About Bapuji

Bapuji (full name: Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly called “Dadaji” by the younger generation) was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. However, he spent his childhood in another village named Ambasan, also located in the Mehsana district.

In the early part of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realizing the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realize their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on Earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy (CA), he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law (LLB) degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called “Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay” in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as “Maa,” worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to 18 hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realized through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of superconsciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji’s teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy, and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as “behad souls.” According to Bapuji, these “behad souls” will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

Few questions are as old as the question of how Earth came to be. Every civilisation, every wisdom tradition, every honest seeker has asked it. Where did this planet come from? Why are we standing on it? What place does it hold in the larger picture of creation?

Modern science gives us one set of answers. It speaks of cosmic explosions, of cooling matter, of biological evolution. Within its instruments, it has done remarkable work. But there is another set of answers — deeper, older, and far more complete — that science cannot yet reach. These are the answers that Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel has shared in his discourses, from a state of direct spiritual realisation.

This book is a small offering drawn from those discourses. It is not an academic study. It is not a scientific paper. It is a faithful presentation of what Bapuji has shared on the origin of our Earth, the descent of souls from higher worlds, the changing rhythms of cosmic time, and the deep transformation that is coming. Every teaching here can be traced back to Bapuji’s own words. Nothing has been added from outside.

The book is offered in the spirit of Gyan Daan Maha Daan. It is a free gift of knowledge, meant for sincere seekers of every background. If even one truth in these pages touches your heart and helps you see your life on Earth in a new light, the entire purpose of this book will be fulfilled.

May your reading of these pages be peaceful. May the deep truths inside them slowly open within you. And may you find, in time, the way back to the supreme source from which you yourself once came.

Chapter I

Before Earth Existed

There is a question that quietly sits inside every human heart. Where did this Earth come from? Was it always here? And if it was created, who created it, when, and why?

Modern science offers one set of answers. It speaks of a great explosion billions of years ago, of cosmic dust slowly gathering, of a young planet cooling down over endless ages. Science describes only what it can measure, and within that limit, it has done remarkable work.

But Bapuji explains that the truer story of Earth begins much earlier than any telescope can reach. It begins before the planets, before the stars, before even our galaxy. It begins in a state of creation that is not made of matter at all.

There was no need for an Earth. Hence Earth did not exist before.

This single sentence holds the key to everything that follows. Earth was not an accident. Earth was not an eternal fact of the universe. Earth was created — carefully, deliberately, out of necessity — at a specific stage in the unfolding of the great cosmic drama.

To understand the birth of Earth, we must first understand what existed before it.

A World Without Need of a Planet

In the very beginning, there were no planets like ours. There were no human bodies of flesh and bone. There were no oceans, mountains, or atmospheres in the way we know them today. The original creation existed in a much higher, much lighter form. It was a world of Param Tatva — supreme essence, Supreme elements, or supreme light

In that original creation, beings did not need food to live, water to drink, or air to breathe. Their bodies were not heavy. Their souls were not burdened. They lived in a state of natural light, supported entirely by their own inner divine power. There was no death. There was no darkness. There was no decay. There was no struggle. The very idea of needing a solid planet beneath one's feet had not yet appeared in creation.

It is only when we understand this beginning that the appearance of Earth makes sense. Earth did not come first. The descent of souls came first. As beings, slowly fell from their original luminous state into denser and denser forms/elements/ tattva, a place was needed where they could land, settle, and continue their journey. That place became our Earth.

“In the beginning, there was no need to create Earth, because everyone existed in the world of supreme essence.”

Why This Knowledge Matters

If we believe Earth has always been here, we will treat it as just a rock floating in space. We will treat ourselves as accidents of biology. We will live small lives, struggle endlessly, and die without ever knowing who we truly are.

But if we understand that Earth was created with a divine purpose, and that we ourselves descended from a much higher realms, everything changes. Our suffering becomes meaningful. Our spiritual longing becomes natural. Our search for peace becomes the most important journey of our life.

This book is an invitation to walk that journey. To begin where everything truly began — not with rocks and gases, but with light and consciousness. To understand how Earth was formed not just by physical forces, but by the descending will of beings far greater than ourselves.

Let us begin at the true beginning.

Chapter II

The Original Creation

Before Earth, Sun or even galaxy, there was a state of pure divine essence. Bapuji calls this state Param Tattva — the supreme element, the original divine substance from which other creation eventually descends on this universe. Let us understand this with more clarity

The Nirakar Form of Shiv

The original creator of our Brahmand (solar system) is described in the scriptures by many names. He is called Shiv Nirakar — the formless Shiv. He is also called Parabrahm Parameshwar. He is the original supreme light, the source of all power for this particular solar system.

In this formless state, everywhere there was only the fragrance of supreme essence. Everywhere there was supreme light. Everywhere there was the supreme soul. There was no need for stars to light up the darkness, because there was no darkness. There was no need for bodies to hold souls, because the souls themselves were luminous.

From this formless reality, a single divine wish- sankalp, arose. A wish to expand. A sankalp, to create. A sankalp, to become more than one.

The First Sankalp

Bapuji explains that the original creator used divine inner power to make a single sacred thought, called a sankalp, to begin creation. Creation did not happen by suddenly making physical matter from nothing. Instead, it happened naturally through divine will and intention.

The supreme power held a gentle wish within itself, and from that wish creation slowly unfolded. The first creation was not heavy planets or complex material worlds. It was simple, light, and full of divine radiance.

These first divine beings or forms were made of pure supreme essence. They did not need land, food, sleep, or any physical support. They existed as forms of divine light, free to move and expand, taking part in the beginning of the great cosmic play of creation. Paramshanti (supreme peace)

♦ “Shiv Niraakar ne apne power se sankalp kiya, aur srishti ki rachna shuru hui.”

“The formless Shiv used his own power to form a divine wish, and the creation of the world began.”

Why the Original World Was Pure Light

Whenever a creator brings forth a creation, the creation naturally carries the quality of the creator. A potter's pot carries the imprint of the potter's hands. A writer's book carries the voice of the writer. In the same way, when the supreme formless light ( Nirakar Shiv) brought forth the first creation, that creation was also made of supreme light. It could not be otherwise. The original world was a Param Prakash world — a world of supreme light.

There was no shadow. There was no heaviness. There was no death. The very concepts of darkness, decay, and disease had not yet entered creation. These would come much later, as creation gradually descended into denser forms.

This is the truth that we must keep in our hearts as we move forward. The original creation was not a struggle. It was not painful or dark. It was a creation made entirely of supreme essence, supreme light, supreme peace. Everything that we now experience as suffering on Earth is the result of a long descent from that original luminous state.

The story of how Earth came to be is, in many ways, the story of how creation slowly stepped down from its original glory into the dense five-element world we know today. To understand that descent, we must now look at the sequence of beings that emerged from the original formless reality.

Chapter III

The Beginning of Creation

From the formless supreme light, creation unfolded in a beautiful, ordered sequence. Each stage gave rise to the next. Each stage was a little more defined, a little more individual, a little more involved in the play of cosmic existence. But each of these earliest stages was still made entirely of supreme essence. The heavy world of five elements had not yet appeared. Bapuji describes this sequence in a way that aligns with the deepest scriptural traditions, but explained in a manner that any sincere seeker can understand. Let us walk through it slowly.

