About Bapuji

Bapuji (full name: Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly called “Dadaji” by the younger generation) was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. However, he spent his childhood in another village named Ambasan, also located in the Mehsana district.

In the early part of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realizing the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realize their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on Earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy (CA), he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law (LLB) degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called “Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay” in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as “Maa,” worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to 18 hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realized through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of superconsciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji’s teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy, and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as “behad souls.” According to Bapuji, these “behad souls” will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

— by Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Fear is one of the deepest experiences of human life. People ask, again and again, how the mind can be freed from fear — the fear of what tomorrow may bring, the fear of failing, the fear of accidents, of loss, of death itself. Behind all these questions lies one quiet longing: to live in peace, without the constant weight of worry.

This book gathers Bapuji’s words on this single subject — fear, and how the soul becomes free of it. Bapuji does not treat fear as a problem to be merely calmed. He shows where fear comes from, how it is stored within us, and why it cannot be removed until the soul itself becomes strong.

The path he points to is simple, though it asks for practice. Know the soul. Understand your own actions. And, above all, remain in the remembrance of the Supreme. When the soul feels that the Supreme is always with it, the fear of the world quietly falls away.

Read slowly. There is nothing to strain over here. Let each chapter settle, and let the understanding grow on its own.

Chapter One

The Many Faces of Fear

Here on this earth, the human being carries many kinds of fear. Some fears are small and some are large, but they all sit inside us in the same way — quietly recorded, ready to rise.

A single disturbing event can leave a mark that lasts for years. A person who once witnessed an accident may find that, every time they step out of the house, a feeling rises in them — “my accident is about to happen now.” Someone who reads in the newspaper that a gas cylinder has burst may feel, each time they enter the kitchen, that the cylinder before them is about to explode.

Fear of accidents, fear of fire, fear of sudden disaster — every kind of fear records itself inside the human being. Once it is recorded, it does not stay quiet. It returns.

Not all of these fears belong to this life. Some of them have travelled with the soul from a previous birth. A soul that drowned in a past life carries a fear of water. A soul that died in fire carries a fear of fire. A soul that ended its own life carries a hidden fear it cannot even explain. This is why the fear of water, the fear of height, the fear of standing on a mountain is so common. Countless people say, “I am afraid of water, I am afraid of heights,” without ever knowing where the fear began.

◆ Insight: “Yahaan dharti par manushya ko kai prakaar ke bhay hain.”

“Here on this earth, the human being carries many kinds of fear.”

And once a single idea of fear enters the mind, the mind will not let it go. It turns the thought over for hours. The person keeps thinking about that one fear, until at last it can pull them down into depression. They are simply unable to release the fearful thought.

Chapter Two

How Fear Is Recorded Within

To be free of fear, we must first understand how fear is stored. The mind has two layers — the conscious mind and the deeper subconscious mind. Whatever we live through records itself in these layers, slowly and steadily.

What we think again and again, what we watch again and again, the negative news we read, even the things we discuss on the phone — all of it keeps recording itself within. Nothing passes without leaving a trace.

Bapuji points to a subtle truth here. When we read or watch something with great attention, with feeling, it does not stop at the conscious mind. It goes straight into the subconscious. Some people even weep while reading the news; that strong feeling carries the impression directly inward, where it settles deep.

Once such a recording lies in the subconscious, it begins to replay on its own. This is why fear keeps returning to the mind again and again. The fear does not need a new cause — the old recording is enough.

And when fear is repeated often enough, it stops being a single feeling and becomes part of one's very nature. Repeated fear slowly builds a fearful personality. The conscious mind and the subconscious mind both hold the fear, and together they keep it alive.

Chapter Three

Fear in Sleep and Dreams

Fear does not rest even when we sleep. Many people ask how to be free of frightening dreams. To answer this, Bapuji says we must first understand why dreams come at all.

Every dream rises from something already lying in the subconscious — whether it is from this birth, from a past birth, or from something we have only recently been turning over in our thoughts. Some recording is always there beneath the dream.

The subconscious “opens” in deep sleep. In deep sleep the mind enters a half-awake state — the ardh-jagruk mann. In that half-awake state, the recordings held within the soul and the mind rise up and emerge as dreams. This is why the same frightening scene can appear night after night; the same recording keeps surfacing.

