ABOUT BAPUJI

Bapuji (full name: Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly called “Dadaji” by the younger generation) was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. However, he spent his childhood in another village named Ambasan, also located in the Mehsana district.

In the early part of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realizing the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realize their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on Earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy (CA), he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law (LLB) degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called “Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay” in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as “Maa,” worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to 18 hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realized through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of super consciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji’s teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy, and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as “behad souls.” According to Bapuji, these “behad souls” will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Anant Patel

Shri Anant Patel is a spiritual guide, meditation teacher and a non- practising Advocate (Income Tax) by profession, as well as a dedicated medium of the divine knowledge revealed by Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel. He has devoted his life to making profound spiritual wisdom accessible in a simple, practical, and experiential way for all seekers.

Through his daily live meditation sessions, Shri Anant Patel has guided thousands of individuals toward self-realization, mental stability, and inner peace, having conducted over 1500+ live meditation episodes to date. His teachings are not limited to theory; they are rooted in consistent practice, self-discipline, and the direct application of Bapuji's knowledge in everyday life. Amid the challenges of modern life, he helps people understand deep spiritual wisdom shared by Bapuji over three decades in a clear, simple, and practical way.

Through his guidance, individuals finds help moving from confusion to clarity, from restlessness to inner stillness, and from external dependence to inner strength. His words are not merely teachings — they are reminders. Reminders to return to oneself, to reconnect with the soul, and to experience that Paramshanti which is the true nature of the self.

The live class on Amrit Vela, which forms the foundation of this book, was delivered by Shri Anant Patel on 14 March 2024 as part of the nightly Gyan Yog sessions. This uninterrupted sessions has been broadcast every night since 25 March 2020 on Bapuji's official YouTube channel.

— by Bapuji Dashrathbhbai Patel

Of all the treasures hidden in the spiritual heritage of Bharat, few are spoken of as often and understood as rarely — as Amrit Vela “the sacred pre-dawn period traditionally known as the Nectar Hour”. Often spiritual seekers have heard that the time before sunrise is sacred. Almost no one can say, what the nectar actually is, why it falls, who truly drinks it, or whether the working soul who cannot rise at three o’clock is forever shut out of it.

This book answers those questions completely, and it does so from two living voices. The first is the supreme knowledge of Bapuji Dashrathbhbai Patel, drawn from his own spoken discourse on Amrit Vela and Brahma Muhurta — including his personal journey from rising at half past two in the morning to the extraordinary discovery of the twenty-four-hour Amrit Vela in the path of Knowledge. The second is the live session on Amrit Vela taken by Shri Anant Patel on 14 March 2024, in the nightly Gyan Yog session running since 25 March 2020, which opens the meaning of the words, the four Amrit Velas mentioned in the scriptures, the inner Samudra Manthan, and the nightly practice of Paramshanti meditation

To honour the timeless roots of this knowledge, a special chapter brings together what the Vedas, Shastras, Bhagavad Gita, and Upanishads teach about the sacred hour of Amrit Vela. It explores the ancient reckoning of muhurtas, the guidance of the Manusmriti, the dawn hymns of the Rig Veda, and the profound prayer, "Lead me from death to immortality." Through these sacred texts, readers will discover how the wisdom of the scriptures and Bapuji's revelations complement one another—the scriptures identify the sacred gateway, while Bapuji reveals the spiritual nectar that can be experienced through it.

Every teaching in this book is drawn faithfully from the two spoken sources named above, with the scriptural chapter presented in simple renderings prepared with reverence. Nothing of the meaning has been changed. The only work done has been to arrange the spoken words into a calm, clear order, so that even a complete newcomer can walk the path step by step.

Read this book slowly and peacefully — ideally, in the quiet hours it describes. Let each chapter settle before moving to the next. And know that by the final page, Amrit Vela will no longer be an auspicious pre-dawn hour you must wake for. It will be an hour that has awakened in you.

CHAPTER ONE

What Is Amrit Vela?