From Nirakar to Aakaar

Bapuji explains that the first step of creation was the movement from the formless to the formed. From the formless Shiv emerged a divine feminine power called Shakti. Together they became Shiv-Shakti — the union of supreme consciousness and supreme power. This was the first divine form to appear within pure divine essence.

From Shiv-Shakti came Vishnu, and from Vishnu appeared his divine feminine power, Lakshmi. Later, Brahma emerged from Vishnu's navel to continue the work of creation.

These divine forms were not physical bodies made of flesh or bones. They did not need planets, air, food, or sleep. They existed as pure divine energy and light in more visible forms. Each one carried the same supreme power of the original formless Shiv.

The Saptarishi

From Brahma, the divine sankalp continued to flow outward. Brahma brought forth the Saptarishi — the seven great seers, the seven primordial beings of light. They are the same seers that the scriptures describe as forever associated with the formless Shiv.

These Saptarishi were not human beings as we are today. Their bodies were entirely made of Param Tattva. They shone with the very same supreme light as their creator. They lived without the slightest experience of struggle, sickness, or death.

Wherever a creator brings forth a creation, the creation first takes on the creator's own quality. Brahma was made of supreme essence, and so the beings born from him were also made of supreme essence. This is a pattern we will see again and again as creation continues its descent.

The Three Manas Putras

From the Saptarishi, the next stage of creation appeared. They brought forth three manas putras — sons born from the mind, born from divine wish alone.

Once again, the quality of the creators carried into the new creation. The three manas putras had bodies of the highest quality, made of Param Purush essence. They were luminous beings, free of any heaviness, free of any need for material support.

At this stage of creation, there was still no need for a planet. There was no need for an Earth. The beings that had been brought forth could exist freely, supported by their own inner divine essence. The very idea of a heavy, solid, planetary home for souls had not yet arisen, because no soul had yet become heavy enough to need such a home.

But the descent had quietly begun.

♦ “Saptarishiyon ki body Param Tatva ki thi, aur unke teen manas putron ki body bhi Param Purush ki thi.”

“The bodies of the Saptarishi were of supreme essence, and the bodies of their three mind-born sons were also of supreme essence.”

The Sequence of Elements

Bapuji explains the descent of creation through a simple but profound sequence. In the very beginning, there was only Param Tattva — supreme essence / elements. Param Akash (Supreme ether), Param Vayu (Supreme air), and Param Agni (Supreme fire). Then, slowly, these supreme elements began to express itself through three subtle elements: Akash (ether), Vayu (air), and Agni (fire).

The earliest descended beings carried bodies made of just these three supreme elements. Their forms were luminous. They were not yet weighed down by the two heavier elements — water and earth — that would only enter creation later. This is why, in this earliest stage, no being needed a planet. The three subtle supreme elements alone were enough to sustain a divine body. Only when water and earth began to enter along with ether, air, fire and thicken these bodies did the need for a physical, planetary home arise. This is the pattern of the great descent: from supreme essence to three elements, from three elements to five elements.

From the world of light to the world of matter, from a creation that needed no planet to a creation that absolutely required one. And it is in the middle of this descent that our Earth was eventually born.

Chapter IV

When Original Beings Were Deathless and Luminous

Try to picture, for a moment, a being who has never tasted death. A being who has never been hungry. A being who has never grown tired, never been wounded, never grown old. A being whose body is not flesh but living light, and whose soul moves freely without ever being trapped.

This is not a fairy tale. According to Bapuji, this is exactly how the first creation lived. Before Earth, five-element body, descent into density, the original beings were deathless and luminous. They did not die the way humans die now. They did not even know what death was. Death was created much later. Bapuji has spoken about “Birth of Death”. Same book is available for reader to understand the subject in depth.

Why There Was No Death

Death, as we know it on Earth, is the separation of a soul from a heavy, five-element body. The body is made of earth, water, fire, air, and space; and when the soul leaves, this body crumbles back into the elements it came from. But the earliest beings did not have such a body. Their bodies were made of Param Tattva — three subtle supreme elements only, with no heavy elements of water and earth element in them. There was simply no mechanism for the kind of crumbling we now call death.

Their bodies were light. Their bodies were luminous. Their souls moved through them freely, without burden. There was no aging, because there was no decay. There was no sickness, because there was no imbalance. There was no separation, because there was no heaviness for the soul to be torn away from. In this state, the soul’s power was original and vast. The soul did not have to fight through a layer of flesh to express itself. The soul did not have to push through karma to act. The soul shone naturally, and through that shining, life expressed itself with effortless beauty.

The Original Body and Its Composition

Bapuji repeatedly emphasises one key point. The earliest bodies were made only of supreme essence and the three supreme elements. Inside them moved Param Akash, Param Vayu, and Param Agni — the supreme space, supreme air, and supreme fire. The two heavier elements — water and earth — had not yet entered. This is why the original body could not die in any ordinary sense. A body simply does not have the conditions in which death can take place.

♦ “Pehle ki body bahut halki thi, isliye mritu ka koi sawal hi nahi tha.”

“The earliest bodies were extremely light, and therefore the very question of death did not arise.”

Souls That Could Move Freely

Because the body was so light, the soul inside was free. The soul's natural power was not blocked. A soul, by its own nature, is a point of conscious energy with vast potential. But when a soul becomes wrapped in heavy layers of body and matter, its power is dimmed, just as a lantern's light is dimmed when thick covers are placed over it. Multiple rebirths reduces what the soul can express. This is why, in our present human condition, we feel weak, limited, and trapped. The original beings had no such covers. The soul shone directly through the body, and the body responded to the soul instantly.

In such a state, the soul could move freely between realms. It could travel without struggle. It could create and uncreate as it wished. It carried its full original power. Whatever the soul thought, the body and the surroundings followed without resistance. This is the simple reality of an existence in which density had not yet hardened into a prison.

Why This Memory Lives Inside Us

If we look honestly inside ourselves, we will find a faint but unmistakable memory of this original state. Every human heart longs for freedom from heaviness. Every human soul yearns to fly, to be light, to be unburdened. Every human being, deep within, dreams of a place where there is no death, no disease, no sorrow. This longing is not a fantasy. It is a soul memory.

It is the soul remembering, from a very deep place, what life used to be before the descent began. When the soul lived in a body of supreme essence. When death had not yet been created. When freedom was the natural condition of existence. The Earth we now stand on, the body we now carry, the death we now fear — all of these came later. To understand how they came, we must now turn to the great cosmic measure of time that Bapuji uses to describe the unfolding of creation: the time of Brahma.

Chapter V

The Cosmic Time of Brahma

To understand when Earth was created, we must think beyond normal human years. Human years and even centuries are too small to measure such cosmic events. Bapuji explains that creation happens across enormous spans of time. That is why the scriptures use the time scale of Brahma.

Just as humans may live for about a hundred years, Brahma is said to live for a hundred cosmic years. But Brahma's years are far greater than earthly years. Each one covers vast cycles of cosmic time.

The Structure of Brahma's Life

Bapuji explains the structure simply. Brahma's full lifespan is said to be one hundred cosmic years. These hundred years are divided into two halves, called parardh, with fifty years in each half.

According to the scriptures, Brahma's first parardh is already complete, and we are now in the second parardh. In this second half, we are passing through the 7th Manvantar 28th Yugantar Kaliyug cycle. This is described as our present place within Brahma's cosmic timeline.

Each division — parardh, Manvantar, kalp, and yuga — represents an enormous span of time. Even one day of Brahma is unimaginably long by human standards. His years are made of many such cosmic days and nights, making his full lifespan almost impossible for the human mind to fully grasp.

