for truth — the vibration is positive and elevating.

The point is not to stop thinking or desiring entirely. It is to transform the quality of what moves through the mind. That transformation is the beginning of everything.

Chapter II

The Elements Within Every Thought

To understand how vibration works, it helps to understand what it is made of. Bapuji teaches that vibration is a combination of two elements: vayu (air) and agni (fire). These are not elements in a purely physical sense — they are the subtle energetic constituents of thought-movement itself.

The Composition of Vibration

When a sankalpa is generated by the soul, it moves through the subtle body — the sukshma sharir — and then passes outward through the aura. The material of this movement is the combination of the air element and the fire element. Air gives vibration its quality of movement and spread. Fire gives it intensity, heat, and power. Together, they form what Bapuji calls the vehicle through which all thought reaches outward into the world.

This is why negative sankalpas feel hot and agitated, while peaceful sankalpas feel cool and still. The balance of these two elements within a vibration determines both its character and its effect on everything it touches.

♦ Insight: “Vibration is composed of vayu and agni. When the soul forms a sankalpa, this combination moves outward through the aura and into the atmosphere, shaping the world.”

The Three Bodies and the Path of Vibration

Bapuji describes three subtle bodies that form the inner structure of a human soul: the karan sharir (causal body), the sukshma sharir (subtle body), and the sthool sharir (physical body). Vibration moves through all three.

When a sankalpa arises, it first stirs in the karan sharir, the deepest layer. From there, it moves into the sukshma sharir, where it takes on the combined quality of air and fire. This subtle movement then presses outward through the aura, enters the atmosphere, and spreads in all directions.

Crucially, the reverse is also true. Vibrations from the atmosphere enter through the breath, pass through the subtle body, and reach inward to affect the causal body and ultimately the soul's stored impressions, or sanskaras. This is why the atmosphere we live in matters so deeply to our inner life: every breath is an exchange with the collective vibration of the world.

Negative Vibration and Disease

When a soul generates negative sankalpas repeatedly over many years — across many lifetimes, in fact — those sankalpas progressively damage the subtle body. The cells of the subtle body become depleted and dark. Bapuji describes this as the sukshma sharir becoming tamo pradhan — heavy, dull, and constricted.

This deterioration in the subtle body is reflected, in time, in the outer self as well. Bapuji teaches that long-standing imbalances within the being are, at their deepest level, the product of long-accumulated negative sankalpas. The outer expression is the final reflection of what began as a pattern in the subtle world.

♦ Insight: “Negative sankalpas weaken the subtle cells. Over many lifetimes this leads to long-standing imbalances in the being. The cause is subtle; the effect becomes outwardly visible.”

Chapter III

How Vibrations Shape the Self

Before vibrations can transform the world, they transform the one who generates them. Bapuji's teaching on vibration always begins here: with the self.

You Are Your Own Friend or Enemy

The Gita's teaching that the soul is its own friend and its own enemy finds its clearest meaning in the context of vibration. When a soul spends its days in negative sankalpas — in jealousy, anger, complaint, or fear — it generates, with each passing moment, a vibration that darkens its own aura, weakens its own subtle body, and erodes its own connection to peace. In a very real sense, the soul becomes its own enemy through its sankalpas.

When a soul chooses to form sankalpas of peace, to align its thoughts with the consciousness of the atma (soul), and to fill its inner space with Param Shanti — supreme peace — it heals itself from within. The very mechanism that created the damage becomes the mechanism of repair.

♦ Insight: “The soul itself created these conditions through negative sankalpas. The same mechanism, reversed through Param Shanti vibrations, can heal them.”

The Breath as a Carrier

There is a profoundly sobering truth in Bapuji's teaching: the air we breathe today is saturated with negative vibration. Because so many souls across this world are generating negative sankalpas every moment, the atmosphere has absorbed an enormous accumulation of this energy over centuries. Every breath we take draws this vibration into our subtle body, where it interacts with our own sankalpas.