This is also why experiences from a past life can come forward. When a person is taken into hypnosis, they are led into a kind of deep sleep; the subconscious opens, and recordings from earlier lives rise into view. Whatever we think about repeatedly can return in the same way, appearing again and again in our dreams.

There are also dreams that come from outside us. Sometimes negative thoughts or negative forces are sent toward a person. Sometimes there is the influence of black-magic practice. Sometimes wandering spirits disturb a person and call out to them in sleep.

Sometimes a soul shows a person what is about to happen — a warning of a coming event. Even good deities may speak to a person in a dream to protect them, to save them from harm that lies ahead.

And sometimes a person’s own strong thought returns as a dream, with no outer force at all. If someone has been thinking deeply of building a temple, that very thought may come back through a dream. Both are possible — the dream from within and the dream sent from outside.

Chapter Four

The Fear of the Unknown Future

Among the many fears of human life, one of the most constant is the fear of the unknown future. A person sits quietly, and the mind begins to wander — what will happen to me tomorrow, what will become of me in the days to come? He does not know what tomorrow holds, yet the mind imagines, again and again, that something difficult is about to occur.

Such imagining is itself only a thought. But where does the thought come from? Bapuji explains that the soul has passed through countless births, descending slowly from age to age — from Satyug, Treta and Dwapar down to the present Kalyug. Through all these lives the deeper, subconscious mind has been filled with negative recordings, with the long stories of birth after birth. When a person falls into deep thought, these old impressions of sorrow rise up on their own and take the shape of fearful imaginings about what is to come.

This is why such imagining is not harmless. As a thought is repeated, it grows stronger, and what a person dwells upon can slowly be drawn into his life. Thinking is itself a kind of action, for action is done through mind, word, and deed. As one thinks, so one becomes. If a person thinks well, good comes to him; if he fills the mind with fear, he draws fear toward himself.

◆ Insight: “Jaisa sochoge, waisa paoge.”

“As you think, so you shall become.”

Bapuji gives an example. An astrologer once told a man that he would meet with an accident that month. From that day the man walked in constant fear — the accident is about to happen, it is about to happen — and by holding that one fearful thought day and night, he himself could draw the very event toward him. The fruit of action recorded within the soul is so deep that, Bapuji says, not even Brahma, Vishnu, or Shankar can erase it.

For this reason Bapuji advises the seeker to stop running to those who only frighten him. Such people fill the mind with fear and quietly take away one's peace, while the powers they speak of hold no sway over a soul that remembers the Supreme directly. Turn straight to the Supreme, rather than to anyone who trades in fear.

Imagination means thought, and the thought a person holds shapes his aura; the aura shapes his present, and the present shapes his future. So if the future is to change, the thought itself must change. Do not give way to fear. Recognise yourself as the soul, settle in the soul-form, and turn the mind toward the higher aim.

Imagination can also be turned to good. Sitting in the soul-form, a person can hold the formless stage and quietly think: I am in Paramdham; I am formless; I am drawing power from the Almighty Authority. The cosmos is not mere fancy — it is real, and the soul's thoughts truly travel. A thought held in this way begins to turn into reality. As one thinks, so one receives.

Negative thinking cannot simply be forced to stop, for the mind keeps returning to what already lies in the subconscious — the impressions of many births. These impressions shape the intellect, and the intellect shapes the decisions of the mind. To break this, knowledge must come first. Then, settled in the soul-form, the soul connects with the Almighty Authority through yog, and power flows in. This power is the supreme light, the param prakash, which is the true food of the soul. As the soul fills with this light, the mind changes, the intellect changes, and the impressions themselves begin to change.

The first and highest thought a person can hold for himself is this resolution, this sankalp: I am a supreme, great soul of the limitless, made of supreme light; I have come to this earth to complete my own actions and to take part in the transformation of the world. Focusing on such a thought, again and again, keeps the mind turned toward the positive. Do not let the fear of the future enter the heart and mind. Replace the imaginings of sorrow with the remembrance of peace, and the soul begins its journey back toward its own source.

♦ Insight: “Bhavishya ka bhay dil aur dimaag mein aane mat do.”