Why This Matters for Earth

Earth's creation is dated within this great cosmic clock. Earth was not made at the very beginning of Brahma's life. Bapuji says clearly: for the first ten years of Brahma, there was no need to create Earth at all. The beings of that early stage were entirely of supreme essence. They did not need a planet to support them. They did not need a Sun to light them. They lived in the natural luminosity of their own Param Tattva bodies, and that was enough. Even in the years that followed, there was still no death and still no clear need for a planet like Earth. The descent had not yet accelerated. The bodies had not yet become heavy enough to require a planetary home. Readers are encouraged to read Bapuji's another gem " life in Multiverse " to understand cosmic time in detail.

◆ "Brahma ke pehle 10 saal tak dharti banane ki zaroorat hi nahi padi, aur agle 10 saal tak bhi mrityu nahi thi."

"For the first ten years of Brahma, there was no need to create Earth at all, and even for the next ten years, death did not yet exist."

The Cosmic Clock Behind Our Story

This way of measuring time may seem unusual to a modern reader. But it is the only way to tell the truthful story of creation. If we try to fit the birth of Earth into the small frame of millions or even billions of human years, we will always miss something. We will miss the great descent. We will miss the original luminous state. We will miss the slow and patient unfolding by which creation moved from supreme essence into matter.

By using Brahma's years as our measure, we can hold the entire story in a single frame. We can see when Earth was needed and when it was not. We can see how long the descent had been happening before our planet came into being. And we can begin to see why our Earth carries the special burden that it does: the burden of being a meeting place for souls who have fallen far from their original home.

Now that we understand the cosmic clock, we are ready to ask the next great question. Why was Earth created at all? What was the cosmic situation that finally made a planet like ours necessary?

Chapter VI

Why And How Earth Was Created

Earth was not created by accident. Earth was not formed merely to decorate the universe with mountains, oceans, and life. According to Bapuji, Earth came into existence because a deep cosmic necessity arose during the gradual descent of souls through creation.

In the earliest stages of existence, there was no need for planets like Earth at all. The beings of creation existed in luminous bodies formed primarily from Param Tatva — supreme essence / elements. These bodies were subtle, light, powerful, and self-sustaining. Such beings did not require soil beneath their feet, air to breathe, or food to survive. They existed freely within higher realms through the power of their own inner divine energy.

But slowly, over immense spans of cosmic time, a gradual change began.

The Quiet Beginning of Descent

Bapuji explains that every stage of creation carries slightly less of the original supreme power than the stage before it. Whenever a creator brings forth creation, some portion of its power naturally flows into that creation. In this way, the original supreme energy slowly distributes itself outward.

As the formless Shiv expressed creation through the Saptarishi, and as the Saptarishi brought forth the manas putras and further generations of beings, each new generation carried slightly less of the original luminous force. The decline was not sudden. It was extremely gradual, almost impossible to notice at first. The beings still remained radiant and refined for a very long time. Yet inwardly, the proportion of supreme essence within them had begun to decrease.

As these beings multiplied further, their individual power continued to reduce. Their bodies slowly became heavier and more substantial. This gradual thickening marked the beginning of cosmic descent.

The Need for a Place to Settle

Bapuji gives a simple way to understand this process.

Imagine a feather floating effortlessly in the air. As long as it remains light, it can drift freely. But if small droplets of water slowly gather upon it, the feather gradually becomes heavier. Eventually, it can no longer remain suspended. It must come down and rest upon something solid.

The same thing happened during the descent of souls.

As beings became denser, they could no longer remain freely suspended within higher subtle realms. Their changing condition required a suitable environment — a place capable of supporting heavier forms of existence.

That necessity gave rise to Earth. Earth was created as a field where descending souls could settle and continue their journey. Without such a place, the natural progression of creation would have left these beings without support. Earth became the compassionate response to this cosmic need.

Earth as a Field for Souls

From the very beginning, Earth was never merely a physical planet. It was designed as a field for consciousness. It became the place where souls could continue their long journey through denser forms of existence. Here, souls would experience forgetting and remembering, bondage and awakening, descent and eventual return.

This is why Earth is deeply connected to the inner condition of souls. According to Bapuji, Earth exists because of consciousness, and it continuously responds to consciousness. The condition of the planet and the condition of the souls living upon it are inseparably linked.

Modern science can study the atmosphere, oceans, mountains, and chemical structure of Earth. But Bapuji explains that science cannot fully answer the deeper question: Why did Earth come into existence at all? The answer is not found only through matter, but through understanding the gradual descent of consciousness itself.

The Gradual Birth of Earth

Earth did not appear in a single moment. It was not formed through a sudden accident. Its creation unfolded gradually alongside the descent of beings from higher realms. As the bodies of souls became heavier, the field of Earth also became denser. The two processes unfolded together. The thickening of bodies and the thickening of the planet were deeply connected.

The earliest stages of Earth were far lighter and more refined than the dense physical world we know today.

From Param Tattva to the Five Elements

Bapuji explains that the formation of Earth began as the original Param Tatva world slowly expressed itself through coarser layers of existence. The three subtle supreme elements — Param Akash (supreme ether), Param Vayu (supreme air), and Param Agni (supreme fire) — gradually gave rise to the rougher forms we now recognize as physical space, air, and fire. Alongside these emerged the additional elements of water and earth.

As these heavier elements entered creation, the bodies of descending beings also began receiving subtle coverings of water and earth. At first these coverings were extremely light, almost like delicate veils surrounding luminous bodies. The beings still retained great freedom and spiritual power, but the seed of physical density had now entered creation.

At the same time, the environment surrounding them also began taking physical form. Subtle particles condensed. Layers of matter gathered. Slowly, gently, the field we now call Earth emerged into existence.

Forty Years of Brahma

Bapuji gives a vast cosmic timescale for Earth's formation. He explains that Earth has existed from approximately the fortieth year of Brahma onwards. According to traditional cosmic calculations, this equals roughly twelve hundred and forty kharab years.

This teaching differs greatly from modern scientific estimates regarding the age of Earth. Bapuji explains that science measures only the present dense condition of the planet. It cannot fully detect the earlier subtle stages when Earth existed in a lighter and more luminous form.

From this perspective, the current rocky Earth is only the latest stage of a much older cosmic process.

♦ “Dharti banane ki zaroorat tab padi jab atmaayein neeche utarne lagi aur unko thikana chahiye tha.”

“The need to create Earth arose only when souls began to descend, and a place was needed to receive them.”

---

The Early Earth

The earliest Earth was vastly different from the world we know today. Its atmosphere was lighter. Its waters were finer. Its soil was subtle and refined rather than heavy and dense. Everything carried a greater degree of luminosity and sattvic purity.

The beings who lived upon this early Earth still retained much of their original divine essence. Their bodies were not yet burdened by the heaviness that later developed. Earth during this period did not feel like a prison of matter. It functioned more like a gentle cradle for descending souls.

But this state slowly changed. As more souls descended and their bodies became denser, Earth itself also became denser. The soil thickened. Waters deepened. The atmosphere grew heavier. Step by step, the condition of the planet mirrored the condition of the souls inhabiting it.

Earth and Consciousness

One of the deepest teachings Bapuji gives is that Earth is not separate from consciousness.

Earth is not merely an isolated ball of matter floating in space. It continuously responds to the inner state of the beings living upon it. As consciousness declines, Earth also descends into greater density. As consciousness rises, Earth too has the ability to become lighter and more harmonious.