The Nectar and The Hour

Almost every spiritual seeker has heard the term Amrit Vela. Literally meaning "the Nectar Hour," it refers to the sacred pre-dawn period—a time traditionally regarded as especially conducive to meditation, prayer, and spiritual awakening. Across many spiritual traditions, it is revered as the most auspicious time to connect with the Divine.

Most of us accept this understanding and move on. Yet very few pause to ask the simple question with which every true spiritual journey begins: What does Amrit Vela really mean? Why is this particular period called the "Nectar Hour," and what is the amrit—the spiritual nectar—that gives it its name?

In the live class, Shri Anant Patel begins exactly there. Vela, he explains, simply means time. In Punjabi, vela is the everyday word for time itself. It does not mean idle or empty; it means the hour, the period, the moment. And amrit means nectar — the drink of immortality. So Amrit Vela means the Time Of Nectar: the time in which nectar is received.

But this immediately raises a deeper question. If a person does not know what amrit is, what will he do with the vela? An ordinary person does not rise before dawn at all. He wakes at his normal time, at seven or eight, and lives his day. Even the one who does rise early — what does he actually receive in that hour? As Shri Anant Patel puts it, those who do not know the nectar cannot really know the time of the nectar. First understand nectar (amrit); then the vela will explain itself.

So what is the nectar? Here the live class gives the key that unlocks this whole book. The true nectar is spiritual knowledge. The moment in which spiritual knowledge is received is the real “the Divine Hour of Nectar”(Amrit Vela). The moment in which the soul absorbs that spiritual knowledge within and actually experience its own immortality -that is the “the Divine Hour of Nectar”(Amrit Vela). Whoever drinks this nectar of spiritual knowledge and awakens, for that soul the hour of nectar has truly begun.

There is also a very practical puzzle that the class addresses with a smile. The Earth is round. When it is four in the morning in India, it is evening in United States Of America and late afternoon in London, United Kingdom. If Amrit Vela were only a fixed time on the clock, whose clock would decide? The honest answer is that the morning hour is different for every land, because each place has its own sunrise. The outer Amrit Vela moves around the globe with the sun. The inner Amrit Vela, the receiving of amrit itself, does not depend on any time zone at all.

This book will honour both. In the coming chapters we will study the outer hour — the Brahma Muburta before sunrise, its atmosphere, its science, and everything the ancient scriptures say about it. And we will follow the inner hour — the nectar of knowledge as Bapuji has revealed it, until we reach the last secret: that for the awakened soul, Amrit Vela never ends.

SHRI ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Jis samay hamein gyan ki prapti ho jaaye, wahi hai Amrit Vela. Jis samay hum us gyan ko prapt karke apne andar amarta ko mehsoos karen — woh hai Amrit Vela.”

CHAPTER TWO

Brahma Muhurta

“The Shower of Cosmic Nectar”

In the bhakti marg, the path of devotion, the early hour has a beautiful name: Brahma Muhurta, the muhurta of Brahm. Bapuji explains that this time is generally taught as the period from three o'clock to five o'clock in the morning, though different teachers describe the timing in slightly different ways. Whatever the exact minutes, all agree on one thing: it is the quietest stretch of the whole night, the hour just before the world begins to stir.

Why is this hour special? Bapuji gives the answer with complete simplicity. In the Brahma Muhurta, most human beings are asleep. Only the yogis are awake; the bhogis — those absorbed in the pleasures of the body — are sleeping. Because the people are asleep, their thoughts are asleep too. The atmosphere of the Earth is not being churned by millions of restless, negative thoughts. The atmosphere (vaayumandal), becomes still and clean. The air is fresh. The mental sky is clear.

Into this stillness, something descends. Bapuji teaches that from 3am- 5am, cosmic power showers upon the Earth — cosmic rays raining down like nectar. This is why the hour is called Amrit Vela: amrit actually showers in it. The yogi who is awake in that hour sits under a silent rain of power that the sleeping world never notices.

So the early riser receives two gifts at once. Outwardly, he receives the purest atmosphere of the day — fresh air, silence, and freedom from the crowd of human vibrations. Inwardly, he sits beneath the falling nectar of cosmic power. It is no wonder that in every age, the saints, sages and seekers of every path have risen in this hour.