“Do not let the fear of the future enter your heart and mind.”

Chapter Five

The Root Cannot Be Ignored

Fear does not disappear simply by ignoring it. It cannot be wished away or pushed aside. It must be removed from the root.

Bapuji gives a real example. There was a very wealthy man who became so afraid of a single word — “income tax” — that he was kept for six months in a large hospital in Bombay. Even there, the doctors could not remove that one word from his mind. When he was finally brought home and an income-tax raid took place, he would faint at merely hearing the words “income tax.” He had to make his own mind strong before the fear could leave.

This shows the difference between calming the symptoms and removing the root. A doctor may give a sleeping pill or a sedative so that the conscious and subconscious mind quieten for a while, and for a time the fear seems to vanish. But calming the symptoms is not the same as removing the cause. The fear has not gone; it has only been put to sleep.

♦ Insight: “Mann ko mazboot karna padta hai — gyan se.”

“The mind has to be made strong — and that strength comes through knowledge.”

Fear cannot be washed out by outer comfort or by medication alone. It must be transformed — and the mind becomes strong enough for that only through knowledge.

Chapter Six

The Aura, the Mind, and the Sanskar

To remove the recordings of fear, the inner field of the human being must be cleansed. Bapuji explains that the aura itself carries our fears and impressions, and that the aura must be changed before the mind can change deeply.

First the aura is washed out. As the aura begins to change, the mind slowly changes with it. Without changing the vibration, the mind cannot truly be changed; vibration is what shapes both fear and fearless living.

Fear lives in the mind. Within the mind works the intellect — the buddhi. And within the intellect lie the sanskar, the deep impressions the soul carries. These three work together: when fear enters, it moves through the mind, into the intellect, and settles as an impression.

Whatever we do again and again becomes a sanskar. Fear repeated many times becomes a sanskar of fear. And once fear has become a sanskar, the mind becomes fearful and the intellect becomes fearful too — the whole inner instrument is coloured by fear.

◆ Insight: “Jo baar baar karte hain, wahi sanskar ban jaata hai.”

“Whatever we do again and again becomes a sanskar.”

To wash out such a recording, power is needed, just as a recording must be erased before a new one can be made. And that power does not come from outside. It comes through knowledge.

Chapter Seven

The Witness and the Feeling

There is a state in which fear loses its grip — the state of the witness, the sakshi drashta. To watch what happens while remaining a witness is itself a form of knowledge.

But this witnessing is not cold indifference. It is to remain settled in the soul-form, the atma swaroop, and to watch in the remembrance of the Supreme. From that state a person can see even a coming event and remain steady, knowing within: this is only the passing play of the world; this is simply how things move.

When a person does not fall into the feeling, the event does not record itself in the subconscious. Whatever happens before you, you remain calm, knowing, “their matter is theirs — what do I have to do with it?” Detached observation, held in the soul-form, weakens fear at its root.

Feeling-based reaction does the opposite — it strengthens fear. When a person sees an accident on the road and at once feels, “this could happen to me,” that feeling lodges in the heart and does not leave. Each time he hears or sees such a thing again, he loses his energy once more, and the soul slips back into its weakened state. This is why one should never feed fear with emotional energy.

♦ Insight: “Dekhte hue na dekho, sunte hue na suno.”

“See without being shaken by what you see; hear without being shaken by what you hear.”

When the soul lives in this kind of emotional dependence, it grows weak; the person cannot even do his ordinary work well, remains scattered and lost, and is unable to gather his strength in one place.

Bapuji reminds us that Krishna said the very same thing in the Gita: do not grieve, for grief is the root of everything; who will live and who will die is not your concern — do your own action. See without being shaken by what you see; hear without being shaken by what you hear. Go beyond mere reaction, and stay established in the soul-form.

Chapter Eight

The Social Animal

Among all the fears of human life, one is the greatest — the fear of society. The human being is a social creature, and so the biggest fear that grips him is the fear of “what will people say.”

Society is made of relatives — uncles, aunts, family, friends. If I do one thing, what will this relative say? What will that one think? What will my friends say? This single worry rules the human being. People also fear lack and comparison: “I do not have a car, others have a car, I have nothing.” Such thoughts keep a person permanently afraid. Yet this fear is nothing but one’s own thinking. A person becomes afraid because of his own thoughts.