Modern science can observe only the surface level of this truth — such as how human actions affect climate and ecosystems. But Bapuji points toward something far deeper: the very fabric of the planet responds to the spiritual condition of souls.

This is why Earth has passed through many transformations across cosmic time and why it continues to change even now.

Compassion in the Creation of Earth

At the heart of Earth's creation lies divine compassion.

The supreme reality did not abandon souls as they descended into denser existence. It created a suitable world where they could continue to live, learn, evolve, and eventually rediscover their original nature.

Earth was carefully prepared as a sacred field for falling souls — a place where the long journey back toward supreme essence could unfold.

Every mountain, river, forest, breath of air, and grain of soil exists as part of this compassionate design.

Earth, therefore, is not a meaningless rock drifting through space. It is a sacred realm created with purpose — a home for souls journeying through descent, experience, awakening, and eventual return.

Arrival of Dense Body and Death

Death is so familiar to us that we no longer question it. We assume that everybody must die. We assume that every life must end. We assume this is simply how things have always been.

Bapuji gently teaches us otherwise. Death was not always part of creation. Death was created. It entered the cosmic story at a specific stage, when bodies became heavy enough to receive it. Before that stage, death simply did not exist. We encourage readers to explore another gem by Bapuji “Birth of Death” book

How Bodies Became Heavy and How Death Began

The earliest beings had light and luminous bodies made from supreme essence. These bodies contained only the three subtle supreme elements: Param Akash, Param Vayu, and Param Agni. There was no water or earth element, so the bodies were pure, free, and beyond decay.

As creation continued to descend, rougher and heavier elements gradually appeared. Water and earth slowly entered the bodies of beings. At first, these coverings were very thin, but with each generation they became thicker and denser.

Because of this, the amount of supreme essence inside the body slowly reduced. Bodies that were once radiant and free became heavier, slower, and weaker. Over time, the body changed into ordinary five-element matter.

When bodies became heavy enough, they could decay and separate from the soul. This separation became death.

According to Bapuji, death was not part of the original creation. It appeared only after souls descended into dense material bodies.

♦ “Jab body bhari ban gayi, tab mritu ka beej apne aap bo gaya.”

“When the body became heavy, the seed of death was quietly planted within it.”

The Beginning of the Yuga Cycle

It is only after this densification deepened that the well-known cycle of the four yugas began. The cycle of Satyug (the age of truth), Tretayug (the second age), Dwaparyug (the third age), and Kaliyug (the present age of darkness) is not the earliest phase of creation. It is a much later phase, which only became possible once Earth had become solid, once bodies had become dense, and once death had entered the cosmic order.

In the earliest stages of Earth, when bodies were still luminous and souls still carried much of their original power, the conditions for the four yugas had not yet appeared.

We will return to the yugas in a later chapter. For now, the important point is this: the yuga cycle is a consequence of the descent. It is what naturally happens once Earth has become heavy and souls have become forgetful.

Earth as the Stage of the Drama

Once Earth had become solid, dense and death had become real, the great cosmic drama could begin in full. Souls were now playing roles on a real stage. They were now wearing real costumes — their heavy bodies. They were now subject to real exits — the moment of death. And they were now caught in a real story — the story of rebirths and deaths.

Earth became the field where this drama could unfold. Every step of the descent had prepared this stage. Every layer of density had set the scene. Every loss of original power had created the conditions under which the great human story could now play out.

But the soul, even in its forgetfulness, never lost its deepest longing to return to original home return to the light from which it once came. That ache is the seed of every spiritual journey.

Chapter VIII

The Sun Was Made After the Earth

Most of us assume that the Sun must have come before the Earth. After all, the Sun lights the Earth, warms the Earth, and seems to hold the Earth in its orbit. Science teaches us that the Sun was already shining when our planet was just a cloud of cosmic dust. It seems impossible that the Sun could have come later. But Bapuji shares a deeper truth. From the standpoint of the original divine creation, the Sun was made after the Earth. Not before.

Why the Sun Was Created

In the earliest stages of creation, there was no need for an external Sun. The original beings carried their own Param Prakash — supreme divine light — within themselves. Their bodies were luminous, and the higher realms around them were also filled with inner radiance. There was no darkness that needed to be removed.

Even the early Earth was light, refined, and sattvic. The souls who first arrived on Earth still held much of their original divine glow. Because both the beings and the planet were naturally luminous, no separate Sun was required for a very long period of cosmic time.

But as creation continued to descend, everything gradually became heavier and denser. Bodies lost more of their inner divine light. The atmosphere of Earth thickened, and the natural brightness of the planet slowly faded. A stage finally came when the beings could no longer illuminate their surroundings through their own inner radiance.

At that point, an external Sun became necessary. According to Bapuji, the Sun was created as a compassionate support for souls whose inner light had diminished. In this view, the Earth existed before the Sun, and the Sun appeared later to provide the outer light that beings had once carried within themselves.

♦ “Pehle Sun ki zaroorat nahi thi, lekin jab atma ka prakash kam ho gaya, tab Sun banaya gaya.”

“At first there was no need for a Sun, but when the soul’s own light reduced, then the Sun was created.”

The Early Sun Moved Around the Earth

In its early form, the Sun was also different from what we see today. Bapuji explains that in the beginning, the Sun moved around the Earth, not the other way around. This was natural, because the Sun had been created for the Earth. It was made to serve the Earth’s newly arising need for light. So it moved around the Earth, providing light wherever it was needed.

In those early times, there were no fixed days and nights as we know them now. The relationship between Earth and Sun was different. The very rhythm of light and darkness, of dawn and dusk, of summer and winter, took its present form only later. Earth’s axis, Earth’s rotation, the precise dance of Earth around the Sun — all of these were shaped over long cosmic stretches as the planet and its star found their present arrangement.

Just as the shape of Earth itself has changed across cosmic ages, the arrangement of Earth and Sun has also changed. The current configuration that science observes is only the latest version of a relationship that has gone through many transformations across cosmic time.

The Sun and the Higher Realm

The Sun does not only serve Earth. Bapuji explains that the Sun also gives light to the worlds above and around Earth.

Its purpose is not limited to one planet. It is part of the larger field of creation, contributing light to many beings across many realms. But its creation was deeply tied to the moment when Earth's inhabitants had lost their original Supreme light (Param Prakash) and needed something external to take its place. The Sun, in this sense, is a kind of replacement. The original light came from within. The Sun came later, as a substitute, to support beings who could no longer light themselves.

When we walk in sunlight today, it is good to remember this. The sunlight on our skin is a beautiful gift. But it is not our original source of light. Our original source of light is much greater than the Sun. It is the supreme divine light that once lived inside every soul and that, even now, waits patiently inside us to be remembered.

Chapter IX

The Four Yugas and the Rhythm of Earth

Once Earth had become solid, once bodies had become dense, and once death had taken its place in the cosmic order, a new rhythm began to play across the planet. This is the rhythm of the four yugas.

The first age is Satyug — the Golden Age. In Satyug, human souls were satopradhan, meaning of the highest purity. Their thoughts were positive, their actions were aligned with truth, their auras radiated golden cosmic. Because the inner world of humanity was in harmony, the five elements of the outer world were also in harmony. Life was long. The deity-like nature of human beings expressed itself naturally.

Then came Tretayug. Negative thoughts began to appear. The unity of religion began to crack. The force of rajas — passion and acquisition — entered the human mind. This was still a great age, but no longer perfect.