Bapuji uses a striking comparison: just as impure food affects the mind — reflected in the saying jaisa ann, vaisa mann (as the food, so the mind) — impure air affects the subtle body in the same way. In every breath, we absorb the collective sankalpa-atmosphere of humanity.

This understanding makes the cultivation of positive vibration not merely a personal spiritual practice, but a form of inner hygiene and, ultimately, a service to the world.

Positive Vibrations and Inner Wellbeing

When a soul turns its sankalpas toward ParamShanti with sincerity and consistency, the vibrations generated begin to refine the being at the subtle level. The sukshma sharir gradually becomes cleaner and lighter. The aura brightens. Over time, the practitioner often experiences a deepening sense of inner ease, a steadier emotional balance, and a quiet sense of connection to something far larger than the individual self.

This is not wishful thinking. It is the reversal of a process that has been running in the negative direction for a very long time. The same law applies in both directions: negative sankalpas degrade; positive sankalpas restore.

Bapuji recommends beginning with atma swaroop — recognising oneself as a soul, not a body. From that recognition, a connection with the Almighty Authority becomes possible. From that connection, the soul draws genuine power — not borrowed energy from external sources, but pure param prakash (supreme light). This power, channelled through sankalpas of Param Shanti, transforms the inner being.

Chapter IV

How Vibrations Reach Others

Every sankalpa you form does not remain within you. It travels. Bapuji explains that vibrations generated by a soul move outward through the aura into the surrounding atmosphere, and from there they reach other souls — sometimes nearby, sometimes across vast distances.

Telepathy: The Natural Language of Souls

Telepathy is, in Bapuji's understanding, simply the natural working of sankalpa-vibration. When one soul holds another soul in its sankalpas with power and sincerity, those vibrations cross any distance and reach the other soul directly. The mechanism is not symbolic. It is exact.

He offers a clear illustration: a wife in India thinks deeply and lovingly about her husband in America. Her sankalpa, carried with genuine feeling and undivided attention, traverses the entire distance through the atmospheric vibration field. The husband, on the other side of the world, may suddenly feel a wave of warmth, a longing, or an unexpected memory. The communication is real — only its medium is invisible.

◆ Insight: “When a soul forms a deep sankalpa for another, those vibrations travel through the atmosphere and touch that soul, wherever they are in the world.”

The Role of Sankalpa Shakti

Bapuji makes an important distinction: not all sankalpas travel with equal force. A sankalpa sent with genuine inner power — sankalpa shakti drawn from a soul connected to the Almighty Authority — reaches farther and affects more deeply than a fleeting, half-attentive thought.

This is why the cultivation of atma shakti (soul power) matters. The soul that is strong within itself, grounded in its own identity as a conscious being and linked to its supreme source, generates sankalpas that carry transformative weight. The weak, scattered soul generates sankalpas that drift and dissipate.

Vibrations and the Aura

Before vibrations reach outward to others, they first affect the sender's own aura — the subtle energy field surrounding every living being. A person who consistently generates negative sankalpas develops an aura that is dim, contracted, and heavy. Others may feel this without knowing why: a sense of discomfort, a desire to move away, an inexplicable heaviness in the room.

A person who radiates positive vibration will have a bright, expansive aura. Others feel drawn toward them, calmed in their presence, elevated simply by being near them. This is not personality or charisma in the social sense. It is the literal effect of the sankalpas that compose their inner atmosphere.

Bapuji teaches that one of the most practical spiritual disciplines is to seal the aura — to protect it from the constant influx of negative atmospheric vibration. This sealing is accomplished through inner stillness, deep yog with the Almighty Authority, and the consistent radiation of Param Shanti.

Household Vibrations and Relationship Conflicts

Family conflicts occur due to difference of vibrations. Negative atmospheric vibrations influence breath (prana vayu). Breath carries vibrational energy into the body. Mental and emotional states reflect breath quality. Hence conflicts arise even between people who genuinely love each other.

So what is the Solution? Bapuji says one should connect soul with divine powerhouse. Soul requires supreme light energy (param light). Ancient spiritual practices were dedicated to absorbing higher vibrations from the divine source. Today's atmosphere lacks this charge — hence the importance of conscious connection through yog, meditation, and the inner sankalpa of Param Shanti.