Bapuji points to what this fear does in everyday life. To keep up with others and to hold on to a certain status, people fall into debt — a loan on the house, a loan on the car, on the fridge, on the television — until the burden grows heavier than the income can carry. When the instalments cannot be paid and possessions are taken away, the worry turns inward and becomes an illness of the mind. In this way the fear of society quietly breeds the very diseases of the mind.

♦ Insight: “Darr gaya so mar gaya.”

“One who is overcome by fear is as good as dead.”

When the soul becomes weak, the human being turns into a social creature — a mere prani. He no longer lives as a true human being; he lives as a creature driven by fear. And he fears the world only because the power of his soul has decreased.

♦ Insight: “Aatma jab kamzor hoti hai, to manushya samajik prani ban jaata hai.”

“When the soul becomes weak, the human being turns into a social creature.”

Excessive desire feeds this fear still further. The more the desires multiply, the more they remain unfulfilled, and the soul, restless and wanting, cannot become fearless.

But when the power of the soul awakens, everything changes. Man becomes fearless only when soul-power rises within him. And the moment true knowledge comes, the very thinking changes — the thoughts that once produced fear simply dissolve.

♦ Insight: “Insaan apni hi soch se darta hai; magar jab gyan aata hai, to soch badal jaati hai.”

“A person is afraid because of his own thinking; but when knowledge comes, the thinking changes.”

Chapter Nine

Knowing the Soul

The first step toward fearlessness is atma gyan — the knowledge of the soul. To be free of fear, the soul first needs knowledge, and the very first knowledge is the knowledge of the soul and of the Supreme.

Recognise yourself. Who are you? What are you? Where have you come from? Know this first. The dwellers of this earth are almost nothing in the vastness of creation — not even the smallest fraction of it. Souls have come from far away — from distant galaxies, from across the universe. To know where you have come from, and why, gives the soul a deep stability that no outer event can shake.

I am a soul, and it is the soul that runs everything — the mind, the intellect, the sanskar. The recording of fear is held within the soul, and to change it the soul must have power. The soul that has grown weak must once again be filled with strength.

And the soul is not ordinary. Bapuji says: do not think of yourself as a small, common soul. Know instead, “I am a high soul, a behad ki atma — a soul of the limitless — and within me is the power of the limitless.” When the soul knows its own nature, power flows into it. The recognition of the soul and of the Supreme brings strength, and with that strength the fear of the world falls away. Then a person no longer cares for the endless opinions of relatives; he crosses the worldly ocean, the bhavsagar, through knowledge alone.

“Who are you, what are you, where have you come from — know this first.”

This is also where the fear of death is healed. The fear of death is tied to the belief that I am this body. But the soul was never meant to remain trapped in the cage of the five elements. This earth, this physical life, is mrityu lok, the realm of death, and it is meant to be used only as a crossing — a passage toward the soul’s true and immortal home. Knowing this, even the fear of death loosens its hold.

Chapter Ten

The Fear of Death

Of all fears, the fear of death sits deepest in the human being. This world is mrityu lok, the realm of death, and so a quiet fear of dying is always present here. Yet Bapuji says that this fear too can be removed — and it is removed through knowledge alone.

The first thing to understand is what death really is. The body is made only of the five elements; it is not the self. When this body is left behind, the soul becomes light, freed from the heavy entanglements of the body and of all its worldly relations. These bonds belong to the play of the world, the great net of maya, and in laying down the body the soul is released from that net.

For one who has knowledge, there is a better and greater life after death. With the supreme knowledge of the limitless within him, the soul can rise straight upward to Paramdham, the supreme abode. Death, then, is not an ending to be dreaded, but a passage to a higher life.

♦ Insight: “Gyani ke liye mrityu ke baad better aur greater life hoti hai.”

“For one who has knowledge, there is a better and greater life after death.”

Seen in this light, Bapuji says, death should not be mourned but welcomed. For such a soul, the leaving of the body is a farewell, a festival — for the soul sets down the body and travels to the higher realms. Where the world weeps, the one who knows can quietly rejoice.

♦ Insight: “Mrityu ko utsav manana chahiye — mahotsav.”