After Treta came Dwaparyug, in which divisions in religion began to harden. People worshipped different deities and began fighting over the supremacy of their chosen forms. The atmosphere thickened with the weight of these conflicts.

And finally came Kalyug, the present age — the age of tamopradhan or maximum impurity. Countless religions, countless gods, countless beliefs, countless quarrels. The aura of humanity has darkened. The atmosphere of the planet has filled with negative vibration.

Each of these ages has its own quality. Each affects the consciousness of the beings on Earth. Each shapes the kind of bodies, the kind of thoughts, and the kind of actions that become natural on the planet during that time.

Why the Yuga Cycle Began

The yuga cycle began only after the descent had deepened. Once Earth had become solid, once bodies had taken on the heaviness of five elements, once death had entered the cosmic story, the conditions were finally ripe for the rhythmic alternation of purity and impurity that we call the yugas. The yuga cycle is the natural rhythm of a dense planet inhabited by descended souls.

This is why, in the very deepest of cosmic time, there was no Satyug, no Tretayug, no Dwapar, no Kaliyug. There was only the original luminous creation. The yugas appeared later, as the descent intensified, and they have been turning ever since.

The Cycles of Pralay

Within Brahma's vast lifespan, cycles of dissolution and renewal take place. Bapuji describes these in clear terms. At the end of every four-yuga cycle, ardh pralay occurs on Earth. During these dissolutions, vast changes sweep across the planet. Continents shift. Oceans rise and recede. Mountains appear and disappear. The very shape and surface of Earth is reshaped, again and again, across cosmic time. The Earth we see today is only the latest version of a planet that has been remade many times.

And finally, at the end of Brahma's one hundred years, the very greatest dissolution takes place — the Maha Kalpa Pralay, the dissolution of the entire cosmos. At that time, the power within the formless Shiv himself begins to recede. Shiv then enters the Sun, creates the Kaalagni — the cosmic fire of time — and absorbs the entire Brahmand back into himself. What is left is what modern science would call a black hole. The Sun becomes a black hole. The entire cosmos is gathered into one point, held within the formless Shiv. Creation, sustenance, dissolution. Birth, life, return. Again and again, across spans that the human mind can barely begin to comprehend

♦ “Brahma ke sau saal poore hone par Maha Kaal Pralay hota hai, aur Shiv Niraakar sab kuchh apne andar sama lete hain.”

“When Brahma’s one hundred years are complete, the Great Dissolution takes place, and the formless Shiv absorbs everything back into himself.”

Where We Stand Today

Bapuji shares some very specific cosmic news for our present time. We are presently in the second half of Brahma’s life. Roughly fifty of Brahma’s years still remain before the great final dissolution. The Earth is going through difficult transitions. But the great cosmic clock is still running. At the same time, within this larger cosmic time, smaller transitions are constantly taking place on Earth itself. Smaller pralays. Smaller dissolutions and renewals. Each of these affects the planet and its inhabitants in deep ways. And in our present age, as we will see in a later chapter, a very important transition is approaching.

Chapter X

The Changing Face of Earth

We tend to think of Earth as a fixed, unchanging planet. We see the continents on a map and assume they have always been there. We see the mountains and assume they have always stood as they do now. We see the oceans and imagine they have always covered the same parts of the globe.

Bapuji reminds us that this is not the case. Earth has changed many times across its long cosmic history. Its very shape has shifted. Its mountains, its continents, its waters — all of these have appeared, disappeared, and rearranged themselves repeatedly across cosmic ages.

Was Earth Once Flat?

This is an old question, and Bapuji answers it with characteristic openness. In our present age, Earth is clearly round. But in earlier ages, the shape of Earth may have been different. The ancient scriptures sometimes describe Earth as flat. This is not necessarily an error. It may simply be a description from an earlier cosmic stage, when Earth's present spherical form had not yet developed.

Earth's present round shape became fully established only after a long process. As Earth and Sun gradually found their present arrangement — with Earth rotating and orbiting the Sun — the planet took on the form we know today. Before that, the planet may have had a different shape entirely. There is no reason to assume that the present form has always been the form.

The truth is that Earth's very shape is something that has evolved, just as everything else has evolved in the long descent from supreme essence to matter. The Earth of today is not the Earth of the earliest cosmic stages, and it will not be the Earth of the future either.

Continents, Mountains and Oceans Are Not Permanent

Bapuji explains that mountains we now see may not have always existed. Continents we now know may once have been beneath the sea. Lands that once stood above the waters may now lie submerged. Modern science itself confirms this, in its own way. Satellite photographs sometimes show traces of structures that no longer exist on the surface. Geological studies sometimes reveal that entire continents have been reshaped over time.

This is the natural pattern of a planet that responds to deeper cosmic forces. Each smaller dissolution, each rise and fall of consciousness, leaves its mark on the surface of Earth. Mountains rise. Mountains fall. Coastlines shift. Rivers change course. Forests appear and disappear. Earth is a living, changing field, constantly being shaped by forces that go far beyond ordinary geology.

♦ “Dharti ka shape bhi badalta rehta hai, kabhi gol kabhi flat, sab kuch parivartan ke andar hai.”

“Earth’s shape also keeps changing, sometimes round and sometimes flat — everything is within transformation.”

Earthquakes, Floods and Storms

Many of the dramatic events we see on Earth today are part of this same pattern of change. Earthquakes, Floods, Storms do not happen at random. Each of these events is linked to the deeper consciousness that surrounds and flows through the planet.

Bapuji explains that when the atmosphere of Earth becomes heavy with negative consciousness, the five elements themselves are affected. Disturbances arise in the soil, in the waters, in the air. Earthquakes become more common. Floods strike with greater force. Cyclones move with greater violence. These are not separate events. They are Earth's response to the inner condition of the souls living upon it.

This is a profound truth. The same five elements that make up our bodies also make up the surface of Earth. The same consciousness that disturbs our minds also disturbs the environment around us. The boundary between the inner and the outer self is not as rigid as we tend to think.

The Earth That Will Come

Just as Earth's form has changed across the past, it will continue to change in the future. The present Earth, with its present continents and oceans, is not the final form. Many more changes will come. Some will be gentle. Some will be dramatic. All will be tied to the deeper currents of consciousness and cosmic time. What we should remember is that within all of this change, the original supreme essence still exists. The descent has been long, but the return is also possible. A day will come when the planet itself will be lifted, transformed, and returned closer to its original luminous state. Earth changes, with the consciousness of the beings living upon it.

Chapter XI

Connection Between Earth and Human Consciousness

One of Bapuji's most powerful teachings is the deep connection between human consciousness and the condition of Earth itself. The planet does not exist in isolation from the souls who live on it. The planet is, in many ways, a reflection of those souls. As they change, the planet changes.

As the Mind, So the Body

There is a simple saying that Bapuji often returns to: jaisi soch, jaisa man, vaisa tan — as the thinking, as the mind, so the body. This is true for each individual person. What we think shapes our body. The body is not separate from the mind; the body listens to the mind, every moment. But this same law works at the level of the planet too. Earth is the body of all of us together. Our collective consciousness is the mind of Earth. When that collective mind is heavy, dark, and negative, the body of Earth becomes heavy, dark, and negative as well. When the collective mind is light, peaceful, and positive, the body of Earth begins to lighten too.