Bapuji is careful to add that this is a vast subject. On this one topic, he says, a lecture could run for an hour upon hour. But he does not ask us to accept it as theory. Everything he teaches about Amrit Vela in this book comes from his own practical experience — years of rising in the dark, sitting in that silence, and drinking that nectar himself. His story is where we will go soon. First, let us understand why the early hours have such power over the mind and body — and then hear what the ancient scriptures themselves say about this golden hour.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“धरती पर कॉस्मिक पावर का अमृत तीन से पाँच बरसता है — कॉस्मिक रेज़ अमृत बरसती हैं। इसलिए उसे अमृतवेला कहते हैं।”

“Dharti par cosmic power ka amrit teen se paanch barasta hai — cosmic rays amrit barasti hain. Isiliye usse Amrit Vela kehte hain.”

“Upon the Earth, from three to five, the nectar of cosmic power showers down — cosmic rays rain as nectar. That is why it is called Amrit Vela.”

CHAPTER THREE

Science of the Silent Morning -Three Bodies at Dawn

Why does meditation feel so different at four in the morning than at four in the afternoon? In the live class, Shri Anant Patel explains this through the teaching of the three bodies. Every soul works through a sthool sharir — the physical body; a sookshma sharir — the subtle body; and a karan sharir — the causal body. The subtle and causal bodies are far more powerful and far more effective than the physical one. The state of these bodies decides the quality of our meditation.

In the early morning, the physical body is completely at peace. It has rested through the night. The conscious mind has just emerged from sushupti — deep, dreamless sleep — and so it comes out silent, washed clean, without a single wave upon it. The whole day's fatigue has not yet begun. Nothing has happened yet to remember or to worry about.

Compare this with the night. By evening, the entire day sits inside the mind — the full daily routine, everything that happened and everything that did not. To make the mind steady at that hour takes real effort. For the gyani it is certainly possible, Shri Anant Patel says, but for most people the evening mind is a crowded room, while the morning mind is an empty temple.

This is why whatever is done in the early hour goes deep. Sit in dhyan then, practise yog then, listen to gyan then — the mind engages beautifully, because there is nothing standing in its way. The silent physical body, the fresh conscious mind, and the powerful subtle and causal bodies all face the same direction at once.

And there is a purpose beyond one's own peace. The class reminds us that the welfare of the world happens through thoughts — through good vibrations, through positive energy, through the vibrations of Param Maha Shanti, supreme great peace. A soul meditating in the silent morning is not only filling itself; it is quietly washing the atmosphere of the Earth for everyone who is still asleep. The early hour multiplies not just what we receive, but what we give.

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Vishwa ka kalyan vicharon se hota hai — acche vibrations se, positive energy se, Param Maha Shanti ke vibrations se hota hai.”

“The welfare of the world happens through thoughts — through good vibrations, through positive energy, through the vibrations of supreme great peace.”

CHAPTER FOUR

Amrit Vela in Veda, Shastras, Gita and Upanishads

Long before our time, the great sages (rishis) of Bharat mapped the day and the night with wonderful precision. They divided the full cycle of day and night into thirty muhurtas, each of forty-eight minutes. The Brahma Muhurta is the second-to-last muhurta of the night — the period beginning about one hour and thirty-six minutes before sunrise and ending forty-eight minutes before it. For instance, if the sun rises at six o'clock, the Brahma Muhurta runs from about twenty-four minutes past four until twelve minutes past five. Different traditions widen this window, and Bapuji teaches the fuller span of three to five; but all point to the same silent stretch before dawn.

Shastras speak of this hour as a plain instruction for life.

The Manusmriti declares: brahme muhurte budhyeta — one should wake in the Brahma Muhurta, and in that fresh stillness reflect upon dharma, upon one's true purpose, and upon the self.

The great Ayurvedic text Ashtanga Hridayam says the same for the sake of the body itself: brahme muhurte uttishthet svastho rakshartham ayushah — the healthy person should rise in the Brahma Muhurta to protect life and long life. For the ancients, early rising was not a spiritual luxury; it was the foundation of health, clarity and dharma together.