Positive vibration spreads first in home environment. Charity begins at home. When home atmosphere changes, family members gradually change.

Vibrations of Animals and Attachment

Animals possess aura but limited soul power. Human attachment to animals influences karmic impressions.

Example from scriptures: King Bharat developed deep attachment to a deer. At death his thoughts were focused on deer, leading to rebirth as deer. Attachment determined the next birth.

♦ Insight: “Seal your aura. When the aura is strong and connected to the Almighty Authority, negative vibrations from the atmosphere cannot penetrate it.”

Chapter V

Vibrations Across the Realms

Bapuji's teaching on vibration does not stop at the boundaries of the physical world. Vibration operates across all the realms of existence — from the densest physical plane to the subtlest regions of Paramdham.

The Structure of the Realms

Bapuji describes a layered structure of realms, each composed of progressively subtler elements. Dharti Lok is the physical world we inhabit, composed of all five elements: earth, water, fire, air, and space. Above it lies Bhuvar Lok, a subtle realm where souls with three-element bodies reside. Higher still is Swarg Lok (the heavenly realm). Above Swarg Lok are the realms of Vishnu Puri, Shiv Puri, and Brahma Puri, each composed of even subtler elements. And beyond all of these lies Paramdham — the supreme abode, the original home of all souls.

Each realm is dominated by progressively subtler elements. As a soul ascends through the refinement of its sankalpas, the akash (space) element becomes increasingly dominant. Space is the element of stillness and peace. As vayu and agni diminish and akash increases, the soul's experience becomes one of deeper and deeper peace.

◆ Insight: “As the soul rises through the realms, vayu and agni reduce. Akash increases. Sankalpas become lighter and fewer. Peace deepens. This is the inner journey encoded in the structure of the cosmos.”

How Sankalpas Affect Each Realm

Just as sankalpas move horizontally across distances in the physical world, they also move vertically through the layers of existence. A soul on earth thinking of Brahma sends sankalpas that travel all the way to Brahma Puri. A soul remembering Shiva sends vibrations to Shiv Puri. A soul connecting with the Almighty Authority sends sankalpas all the way to Paramdham.

Bapuji cites the ancient stories of sages in deep meditation: when they performed intense tapasya, calling on Brahma, their sankalpas were so powerful that even Indra — the lord of the heavenly realm — felt his throne shaking. This was not mythology. It was the factual effect of powerfully directed sankalpa-vibration travelling between realms.

Even the subtle world — the realm of disembodied souls — is affected by the vibrations of living human souls. Negative souls in the subtle world, unable to ascend, remain entangled with the lower atmospheric layers of the physical world. Positive vibrations from awakened souls on earth can reach and help liberate them.

Paramdham: The Realm Beyond Sankalpa

At the very apex of the cosmic structure lies Paramdham — the region of the Almighty Authority, the original home of all souls. In this realm, sankalpa has ceased entirely. The soul in Paramdham exists in nishankalpata — the state of no sankalpa, no thought. It is a state of absolute stillness, absolute peace, and absolute fullness.

This is the ultimate destination of vibration: its total dissolution into pure peace. Param Shanti is not merely a quality that the soul cultivates. It is the fundamental nature of the soul itself, its original state before it began its long journey through the ages.

Chapter VI

The Four Ages and the Law of Vibration

The four ages — Satyug, Treta, Dwapar, and Kaliyug — are not simply historical periods. They are, Bapuji teaches, a precise map of how the collective vibration of human souls evolves — and devolves — over vast spans of time.

Satyug: The Age of Pure Sankalpas

In Satyug, the first and most elevated age, the souls inhabiting the earth were sato pradhan — predominantly pure. Their sankalpas were clean. Their natural state was peace. The atmosphere was filled with subtle, light-filled vibration, and the elements themselves — earth, water, fire, air, and space — were in perfect balance.

In this age, human beings lived extraordinarily long lives — according to ancient texts, up to one hundred thousand years — and their physical forms were strong, beautiful, and harmonious. Natural disasters were unknown. The earth itself responded to the elevated sankalpas of its inhabitants, manifesting abundance, fertility, and stability.