This is the actual mechanism by which planetary disturbances arise. The five elements that make up Earth's body — ether, air, fire, water, earth — are not insulated from human thought. They respond. They register every wave of consciousness that moves through humanity.

Negative Atmosphere

Bapuji uses a precise term to describe the present condition of Earth's atmosphere: tamopradhan. This means an atmosphere dominated by tamas, the quality of darkness, heaviness, and inertia. A tamopradhan atmosphere is what naturally builds up when collective human consciousness is filled with negativity, fear, anger, greed, and confusion for a long time.

When the atmosphere becomes tamopradhan, the effects spread quickly into the five elements. The air becomes disturbed. Cyclones form with greater force. Storms move with greater violence. The waters become unsettled. Floods strike unexpectedly. Even the earth element itself responds, with earthquakes and shifts in the ground beneath our feet.

Modern science correctly identifies many physical mechanisms behind these events. But Bapuji explains that the deeper cause is consciousness itself. Negative human thought produces negative atmospheric vibration, and that vibration then expresses itself through the elements in ways we call natural disasters.

♦ “Jaisi soch, jaisa man, vaisa tan — yeh dharti par bhi laagu hota hai.”

“As the thinking, as the mind, so the body — this applies to Earth as well.”

Human Thought and the Five Elements

Bapuji explains this point in a way that any sincere seeker can understand. The air element of Earth is not built only from gases. It is built also from the collective vibration of human thoughts. The air is shaped, again and again, by the inner condition of those who breathe it. If human thought is peaceful, the air carries peace. If human thought is troubled, the air carries trouble.

Sea storms and cyclones arise from the air element. The air element arises from human thought. So when we look at a violent storm forming over the ocean, we are looking at the visible expression of an invisible disturbance that began in the human heart and mind. The boundary between inner and outer collapses. The boundary between thought and weather collapses. The boundary between self and Earth collapses.

This is why Bapuji repeatedly emphasises the inner work. The planet cannot be saved by outer action alone. The planet can only be truly transformed when the consciousness of those who live on it is transformed.

The Planet Mirrors Us

There is a striking honesty in this teaching. We cannot blame Earth for being in trouble. Earth is in trouble because we are in trouble. The negative environment we see around us is the outer face of the negative environment we carry within us. The heaviness of the atmosphere is the heaviness of our minds, multiplied across billions of souls and reflected back to us as natural disturbance.

If consciousness can disturb the planet, consciousness can also heal the planet. If negative thought can darken the atmosphere, positive vibration can lighten it. The future of Earth is not fixed. It depends on the inner state of those who live on it.

This is why every individual's spiritual transformation matters. It is not only personal. It is planetary. When even one soul awakens, the entire field of Earth lightens slightly. When many souls awaken together, the entire planet begins to shift.

The next chapter takes us to one of the most surprising teachings in this entire book: the fact that most of the souls now on Earth do not even originally belong here. They came from elsewhere.

Chapter XII

Journey of Souls

If you have ever felt, deep inside, that you do not quite belong on this Earth, you are not alone. This feeling is one of the most universal feelings of the human heart. Children sometimes look up at the stars and feel a quiet pull toward them. Adults sometimes feel a strange longing for a place they cannot name. There is a reason for this feeling. It is true. In earlier chapter we talked about soul memory and deep longing of soul to go back to origin.

Bapuji explains a truth that may, at first, sound astonishing. Most of the souls now living on Earth did not originally come from Earth at all. They came from elsewhere — from other galaxies, other solar systems, other universes, even from worlds far greater than our own. They have travelled long, long distances across the cosmic field and have ended up here, in human form, on this small planet.

Why Earth Has So Many Visiting Souls

Earth was created as a landing place for descending beings. From the very beginning, it was meant to be a meeting ground for souls from many parts of creation. As different beings from different higher worlds began to lose their original power, they came down. They needed somewhere to settle. Earth, being a planet specifically prepared for this purpose, received them.

Over enormous cosmic spans, more and more souls from different parts of creation came down to Earth. Some came from neighbouring galaxies. Some came from distant solar systems. Some came from far greater universes. By the time we reach our present age, almost every soul on Earth carries the memory — even if buried very deep — of having come from somewhere else.

Bapuji says clearly that nearly 99.99% of souls on Earth belong from some other places. Only a small fraction of souls truly belongs to our own Brahmand. This means most of us are, in a real sense, travellers on this planet, not natives of it.

Different Worlds, Different Conditions

Bapuji also explains that every solar system has its own Earth-like planet. Every galaxy contains many solar systems. Every universe contains many galaxies. The vastness of creation is almost beyond comprehension. There are countless Brahmands, countless galaxies, countless worlds where souls live. Each has its own conditions, its own elemental composition, its own form of life.

Some worlds are lighter than Earth. Some are heavier. Some carry only three elements in their atmosphere; some carry five. Beings in three-element worlds have lighter bodies. Beings in five-element worlds, like ours, carry the densest bodies in the cosmic field. Each world has its own life-conditions, its own colour, its own appearance, its own kind of beings.

This is why the question “Is there life elsewhere?” is, in a sense, the wrong question. Life is everywhere. The cosmic field is full of beings. Every solar system, every galaxy, every universe is teeming with souls in various forms. Our science has not yet developed the instruments to detect them, but that does not mean they are absent.

♦ “Tum yahan ke nahi ho — doosri galaxy, doosre universe se aaye ho.”

“You do not originally belong here — you have come from another galaxy, another universe.”

Earth as a Meeting Place

When we understand this, our view of Earth changes completely. Earth is not just our home. Earth is a great cosmic meeting place. It is a planet where souls from many far-off worlds have gathered to share, for a time, the experience of being human. We are all, in this sense, fellow travellers. We have come from many different starting points. But we have all ended up here, together, in this one place, at this one time.

There is something deeply touching about this. The next time you look around at the people in your life, remember that each of them is a soul from somewhere. Each of them has travelled across cosmic distances to reach this moment. Each of them carries, deep inside, a memory of a different home, a different world, a different beginning.

And then, perhaps, the deepest question of human life can rise more clearly in your heart. If we have travelled so far to be here, what is the purpose of our being here? Why are we, in fact, on Earth at all?

Why Souls are on Earth?

Bapuji takes this question with the seriousness it deserves. He explains it from the deepest level of spiritual reality. It is a question asked by the soul not by human mind. It rises from the soul's own buried memory of having once lived in a far freer state.

Why am I here on Earth? Why am I not in the galaxy? Why am I not roaming freely through universes? Why am I trapped in this five-element body? Why am I caught in this small life when I once knew so much more? These questions arise inside us because, somewhere very deep, the soul remembers that there is more than this.

This memory is not a defect. It is a guide. It is the soul's own quiet way of telling us that we have come from somewhere greater, and that we are meant to return to somewhere greater.

Bapuji says the soul is presently sitting inside a cage of five elements. The body of earth, water, fire, air, and space is exactly that — a cage. It is what holds the soul down on this planet. It is what gives the soul its experience of being limited, heavy, and trapped.

As we have seen in the earlier chapters, the soul once had a body of supreme essence — a body made of just three subtle supreme elements, light and luminous. There was no cage. But as the descent deepened, the cage was built around the soul, layer by layer.

To be free, the soul must, step out of this cage. Not by destroying the body, but by waking up inside it. By drawing in once again the supreme light that once filled it. The way out is not a physical exit. It is a spiritual awakening.

♦ “Atma yahan paanch tatvon ke pinjre mein phansi padi hai — isse bahar nikalna hai.”