The Ved sing of this hour rather than legislate it. In the Rig Veda, hymn after hymn is addressed to Ushas, the goddess of dawn — the radiant one who dispels the darkness, wakes all living beings, and leads them toward light. Dawn, in the Vedic vision, is not merely a time of day. She is a divine power, arriving fresh each morning to rouse the sleeping world into life and truth.

The Upanishads turn the same dawn inward. The Katha Upanishad thunders the most famous wake-up call in all scripture: uttishthata jagrata prapya varan nibodhata — arise, awake, approach the great ones and realise! And the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad gives humanity the prayer that could stand as the motto of this entire book: asato ma sad gamaya, tamaso ma jyotir gamaya, mrityor ma amritam gamaya — lead me from the unreal to the real, from darkness to light, from death to amrit, to immortality. The journey from death to nectar — from mrityu to amrit — is the inner meaning of every Amrit Vela.

The Bhagavad Gita completes the picture. ya nisha sarva-bhutanam tasyam jagarti sanyami — that which is night for all beings, in that the disciplined one is awake. The Gita also teaches balance: yog is not for the one who sleeps too much, nor for the one who never sleeps; it is for the one whose sleep and waking are measured and yukta, disciplined. And in its seventh chapter the Gita gives the very verse that Bapuji himself points to again and again: among all who turn to the Divine, priyo hi jnanino atyartham — the gyani, the knower, is supremely dear to the Lord. Even in the scripture of scriptures, knowledge stands first.

One more voice deserves loving mention, because the very phrase Amrit Vela shines at the heart of the Sikh tradition. In the Japji Sahib, Guru Nanak teaches: amrit vela sach nao vadiai vichar — in the ambrosial hour of nectar, dwell upon the True Name and reflect upon His greatness. Across the Ved, the Shastras, the Gita, the Upanishads and the words of the Gurus, the message is one: rise before the sun, and give the first and purest hour to the Highest.

So the scriptures fix the hour and command us to rise. But notice what they are all truly pointing at: light, truth, the Name, knowledge, immortality. The hour is the doorway; the nectar is what comes through it. What exactly that nectar is, and how a soul actually drinks it — that is the revelation of Bapuji, and it begins in the next chapter.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“गीता में कहा है — ज्ञानी तू आत्मा मुझे विशेष प्रिय है।”

“Gita mein kaha hai — gyani tu atma mujhe vishesh priya hai.”

“The Gita itself declares — the soul who knows Me through knowledge is supremely dear to Me.”

CHAPTER FIVE

Four Amrit Velas- Time, Place, Company and Sadguru

According to the Ved and the Shastras, Shri Anant Patel explains in the live class, there is not just one Amrit Vela. There are four — four different doorways through which the nectar can arrive in a human life.

The first Amrit Vela is from the view of kaal — time. This is the Brahma Muhurta we have already met: the period from about two and a quarter hours before sunrise up to sunrise itself. From the standpoint of time, this pre-dawn window is the Amrit Vela, and it returns faithfully every single day to every person on Earth.

The second Amrit Vela is from the view of sthan — place. Whichever land, whichever spot is alive with satsang, with dhyan (meditation) with bhajan (songs, hymns on spiritual knowledge)— when we sit in remembrance in such a place, that place itself becomes an Amrit Vela for us. Sacred company soaks into sacred ground.

The third Amrit Vela is from the view of sang — company. When devotees who are full of the love of the Divine sit together, thinking the same elevated thoughts, discussing the glories and the leelas of God and of the Guru — that gathering is an Amrit Vela. In simple words, whatever time we spend in the remembrance of God is Amrit Vela. Wherever the soul is receiving supreme light and supreme peace, the nectar is falling, whatever the clock may say.

The fourth, and the highest, is the sanidhya — the close presence — of a Brahma-vetta, a Brahma-gyani Sadguru (True Spiritual Master) one who knows Brahman directly. To sit near such a knower is itself an Amrit Vela. And here the class notes something both sobering and hopeful: the dawn Amrit Vela is available to everyone, every day; but the company of Brahma-gyanis, of the highest devotees, and of truly sacred places is not easily available to all. Blessed are the satsangis (seeker of ultimate spiritual reality) to whom, sometimes, all of these nectars are given together.