In Satyug, there was one unified spiritual understanding: Shiva was revered and all souls moved in the same direction. There were no conflicting sects, no warring beliefs. The collective sankalpa was one, and the world reflected this unity in every detail of its existence.

The Descent Through the Ages

As souls multiplied and their desires increased, the purity of sankalpas began to diminish. In Treta, a degree of rajo (activity and desire) entered. In Dwapar, this increased, and divisions began to form. With each age, the proportion of sankalpas rooted in the five vikars grew, and the proportion rooted in peace and clarity diminished.

By Kaliyug — the age we are in now — the atmosphere has become saturated with the accumulated negativity of thousands of years of religious conflict, war, exploitation, and inner discord. The five elements, once balanced, have been thrown into disarray. Bapuji teaches that natural calamities of every kind — earthquakes, floods, fires, storms — are direct effects of imbalanced elements responding to the imbalanced sankalpas of human beings.

♦ Insight: “Natural calamities are not random. They are the effect of the collective negative sankalpas of human souls, reflected back through the elements.”

Vibration and the Cycle of Ages

What is deeply significant in Bapuji’s teaching is that this entire process — the descent from Satyug to Kaliyug — was caused by the quality of sankalpas generated by human souls. The elements themselves did not change. Souls changed, and the elements responded.

This means the reverse is also possible. If the vibration of humanity can be shifted — even by a relatively small number of awakened souls — the elements will once again respond, and the world will move back toward balance, peace, and abundance.

This is not a vague hope. It is the precise and literal mechanism by which transformation occurs. The cause was sankalpa. The solution is sankalpa.

Effect of War, Fear and Collective Emotions

Bapuji explains that during disasters such as earthquakes, people temporarily develop unity and compassion. Fear creates temporary unity. For example, during the 9/11 terrorist attack on the Twin Towers, people across the world united in shock and grief. But once the immediate threat passed, the divisive sankalpas returned. Lasting unity comes only from a stable foundation in atma swaroop and connection to the Almighty Authority — not from shared fear.

Chapter VII

The Power of Param Shanti

Throughout all of Bapuji's teachings on vibration, one phrase returns again and again like a heartbeat: Param Shanti. These two words — “supreme peace” — are not merely a greeting or a slogan. They are, Bapuji explains, a mahavibration — a carrier wave of the highest frequency available to a human soul on earth.

Three Levels of the Practice

Bapuji makes a precise and fascinating distinction between three levels of the Param Shanti sankalpa-practice. The first is simply repeating the words “ParamShanti”. Done consistently — one hundred thousand times or more — this fills the practitioner's aura and home with the vibration of peace. The home environment changes. Family members feel calmer without knowing why. This is the foundational level.

The second level is “Behad ki Param Shanti” — the Param Shanti of the unlimited. By adding the word behad (limitless), the sankalpa expands. The soul is no longer radiating peace into its immediate environment alone; it is reaching toward the boundless. The vibration travels farther, spreading through the city, through nature, through wider and wider concentric circles of existence.

The third and highest level is “Behad ke Behad ki Param Param Param MahaShanti” — the supreme, supreme, supreme great peace of the infinitely unlimited. At this level, the sankalpa is addressed not to any bounded space but to the entire cosmos. When formed with genuine inner power, it reaches across infinite universes.

Sankalpa vs. Speech

Bapuji emphasises a critical technical point: sankalpas formed in the mind are far more powerful than spoken words. Speaking Param Shanti aloud creates a vibration, but forming it inwardly with genuine focus and stillness creates a vibration one thousand times more powerful.

This is why meditation — mann ka maun, the silence of the mind — is the highest form of this practice. When the mind is still and the soul rests in its own atma swaroop, a single sankalpa of Param Shanti carries the weight of a thousand spoken repetitions. The soul at rest in itself is the most potent transmitter of vibration in existence.