“Death should be observed as a celebration — a festival.”

No amount of wealth or power can buy freedom from this fear. However rich a man may be — owning private planes and costly cars, the wealth of many nations, the position of a ruler — he still carries the fear of death within him. And where there is fear, there can be no true peace. Freedom from this fear cannot be purchased; it can only be received through knowledge.

Bapuji also speaks of the realms that lie above this earth. Beyond this world there is a higher realm, the swarg lok, where the body is not of five elements but of three, and where a soul may dwell for a very long span of time. Because there is no death in that realm, there is also no fear there. He cautions, however, that this heaven is not somewhere here upon the earth, as some wrongly teach; it is a real higher world, reached after death by the soul that carries knowledge.

When the soul gathers enough power through knowledge, it may even receive the boon of leaving the body at will — iccha mrityu — as the great grandsire Bhishma once held. This comes only to a soul that has grown strong upon the path of knowledge.

The way is clear. Settle in the soul-form, practise being the soul, and through knowledge come to know that death is the supreme truth of this realm of death — that everyone who comes here must one day leave. When the soul knows this, and knows that a greater life lies beyond, it becomes fearless. It becomes filled with knowledge, can rest in the formless stage, and is freed at last from the cycle of birth and death.

♦ Insight: “Gyan se aatma nirbhay ban jaati hai.”

“Through knowledge the soul becomes fearless.”

As the seeker dives into the ocean of knowledge, detachment, or vairagya, quietly arises, and through yog the soul connects with the Supreme until the accounts of all its actions are settled. Then comes the karma-transcendent state, the karmatit avastha, in which the soul becomes free of desire and free of vice. Such a life of purity is a life of deep happiness, and the mind itself becomes clean. In that state, when its time is complete, the soul lays down the body of its own accord — without struggle, and without fear.

Chapter Eleven

My Karma Is My Own

Understanding karma helps the soul face fear in the right way. Knowing the theory of karma makes the soul strong, for it teaches the soul exactly what belongs to it and what does not.

The soul that suffered or died in a past life carried its own actions; my actions are separate. Another's karma does not apply to me, and I do not have to carry the weight of what belongs to someone else. When the soul understands this clearly, a great burden of borrowed fear simply falls away.

Bapuji returns to the man who lost his wealth in the raid. Through knowledge, that man could finally settle his own mind: “Whatever was taken was taken. The wealth I had gathered through wrong means — asuri lakshmi — has gone. They are doing their work; I will do mine. From now I will earn devi lakshmi, honest and honourable wealth.” Once he understood his own karma and accepted it, the fear could no longer touch him.

♦ Insight: “Mere karm alag hain; doosre ke karm mujhe laagu nahi padte.”

“My karmas are my own; another’s karmas do not apply to me.”

One who truly understands the theory of karma is never touched in the subconscious by these fears. A soul becomes strong the moment it accepts its own karmic responsibility — owning what is its own, and releasing what is not.

Chapter Twelve

The Power of the Almighty

The soul must become powerful enough to wash out the recordings of fear, and that power comes from the Almighty Authority — the supreme source of all strength.

When the soul becomes soul-conscious, settled in atma swaroop, and remembers the Supreme, it draws power down from the high abode, Paramdham. That power flows straight into the subconscious and washes out the stories stored there — even the bonds of karma and the weight of past wrong actions begin to dissolve.

The soul that knows it is a soul of the limitless naturally seeks to know the Almighty Authority. It dives into the ocean of knowledge — the gyan sagar — and churns the ocean of thought, the vichar sagar manthan, until understanding becomes its own strength.

Bapuji explains why this knowledge must be the knowledge of the limitless — behad gyan. The scriptures and Vedas we have describe only one cosmos: the account of Brahma, Vishnu, Shiv, and Shankar. Beyond that they do not go. They do not tell us when the great dissolution of the infinite-crore cosmoses takes place, nor what the galaxies, the great cosmos, and the maha kaal truly are. These are the things the awakening soul must come to know; this is the path of the limitless.

When a soul chooses this path and walks in behad gyan, power comes to it on its own. The recordings within the soul fall away. And when those recordings are gone, no frightening dream can come to it either — for there is nothing left inside for fear to feed upon.