For the one who has received the Behad ka Param Gyan — the limitless supreme knowledge — the class declares that a new kind of Amrit Vela begins altogether: the behad Amrit Vela, the limitless hour of nectar that is not bounded by dawn, by place, or by occasion. What that means, and how Bapuji himself lived his way into it, is the story the next chapters will tell.

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Jisko Behad ka Param Gyan mil gaya, unka toh Behad ka Amrit Vela shuru ho gaya.”

“For the one who has received the limitless supreme knowledge, the limitless Amrit Vela has already begun.”

CHAPTER SIX

Bapuji's Own Amrit Vela — Rising at Half Past Two

Bapuji does not teach Amrit Vela from books. He teaches it from decades of lived practice, and he tells his own story openly so that every seeker can see the whole path — its power, its limits, and what lies beyond it.

From 1987, Bapuji himself practised waking and meditating during brahma muhurta. He would rise at half past two or three o'clock in the morning. In those years he practised on the path of soul-consciousness — the foundation teaching that one must become atma swaroop, stabilised in the awareness 'I am a soul', and in that awareness remember the incorporeal Supreme. By five o'clock he would reach the meditation centre, and there he would practise yog, listen to spiritual knowledge, and sit in meditation until seven or eight in the morning. He says plainly that the experience in those hours was very good — the experience of the self as a soul came to him powerfully, and that early-morning practice of atma swaroop from three to five became his base, his foundation. That, he says, was itself a nectar.

But something kept growing inside him that the early hour alone could not satisfy: the thirst-for knowledge. It grew stronger everyday. He had questions that no one around him could answer. So he began to read Shastras, and every piece of spiritual literature he could find. He read non-stop.

All this while, Bapuji was living a demanding worldly life. He was an income-tax lawyer, handling heavy and tense cases, with long hours of professional study. He balanced both worlds — the laukik (worldly) work of the office and the alaukik (divine/supernatural/spiritual) search for the answers to his questions.

He would even study spiritual knowledge in the Amrit Vela itself, reading in the nectar hour and then thinking deeply upon what he had read.

However his worldly commitment , profession demanded more and more time. The three o'clock rising slowly became four; four became five. Bapuji continued both his worldly and his spiritual study day and night. To an ordinary eye it might have looked as though his Amrit Vela was slipping away. In truth, something far greater was beginning — because the nectar was about to leave the clock altogether.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“Gyan ki pipasa aur badhti gayi, aur badhti gayi. Mujhe gyan chahiye — bahut gyan chahiye. Mere prashnon ke jawab kisi ke paas nahi the.”

“The thirst for knowledge kept growing and growing. I needed knowledge — so much knowledge. No one had the answers to my questions.”

CHAPTER SEVEN

Amrit Vela in the Afternoon - The Lawyer in the Traffic

Now comes one of the most extraordinary testimonies from Bapuji's teaching — the discovery that shattered the walls of the clock.

Picture the scene as Bapuji himself describes it. Ahmedabad. The month of May or June. Two o'clock in the afternoon, with the heat at forty-five degrees Celsius. The great traffic circle near the income-tax offices, four roads pouring vehicles from every direction, horns blaring on all sides. Through the middle of this furnace of noise walks a busy lawyer on his way to fight an income tax case.

And inside that lawyer, perfect stillness. Bapuji says that as he passed through that crossing in that heat, in that traffic, at that hour — he remained in atma swaroop, the stage of soul-consciousness. And in that state, at two in the afternoon, he experienced yog exactly like the Amrit Vela — and even better, he says, than the yog of his own early mornings.

It did not stop at the traffic circle. Bapuji fought income-tax cases before senior judges; he argued in the tribunal; he stood in hearings wherever they took him. And he did all of it established in soul-consciousness. He worked as a soul. And so he came to a realisation that he states in the simplest possible words: “whenever I work, I work in atma swaroop — therefore it was always my Amrit Vela. My Amrit Vela never ended, because it no longer depended on the darkness before dawn”.