“The soul is trapped here in the cage of five elements — it must come out of this.”

Karma Brought Us Here

Bapuji explains another important truth. Souls did not arrive on Earth at random. Each soul came down because of the law of karma. As souls in higher realms began to use their power in different ways, their actions and choices began to shape their futures. Some of these actions and choices created the conditions for descent. Slowly, those souls were drawn down into denser worlds. Eventually, they reached Earth.

In other words, Earth is, for many souls, a result of their own karmic journey. We are here partly because of what we have done and chosen across vast cosmic time. This is not meant to make us feel guilty. It is meant to help us understand the seriousness of our situation. We have arrived here through the slow consequences of our own choices. Earth, in this sense, is both a result of past karma and an opportunity for new karma. It is a field where we can experience the fruits of what we have done, and where we can also create the conditions for our return.

Souls Have Captured This Brahmand

Bapuji shares another important teaching that may seem surprising at first. He explains that souls from other galaxies and universes have not only visited Earth, but have also become part of our larger cosmic region, or Brahmand. Over vast periods of time, powerful souls from distant worlds entered this cosmic area and established influence in many regions.

According to Bapuji, different groups of souls settled on different planets within our cosmic neighbourhood. Because of this, the present condition of our Brahmand is the result of long cosmic movements, karmic relationships, and interactions between souls from many worlds.

This teaching suggests that our cosmic history is far more complex than we usually imagine. Earth is not isolated. It is part of a much larger cosmic drama involving souls from different realms and civilizations.

Bapuji says that to truly understand who we are and why we are here, we must see ourselves as part of this vast universal story.

Understanding of Soul Journey

We are here because we descended. We are here because Earth was prepared for descending souls like us. We are here because of our own karmic journey. We are here because the supreme reality, in its compassion, has given us a place to continue our existence and, finally, a place from which to begin our return.

Earth is not a punishment. Earth is a classroom. Earth is a purification field. Earth is a stage on which the great drama of falling and rising plays itself out. Each soul on Earth is here to learn, to suffer, to grow, and ultimately to remember. The real purpose of being on Earth is to wake up to who we truly are, and to begin the journey back to the source we came from.

In the next chapter, we will look at exactly how that journey back is made.

Chapter XIII

The Way Back to the Creator

Every soul that has descended must one day return. This is the unspoken promise of creation. The descent was real, but it was never meant to be the final state. From the very beginning, the return was already part of the plan. Bapuji teaches the way back with great clarity. It does not require us to change our religion. It does not require us to leave our homes. It does not require us to abandon our duties. It requires only one thing: the awakening of the soul to its own original nature.

Atma Swaroop

The first step of the return journey is to recognise yourself as the soul, not as the body. Bapuji calls this state Atma Swaroop — Soul Consciousness. As long as we identify with the body, we cannot return. The body belongs to the five elements, to the planet, to the descended creation. The soul belongs to a far greater realm. To return, we must learn to live as the soul we truly are.

Atma Swaroop is to remembering throughout the day, that you are not the body. You are not the mind. You are not your emotions. You are not your thoughts. You are the soul, that has all of these as instruments. You are the point of Supreme Divine light that has come from far away.

Param Prakash and Inner Power

Once we begin to live in soul consciousness, the next step is to bring back the original light that the soul once carried. Bapuji calls this Param Prakash — the supreme divine light. The Sun in our sky cannot give us this light. No outer flame can give us this light. It can only come from the source from which the soul itself was created.

Bapuji teaches us to remember the Almighty Authority — the great-great grandfather of all souls. The original source. The supreme nirakar power. Connect inwardly with this source, the way a great- great grandchild might reach out for its great- great grandfather. From that source, the original supreme light begins to flow back into the soul. The soul, slowly, begins to recharge.

As divine light enters the soul, the soul slowly becomes lighter. The heavy layers gathered over many ages gradually begin to fade. Forgetfulness starts to disappear, and the soul slowly remembers its true original nature again.

“Remember the Almighty Authority — He is the great great grandfather of all souls.”

Vikarm Vinash and Karmatit Avstha

When the supreme light enters the soul, something powerful happens. The accumulated weight of negative karma, vikarm, begins to burn away. This is the vikarm vinash process: the destruction of past actions and their imprints. The burden of past Karma is consumed by the inner divine light.

Slowly, as more and more karmic burden is burnt away, the soul becomes lighter. The causal body — kaaran sharir — becomes charged with divine light. The subtle body and even the physical body begin to shift. The soul begins to move toward karmatit avstha — the state beyond karma. This is not a fantasy. It is the natural result of the soul drawing in supreme light, again and again, until the old burdens cannot stand inside it any longer.

Returning to the Source

When the soul becomes light and powerful again, it can return to its original home. Bapuji explains that souls return to the place from where they originally came — whether it is a galaxy, a universe, or a higher spiritual realm. The highest behad souls return to the supreme behad dwelling.

This is the natural law of creation. Every soul returns to its own original source. Once divine light awakens inside, the soul remembers the path back home. The knowledge was always within; it only had to be remembered.

The descent took a long time. The return also takes time. But the door has been opened. The way is clear. And anyone who chooses to walk it will, in time, find themselves walking back into the very light from which they once came.

Chapter XIV

Up-Coming Transformation

This book began with the question of how Earth was formed. We end it with the question of where Earth is going. Because the story of our planet is not over. A great transformation is approaching.

Not Destruction, but Transformation

Many people today fear that Earth is heading toward destruction. They look at the wars, the climate crises, the nuclear weapons, the unstable atmosphere, and they assume that the planet is finished. Bapuji offers a different vision.

Earth is not heading toward destruction. Earth is heading toward transformation.

Brahma's cosmic clock still has fifty years remaining before the final dissolution. So we are not near the end of creation. We are living during a major transition, where Earth and humanity are moving from one condition to another.

This change may bring difficulties, disturbances, and major transformations. But according to Bapuji, this transition is not leading toward destruction or emptiness. It is part of a movement toward a better future and a higher state of existence.

Multiverse Transformation

Bapuji teaches that the supreme reality — the Almighty Authority — has a plan to transform the entire multiverse. Not just this Earth, this solar system, galaxy. The plan is for the entire multiverse to be lifted out of the five-element condition and back into the realm of supreme essence.

This is the great Multiverse Parivartan — the transformation of the whole multiverse. It is happening slowly. It cannot be completed in a few human years. But it has already begun. The very turbulence we see in our world today is, part of the natural shaking that comes when such a vast transformation gets underway.

The endpoint of this transformation is the return of the entire cosmic field to a condition of Param Tattva – Supreme Element. The heavy five-element worlds will slowly be lifted into lighter forms. The bodies of beings will gradually become of light again. The atmosphere of planets will become refined. It will become a deathless creation. The descent is being reversed, layer by layer, across an enormous cosmic span.

♦ “Almighty Authority pure multiverse ko paanch tatvon se Param Tatva mein badalne ka plan hai.”

“The Almighty Authority has a plan to transform the entire multiverse from the five elements back into supreme essence.”

Special Souls

Bapuji explains that in this great transformation, certain souls have a very special role. He calls them behad souls — souls of the infinite. These are highly evolved souls who carry an unusual capacity for divine work. Their job, in this present age, is to anchor the supreme essence on Earth, to spread the vibration of Paramshanti, and to help bring down the new world that is being prepared.