Connection with the Almighty Authority

The deepest level of this practice involves more than the repetition of a phrase. It involves a genuine yog — connection — with the Almighty Authority. Yog means connection: aligning the soul’s consciousness with its original source, the formless, all-powerful, all-loving being who is the origin of all souls.

When this yog is established, the sankalpas of Param Shanti no longer draw only on the limited resources of the individual soul. They draw on the unlimited power of the Almighty. A soul connected in this way becomes, in Bapuji’s own words, a power house on earth — radiating supreme peace outward in every direction, transforming the atmosphere with every breath.

♦ Insight: “Connect with the Almighty Authority through yog. When the soul is linked to the source of all power, its sankalpas carry that power. The world begins to change.”

Chapter VIII

Transforming the World Through Vibration

Can vibration truly change the world? Bapuji does not speak of this as a hope. He speaks of it as a law. The world was changed into its current condition by sankalpas. It can be changed back by sankalpas.

The Power of a Small Group

Bapuji is disarmingly practical about numbers. He does not ask for billions of awakened souls. He suggests that even one hundred souls generating consistent Param Shanti sankalpas with genuine inner connection could create a measurable change in the world's atmospheric vibration.

He speaks of ten thousand behad souls — souls who have awakened to their unlimited identity and who radiate atma swaroop power — as having the capacity to transform the entire atmosphere of the earth in what he calls “a single moment.” This is not exaggeration. It is the mathematics of vibration: a small number of highly potent transmitters can outweigh a vast number of weak ones. Quality, in the world of sankalpa, can overcome quantity.

◆ Insight: “Even 10,000 awakened behad souls, standing in atma swaroop, sending sankalpas of Param Shanti, can transform the entire world's atmosphere in a single moment.”

Self-Transformation Comes First

The path to this world-changing work is, however, internal. Bapuji is clear: before one can transform the world, one must transform oneself. Swa parivartaan — self-transformation — is the foundation of everything else.

This means first ending the stream of negative sankalpas. It means recognising oneself as a soul, not a body or a role. It means establishing a genuine yog with the Almighty Authority and drawing power from that connection. It means radiating Param Shanti not as a technique but as an expression of one's own awakened nature.

When this work is genuine, the effects are immediate and concrete. The home environment changes. The people around the practitioner begin, slowly, to soften. The vibrations in the breath they share begin to shift. Without a word being spoken, transformation begins.

A Vision for the Future

Bapuji describes a future in which the earth returns to a Satyug-like condition: balanced elements, purified atmosphere, extended and elevated lives, and souls living in the consciousness of their own divine nature. He acknowledges that transforming Kaliyug into Satyug is an enormous task — he calls it a project of the impossible.

But he says this with a smile, because he knows that the impossible becomes possible when the soul connects with its own unlimited source. The behad soul has within it the power to create brahmaands — entire universes. Surely, then, it has the power to change the atmosphere of one planet.

The invitation in every line of Bapuji's teaching is the same: wake up. Know who you are. Connect with the power that is your birthright. And radiate that power outward, as ParamShanti, until the world is changed.

♦ Insight: “Swa parivartaan se vishwa parivartaan — self-transformation leads to world transformation. One sankalpa of awakening can change everything.”

- ♦ Insight: “10,000 awakened behad souls, standing in atma swaroop, sending sankalpas of Param Shanti, can transform the entire world’s atmosphere in a single moment.”

- ♦ Insight: “Swa parivartaan se vishwa parivartaan — self-transformation leads to world transformation. One sankalpa of awakening can change everything.”

Glossary: Key Terms and Definitions

Akash — The space element; associated with stillness, peace, and the higher realms of existence.

Agni — The fire element; one of the two components of vibration, providing energy and intensity to sankalpas.

Ahankar — Ego; one of the five vikars (vices) that generate negative vibration.

Almighty Authority — The supreme being, source of all souls and all power; the original power house at the centre of Paramdham.

Atma — The soul; a point of conscious light-energy, the true identity of every human being.

Atma shakti — The power of the soul; the inner strength that determines how far and how deeply one's sankalpas travel.

Atma swaroop — The soul's original form or identity; the state of being established in one's true nature as a soul.