Understand what this testimony really proves. The nectar hour in “path of devotion” depends on outer silence: the world must sleep so that the seeker can be still. However in the “path of knowledge” the nectar hour for soul depends only on inner silence and inner silence can be achieved even at 45 degree Celsius heat along with noisy traffic junction at two in the afternoon scorching summers.

For Bapuji Amrit Vela is no more and external factor of time , place company or sadguru (True Spiritual Master). Amrit vela (hour of nectar)is now a constant, within Bapuji.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“जब भी मैं काम करता हूँ तो मैं आत्म स्वरूप में करता हूँ — तो मेरा हमेशा अमृत वेला रहा।”

“Jab bhi main kaam karta hoon toh main atma swaroop mein karta hoon — toh mera hamesha Amrit Vela raha.”

“Whenever I work, I work in soul-consciousness — and so, for me, it has always been Amrit Vela.”

CHAPTER EIGHT

Unveiling Of Higher Creations

As the thirst for knowledge deepened, Bapuji's practice moved into the night. He began to study late — but this was no ordinary study. He calls it his alaukik (divine/supernatural/spiritual) study: the unveiling of the secrets of the worlds beyond this world.

One by one, the upper worlds began to open before him. He began to explore Brahmand (solar system) Maha Brahmand (Galaxy) and then Param Maha Brahmand (universe) opened beyond that. He began to see the world above, and then far above through his divine vision. And here Bapuji reveals something decisive about time itself: whether he began at nine o'clock at night, or in the day, or at any moment whatsoever of the twenty-four hours, he would simply become established in “soul consciousness” and experience the higher worlds. The doorway did not open at a particular hour. It opened at a particular state.

So much spiritual knowledge began to arise about the invisible worlds above that when he shared it, people could not grasp it. From 1997, seekers began coming to his ashram at Chenpur in Ahmedabad. But when he spoke of the invisible creation at higher worlds, many would leave, dismissing it as baseless knowledge (hawai gyan), just like building castle in the air. Yet for Bapuji deeper spiritual know-how was automatically arising from within any time of day or night. It was emerging continuously, growing rapidly.

And where was it coming from? Bapuji's answer is the secret of every true Amrit Vela. He says: “I found my knowledge from within my own self. The more I went within, the more I lost myself within — the more the knowledge emerged”. No one outside had held the answers to his questions; the answers had been waiting inside all along, and the state of soul-consciousness was the door.

Notice what had quietly happened across these years. In time, the effort needed for the experience of soul-consciousness grew less and divine knowledge grew more. The seeker who once needed the silent hour before dawn now carried a dawn within him that never set. In Bapuji's own words: in the path of knowledge, every moment is Amrit Vela he has experienced this practically. The foundation was the morning; the fulfilment was the whole of time.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

*“Main jitna apne andar khone laga, tab mujhe gyan emerge hone laga.
Mujhe apna gyan apne andar se mila.”*

“The more I lost myself within, the more knowledge began to emerge. I found my knowledge from within my own self.”

CHAPTER NINE

First Spiritual Knowledge Then Comes Nectar Hour

Here we arrive at the teaching that gives this book its name — the last secret of Amrit Vela. Bapuji states it without any softening: knowledge is important; the hour, by itself, is not. Divine Spiritual Knowledge is the first subject. The Amrit Vela comes after.

Bapuji speaks from long observation, and he speaks with respect but with total honesty. From 1997, when he opened his ashram at Chenpur and began giving knowledge, many elderly, long-standing practitioners came to him — sincere souls from traditional “path of devotion” who had kept the Amrit Vela faithfully for twenty-five and thirty years. Their Amrit Vela, they said, was firm and unbreakable: they rose without fail in the sacred hour, sat down, and remembered the incorporeal Supreme in the Paramdham. Their faith was deep and their discipline was real. And yet, when Bapuji asked whether they had the direct experience of the soul consciousness (anubhuti of atma swaroop) — the answer, again and again, was no. We rise in the Amrit Vela and we sit in remembrance, they said, but the experience of the soul itself we do not have. Decades of the sacred hour had not, by themselves, produced realisation — and the knowledge Bapuji then shared, they could not grasp.