Chapter Thirteen

The Supreme Is With Me

The deepest protection against fear is the constant remembrance of the Supreme — the company of the Supreme, Paramatma sang. The positive power that removes fear comes only from the Supreme, only through knowledge. The one who truly makes the soul fearless is the Supreme alone.

If the Supreme is with you, will you fear the world? When a soul feels, every moment, that “the Supreme is with me,” it stops depending on the world for its security, and the fear of people, opinion, and loss loosens its grip.

Bapuji recalls Narsi Mehta, against whom the whole world turned, yet who was never afraid, because he carried one certainty within: “God is with me.” He recalls Mira, who left the entire world behind and became Mira of Girdhar Gopal; even when danger was sent to her, she felt no fear, for she felt the Supreme as her very own. One who lives in this remembrance, who keeps the company of the Supreme at every moment, simply does not fear the world.

Bapuji even speaks of the bomb that can fall anywhere. Millions sit in their temples and places of worship, and yet bombs fall everywhere; no outer place is truly safe. But understand it this way: one who is seated in the remembrance of the Supreme — if a bomb falls and he leaves the body — his end is true, and he goes to the supreme abode, to Paramdham. For such a soul, where is there to fall? There is only the journey home.

♦ Insight: “Jiske saath Paramatma ka saath hai, wah duniya se kyun darega?”

“One who has the company of the Supreme — why would he fear the world?”

This is why faith in the Supreme keeps the soul unshaken even in danger. Such fearlessness is not carelessness; it is spiritual maturity. Fearless living is the result of inner knowledge, not of outer force. A fearless soul is not shaken by worldly loss or gain, is not ruled by the fear of status, wealth, or lack, and becomes free from all social dependency.

Chapter Fourteen

The Vibration of Paramshanti

Bapuji gives a living practice for daily life: spread the vibration of Paramshanti. Think Paramshanti, speak Paramshanti, and supreme peace you shall receive. These peaceful vibrations dissolve the negative recordings within.

Stay in the soul-form, remain in the remembrance of the Supreme, perform desireless action — nishkam karma — and quietly hold the supreme peace within. As this continues, the gross body, the causal body, and the great-causal body slowly become deeply peaceful, and wrong actions, the vikarma, are dissolved.

The mind and intellect grow strong. The intellect becomes refined, and supreme peace settles into it. The aura itself fills with Paramshanti, so that wherever such a soul goes, peace spreads around it. Peace-filled thoughts create a peaceful aura, and a peaceful aura is itself a protection.

This peaceful vibration guards not only the mind but the very atmosphere of the home. If there is a negative force within a home, it flees before the vibration of Paramshanti. Even the negative dreams that someone may try to send no longer reach the one who is filled with this peace.

◆ Insight: “Param Shanti socho, bolo — Param Shanti mil jaayegi.”

“Think Paramshanti, speak Paramshanti — and supreme peace you shall receive.”

So change the vibration of the home, and the fear that lives within the home is reduced. The same peace that steadies the soul also steadies the space around it.

Chapter Fifteen

The Practice of Fearlessness

Knowledge held only as belief is not enough. It must become practice — the practice of knowledge, the practice of bringing that knowledge into one's conduct, and the practice of changing oneself. The soul's very first subject is knowledge, but knowledge unused will not free anyone.

Until a person takes up this practice, he will live in fear and die in fear. The fear of death itself remains just as strong, because the inner work was never done.

Bapuji reminds us of the Gita once more. The Lord said: know Me — and you will know Me through knowledge; the soul of knowledge is especially dear to Me. I am not attained through meditation alone, but through knowledge. Dive into the ocean of knowledge, churn the ocean of thought, understand your karma, become soul-conscious, and remember Me — and all your wrong actions will be destroyed, the soul will grow strong, and in the end I will take you to the supreme abode, to Paramdham.

This is the entire path, gathered into one. The ultimate cure for fear is self-knowledge, soul-power, the understanding of karma, and the remembrance of the Supreme. The way out of fear is to become soul-conscious and Paramshanti-conscious.

♦ Insight: “Insaan dar dar ke hi jiyega aur dar dar ke hi marega — jab tak gyan ko aacharan mein na laaye.”

“A person will live in fear and die in fear — until he brings knowledge into his conduct.”