These behad souls begin living in soul-consciousness rather than body-consciousness. Through their inner connection, they draw Param Tatva into themselves and gradually spread its influence into the environment around them. In this way, the great transformation slowly begins on Earth.

If you feel deeply attracted to this teaching, Bapuji says it may not be by chance. Souls are being called together for this important cosmic transition. Every soul that responds becomes a channel through which a higher and better world can gradually emerge.

A Future World

Bapuji speaks of a creation in which the bodies of beings will once again be made of supreme essence, the souls will once again be filled with Supreme Divine light and have much higher soul power. The descent will have been reversed. The original divine condition will be restored, this time consciously, by souls who have travelled the long road of forgetting and remembering.

Beginning From Within

All of this great cosmic transformation must begin somewhere. And the only place it can begin is within each one of us. The outer world cannot be transformed before the inner world is transformed. Earth cannot be lifted until the souls upon it are lifted. The new world cannot come down through us until we are ready to receive it.

So the work, in the end, is very simple and very personal. Sit quietly. Remember that you are a soul. Connect with the Almighty Authority. Draw in the supreme divine light. Repeat the gentle mantra of Paramshanti. Let the original peace of your own true nature begin to rise inside you, again and again, throughout the day.

This is how the new Earth is being built. Not by armies. Not by governments. Not by technology. By souls quietly returning, one by one, to their original source.

We have learned that none of this is far away from us. Every truth in this book lives inside you, right now. The original supreme essence is still within you. The cosmic descent is reflected in the very heaviness of your body. The cosmic return is waiting in the very longing of your soul.

Bapuji has done his part by sharing this knowledge. The path is open. The light is available. The transformation has already begun.

May this small book be of help on your journey home.

So gross physical body is only a medium to carry out work of soul. Physical body gets power from subtle body which comprises of ether element , air element and fire element. Mahakaal — The supreme creator and dissolver of the universe. Mahashiv Mahakaal is the supreme creator of an entire universe. As Mahakaal — the lord of cosmic time — he is the one who dissolves all of creation back into himself at the time of Mahakaal Pralaya. Only Brahm Rishi souls of 16–20 kala survive this dissolution.

layers of universe. The architecture of creation extends further still, beyond what the human mind can readily comprehend.

Nirakar / Nirakaar / Nirakari — This is formless state of a soul. This is the true divine state of a soul when soul is in the form of divine light. This is also called as the incorporeal state of a soul. In this state soul is termed as supreme soul. This is the ultimate stage of a soul. A formless soul of this purity is what is rightly called Paramatma and ascends directly to Paramdham.

Panch Tattva — The five elements: earth, water, fire, air, and ether.

Paradh — A unit of cosmic time within the lifespan of Lord Brahma. One Paradh (50 Brahma years) of the present Brahma has been completed; we are presently within the second.

Param Atma — He is the creator of soul. We call it supreme soul. Supreme soul has power to create many souls. Sometimes we call the creators as supreme soul. When soul is in its true formless divine light form, it has tremendous power to create many souls through affirmation, that is called as supreme soul or “param atma”.

Param Maha Tattva — In incorporeal state soul is in divine light form known as Param Prakash. Around the Param Prakash the energy or divine brilliance is irradiated and that is called Param-Maha-tattva. Param tattva is created from Param Maha tattva so Param Maha tattva is at the highest energy level after Param Prakash. This is also known as Supreme great element.

This is the Akari Shiv/Maha-shiv so on as per the dimension of creation. It is the first creation of incorporeal supreme creator/soul in any creation in any dimension. Param Pusrush has a supreme subtle form and maximum energy next to incorporeal Supreme soul. So he can be termed as Supreme Male Energy. He always exists with its companion known as Shakti we can call her Supreme Female energy in a creation.

Param Tatva — Supreme elements; the purified, elevated form of the five basic elements. the fundamental substance of higher real creations. Just as a nucleus is finer than an atom, param tattva is finer than tattva (elements). The energy of a param tattva is far greater than that of a tattva. Param Akash, Param Vayu and Param Agni are three param tattva.

Param Vayu — Supreme air element ; one of the three Param Tattvas of which causal body is composed for one particular category of higher level souls

Paramatma / Param Atma — The Supreme Soul- the creator of souls. In its true formless divine light form, a soul with tremendous power can create other souls through sankalp. Shiv, the creator of a Solar system, is called Paramatma. In the Nirakari stage there is no real difference between the soul and the Supreme Soul.

Paramdham / Param-dham / Paramdhaam — The supreme abode — the original home of souls. Paramdham is the highest dimension within a Solar system— a world of pure divine light where the creator resides in formless form. Souls in Paramdham exist in complete peace, light, and bliss. It is the original home from which all souls come and to which the most advanced souls return. Also called Amarloka — the immortal realm. Every Creator of solar system, Galaxy, Universe, multiverses have their respective supreme abode in incorporeal form.

Paramshanti / Param Shanti — Supreme peace — the original state of the soul. Param Shanti is not merely the absence of noise or conflict. It is the original state of the soul when it rests in its pure divine light form. It is both a living state and a vibration that can be radiated outward. That's why soul always seeks supreme peace or Paramshanti. This is stage when soul establishes itself in its pure divine incorporeal state of supreme light

Prakriti — Nature, in its widest sense; the entire field of manifest creation in which the soul takes up its bodies.

Pralaya — Dissolution; the cyclic process by which worlds, Solar System and the souls within them are eventually unmade.

Record / Recording — The stored imprint of past events within creation and consciousness.

Sankalp / Sankalpa — A divine intention or resolution. Sankalp is not an ordinary wish — it is an intention charged with spiritual power. As the soul's aura grows through knowledge and Yog, the sankalpa it offers for betterment of world gradually and surely come to fruition. When soul resolves something to do, this is called as affirmation or Sankalp. Mind power is the power of soul. So higher the kala, higher the power of affirmation.

Saptarishi / Saptarishis — The seven primordial sages whom Brahma created directly from his own being at the dawn of creation in our solar system. Their birth was already form-based(Avyakt); through them, the line of subsequent souls in our solar system began.

Satyug — The Golden Age; the first and most elevated yuga.

Shakti / Maha shakti / Param maha shakti — In creation of a solar system or galaxy or universe or great universe or any higher dimension of creation, it is a common phenomenon that incorporeal Shiv first creates a Akari Shiv from its energy then Akari shiv creates its feminine divine counter part known as Shakti. Both Akari Shiv and Akari Shakti involves in the furtherance of creation in a solar system. At galaxy level they are known as Akari Maha shiv - Akari maha shakti, at universe level they are known as Akari Param Maha shiv and Akari Param Maha shakti.

Sthool Jagat / Sthul Jagat — The physical world made of gross elements

Tattva / Tatva — Element. The fundamental building blocks of creation. The visible world is composed of five elements: earth, water, air, fire, and ether. Tattva in spiritual language is finer than element in the scientific sense. Water, earth, fire elements are visible but air and ether are invisible. Air can be felt by body but ether cannot be felt by physical body. Water, earth are heavier atoms representing heavier elements whereas air, fire and ether are very lighter atoms representing lighter elements.

THE UNTOLD STORY OF EARTH:

From Light to Matter

Earth is more than a planet. Behind matter, time, and physical existence lies a forgotten story hidden beyond ordinary understanding.

This book explores profound mysteries connected to consciousness, creation, cosmic origins, and the deeper purpose of Earth itself. A journey into questions humanity has asked for ages — yet few have truly understood.

“The visible world is only the outer layer of a far greater truth.”