Why not? Bapuji’s answer is clear: because the higher spiritual knowledge—the knowledge beyond soul-consciousness—was missing. The foundation itself had not yet been understood. Without first realizing what lies beyond the soul, the deeper meaning of the scriptures remained incomplete

Think, he says, about how vast the behad world is, the limitless creation. Why were the stars made? Who made them? What are they? Approach both science and the Shastras with an open and enquiring mind. Engage in Vichar Sagar Manthan—the churning of the ocean of thought through deep spiritual knowledge and reflection. As this inner churning continues, the buddhi (intellect) gradually becomes upram—detached from worldly identification and elevated beyond its ordinary limitations. It is only when the intellect is refined and detached through true knowledge that the soul's direct experience begins to unfold. Knowledge comes first; experience follows. This is the very realization that sincere seekers, including those who rise during the early hours of Amrit Vela, have been searching for all along.

Bapuji also rejects the idea that his spiritual realisation came merely from waking up at dawn/ brahma muhurta. He explains that his mind was deeply inquisitive from childhood. He constantly questioned why the world was created, how vast it truly is, and why the stars exist. The Shastras spoke of anant koti brahmand—countless universes—and described the cycles of the four yugas, yet no one could answer the questions that troubled him. Rather than accepting incomplete explanations, he continued to contemplate and inquire relentlessly. It was this unceasing inner churning and his sincere search for truth, he says, that ultimately led him into the depths of spiritual knowledge.

Bapuji seals the teaching with the Gita, Shri Krishna declares that the spiritual knowledgeable souls are especially dear to him — dear beyond all. Shri Krishna—the Lord himself, confirms that he cannot be attained merely by jap(chanting), by tap(austerity), by dhyan (meditation), by yog (union/ communion) alone. Rise at three o'clock, rise at two, keep the Amrit Vela for a whole lifetime, for many births — great rishis have performed tapasya in the Himalayas for thousands of years, mastering even the passage out of the physical body into the subtle — and still, without knowledge, they do not recognise the Supreme. They worship the deity of one Brahmand as the Highest, or their own chosen form, and go no further. The hour disciplines the body. Only knowledge awakens the soul. This is the last secret, and everything that remains in this book flows from it.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“Gyan hoga toh har pal Amrit Vela hai. Gyaniyon ke liye har pal Amrit Vela hai. Pehla subject hai gyan — baad mein Amrit Vela.”

“Where there is knowledge, every moment is Amrit Vela. For the knowers, every moment is Amrit Vela. The first subject is knowledge — the hour comes after.”

CHAPTER TEN

For Those Who Cannot Rise At Dawn

And now Bapuji turns, with great kindness, to the souls the scriptures rarely address: the ones who simply cannot rise before dawn. People do jobs. People run businesses. People come home exhausted and cannot lift themselves out of bed at three o'clock. Is the nectar closed to them? Bapuji's answer is a door thrown wide open: no.

His instruction is beautifully simple. Whenever you wake — whenever that is — experience “soul consciousness” in that very moment. Let your first awareness of the day be ‘I am a soul.’ And at night, while going to sleep, fall asleep in “soul consciousness” (atma swaroop), resting intellect in Paramdham, the supreme abode. Bapuji reminds us that he has taught many different methods of yog for exactly this reason. Keep churning knowledge (gyan) and union with almighty (yog) together — gyan and yog and the Amrit Vela will remain with you always.

He goes even further, into the middle of the busy day. If at any time at all one listens to the videos on spiritual knowledge shared by bapuji and connect in union with Almighty while listening, Bapuji says the experience will be even better than the traditional Amrit Vela. Listen to knowledge and, while listening, become established in the very form of that knowledge; listening, slip into yog. Then whether you listen at dawn or at noon, the nectar is falling on you.