The fearless soul lives as a witness, not as a victim. It is not carried away by every wave of the world, nor crushed by every loss. And this is the highest freedom of all: to remain fearless while still living fully in the world — present in every duty, yet untouched by fear, because the soul knows who it is and knows that the Supreme is always with it.

Bapuji Insights

A gathering of Bapuji's own words from these discourses.

◆ Insight: “Yahaan dharti par manushya ko kai prakaar ke bhay hain.”

“Here on this earth, the human being carries many kinds of fear.”

◆ Insight: “Jaisa sochoge, waisa paoge.”

“As you think, so you shall become.”

“Do not let the fear of the future enter your heart and mind.”

◆ Insight: “Mann ko mazboot karna padta hai — gyan se.”

“The mind has to be made strong — and that strength comes through knowledge.”

◆ Insight: “Jo baar baar karte hain, wahi sanskar ban jaata hai.”

“Whatever we do again and again becomes a sanskar.”

◆ Insight: “Dekhte hue na dekho, sunte hue na suno.”

“See without being shaken by what you see; hear without being shaken by what you hear.”

◆ Insight: “Darr gaya so mar gaya.”

“One who is overcome by fear is as good as dead.”

“When the soul becomes weak, the human being turns into a social creature.”

“Who are you, what are you, where have you come from — know this first.”

◆ Insight: “Mere karm alag hain; doosre ke karm mujhe laagu nahi padte.”

“My karmas are my own; another’s karmas do not apply to me.”

◆ Insight: “Gyani ke liye mrityu ke baad better aur greater life hoti hai.”

“For one who has knowledge, there is a better and greater life after death.”

◆ Insight: “Mrityu ko utsav manana chahiye — mahotsav.”

“Death should be observed as a celebration — a festival.”

◆ Insight: “Gyan se aatma nirbhay ban jaati hai.”

“Through knowledge the soul becomes fearless.”

◆ Insight: “Jiske saath Paramatma ka saath hai, wah duniya se kyun darega?”

“One who has the company of the Supreme — why would he fear the world?”

◆ Insight: “Param Shanti socho, bolo — Param Shanti mil jaayegi.”

“Think Paramshanti, speak Paramshanti — and supreme peace you shall receive.”

◆ Insight: “Insaan dar dar ke hi jiyega aur dar dar ke hi marega — jab tak gyan ko aacharan mein na laaye.”

“A person will live in fear and die in fear — until he brings knowledge into his conduct.”

Theory of Karma (Law of Karma) — The cosmic law that every action carries a result, shaping the soul's future.

Vairagya — Detachment; the natural turning away from worldly craving that arises as knowledge grows within the soul.

Vibration (Spandan) — The subtle effect that radiates outward from a thought, word, or intention.

Vichar Sagar Manthan — The churning of the ocean of thought; deep, reflective contemplation.

Vikarma — Wrong or sinful action that binds the soul to lower states.

Yog — The conscious connection between the soul and the Supreme, through which power is drawn into the soul.

Video Sources

The teachings presented in this book have been drawn from a series of discourses delivered by Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel on the subject of fear and fearlessness — the nature and roots of fear, how it is recorded within the mind, and the path of self-knowledge, karma, soul-power, and the remembrance of the Supreme through which the soul becomes free of it. The complete video discourses on which this book is based are available freely as a curated playlist on the official YouTube channel.

Readers are warmly encouraged to explore the original discourses for a deeper and more direct understanding. Hearing Bapuji's own voice carries a vibration that no written word can fully convey. The book and the videos are best received together — the book for quiet reflection, the videos for the living transmission.

“Gyan Daan Maha Daan”

Sharing Knowledge is the Highest Charity

— Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel

Fear is not conquered by force. It is dissolved by knowledge.

This book explores the deeper roots of fear,
the hidden impressions carried within the soul,
and the path toward true inner freedom.

Through self-knowledge, understanding of karma, soul-consciousness, and remembrance of the Supreme,
the seeker discovers a state beyond anxiety,
beyond uncertainty, and beyond the fear of death itself.

The soul becomes fearless when it remembers who it truly is.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

"Gyan se aatma nirbhay ban jaati hai."

"Through knowledge the soul becomes fearless."