Behad — Beyond limits; unlimited. Used to describe souls, knowledge, or vibrations that transcend ordinary boundaries.

Behad Gyan — Knowledge beyond all limits; the supreme spiritual knowledge conveyed in Bapuji's teachings.

Brahmaand — Universe; also used for any bounded cosmic realm or world-system.

Brahma Puri — The realm of Brahma; a subtle realm above the earthly and heavenly worlds.

Dharti Lok — The physical earth realm; composed of all five elements.

Kaam — Lust or desire; one of the five vikars.

Kampan — Vibration; tremor. The movement generated by sankalpas in the atmosphere. Synonymous with spandan.

Karan sharir — The causal body; the deepest subtle body, the source of impressions and karma.

Karma — Action and its consequences; the law by which sankalpa, word, and deed create future experience.

Karma bandhan — The bondage of karma; the entanglement created by accumulated past actions.

Krodh — Anger; one of the five vikars.

Kundalini Jagran — The awakening of the kundalini energy within the soul; a central dimension of Bapuji's teachings.

Lobh — Greed; one of the five vikars.

Maha Shanti — Great peace; an elevated form of Param Shanti used in Bapuji's mahavibration practice.

Moh — Attachment; one of the five vikars.

Nishankalpata — The state of no sankalpa, no thought; the natural condition of souls resting in Paramdham.

Param Shanti — Supreme peace; Bapuji's central teaching, greeting, and mahavibration mantra.

Param prakash — Supreme light; the divine light that charges all layers of the soul when connected to the Almighty Authority.

Paramdham — The supreme abode; the original home of all souls, beyond all elements and all realms.

Pranmay sharir — The vital or pranic body; the layer of the subtle body associated with the breath and life-force.

Purusharth — Spiritual effort; the practice of making conscious choices aligned with one's true nature as a soul.

Samadhi — Deep meditative absorption; a superconscious state beyond ordinary awareness.

Sankalpa — A thought, intention, or subtle mental movement of the soul; the source of all vibration.

Sankalpa shakti — The power of thought or intention; the force behind every vibration sent into the atmosphere.

Sanskaras — Stored impressions in the soul accumulated over many lifetimes; they shape the quality of sankalpas.

Sato pradhan — Predominantly sattvic (pure); the natural quality of souls in Satyug.

Satyug — The Golden Age; the first and most elevated of the four world ages, characterised by pure sankalpas and balanced elements.

Shiv Puri — The realm of Shiva; a subtle realm above Vishnu Puri in the cosmic structure.

Spandan — Vibration; the Sanskrit and Hindi word for the subtle tremor created by every sankalpa.

Sukshma sharir — The subtle body; composed of air and fire elements, the vehicle through which sankalpas pass outward as vibrations.

Swa parivartaan — Self-transformation; the inner change that must precede any lasting world transformation.

Swarg Lok — The heavenly realm; a subtle realm above the earthly world.

Tamo pradhan — Predominantly tamoguni (heavy, dark); the quality of the soul depleted by negative sankalpas.

Tapasya — Austerity or intense spiritual practice; in Bapuji's context, deep meditation generating extraordinarily powerful sankalpas.

Vayu — The air element; one of the two components of vibration, providing movement and spread to sankalpas.

Vikars — The five vices — kaam, krodh, lobh, moh, ahankar — that generate negative sankalpas and negative vibration.

Vishnu Puri — The realm of Vishnu; a subtle realm in the cosmic structure above Swarg Lok.

Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay — The divine institution established by Bapuji in 1997 in Ahmedabad with the mission of transforming the mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

Yog — Connection; specifically, the conscious connection of the soul with the Almighty Authority. Always used — never “yoga.”

“Gyan Daan Maha Daan”

Sharing Knowledge is the Highest Charity

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

The world you experience is shaped by vibration.

PARAMSHANTI

Every thought you create becomes a vibration. Every vibration shapes your inner world —
and the world around you.

This book reveals the hidden science of sankalpa, the power of Param Shanti, and the path to inner transformation. Not philosophy — but direct experience.