For those who can rise early, of course, the early hour remains a genuine treasure — especially for those on the path of devotion and for newcomers, because the power of silence is greater then, and the experience of soul-consciousness can come more quickly. Bapuji's practical advice is gentle: if you cannot rise at three, rise at four and practise yog from four to five. If not four, then take a smaller Amrit Vela from half past four to half past five. Something is far better than nothing, and his own firm foundation, he freely says, was laid in exactly those pre-dawn sittings.

But he is equally honest about the highest stage — the stage in which the Amrit Vela never ends at all. That stage is not free. It demands consistent and deep spiritual pursuit (purushaarth). One must keep a fine balance of the worldly and divine; one must let go of many people; one must loosen the grip body consciousness; one must change one's very way of thinking. It takes tremendous work, he says — without this, the stage is not built. The door is open to everyone; the walking must still be done. What that unending Amrit Vela is, the next chapters now reveal.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“कभी भी आप जब भी उठो, आत्म स्वरूप का अनुभव करो। रात को सोते वक्त भी आत्म स्वरूप में सो जाओ — बुद्धि परमधाम में रखो।”

“Kabhi bhi aap jab bhi utho, atma swaroop ka anubhav karo. Raat ko sote waqt bhi atma swaroop mein so jaao — buddhi Paramdham mein rakho.”

“Whenever you wake, experience yourself as a soul. Even while falling asleep at night, sleep in soul-consciousness — keep the intellect resting in the supreme abode.”

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Connection Between Soul Power And Knowledge

There is a popular belief about the early hour that Bapuji examines with complete frankness. Many people say: simply wake up during Amrit Vela, sit down, and one will directly connect with the universe; cosmic power will flow into you automatically. Bapuji clarifies and says not to believe in such claims. Merely waking and sitting does not wire a soul into the supreme powerhouse. That, he says, is the language of the path of devotion; the path of knowledge speaks very differently.

To show why, Bapuji shares one of the deepest teaching, teaching of kala, the degrees of soul power. He has already revealed, he reminds us, that the incorporeal Supreme being (Nirakari Shiv) of this one solar system (Brahmand), residing in the Paramdham of this solar system, carries the soul power of one kala — one degree.

Now consider Bapuji's reasoning, which is remarkably practical. Souls that originate from the limitless creations (Behad)—require the limitless power of the behad ki kala, the limitless degrees of spiritual energy. If the soul is designed to receive limitless power, how can it ever be fully recharged by connecting to a source that possesses only a single kala? Bapuji explains that even if that one degree of power reaches the soul, it makes virtually no difference. Compared with the limitless spiritual power the soul truly needs, a single kala is insignificant. Just as a tiny power source cannot recharge a battery built for an immense capacity, a limited source cannot replenish the spiritual battery of a behad soul.

Therefore the behad souls must join their connection to the powerhouse of the behad ki kala — the limitless powerhouse itself. And to find that powerhouse, what is needed? Limitless spiritual Knowledge. This, Bapuji says, is exactly why spiritual knowledge is the first subject. Yog means connection — but knowledge is what tells the soul where to connect. He points to the ever-deepening ladder of his own revelation — the knowledge of Shiv, then of Maha Shiv, then of Param Maha Shiv — each depth opening a higher source than the one before.

See now how the whole teaching locks together. The early hour gives silence; silence helps soul-consciousness; but only knowledge aims the connection at the true powerhouse, and only that connection charges the battery of the soul with limitless power. An Amrit Vela without knowledge is a beautiful empty socket. An Amrit Vela with knowledge is the soul plugged into the infinite — at three in the morning, or at three in the afternoon.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“बेहद की आत्माओं को बेहद की कला की पावर हाउस से कनेक्शन जोड़ना है। ये ज्ञान चाहिए, ज्ञान — इसलिए पहला सब्जेक्ट है ज्ञान।”

“Behad ki atmaaon ko behad ki kala ki powerhouse se connection jodna hai. Ye gyan chahiye, gyan — isiliye pehla subject hai gyan.”

“The limitless souls must join their connection to the powerhouse of the limitless degrees. For this, knowledge is needed — knowledge. That is why the first subject is knowledge.”

CHAPTER TWELVE

The 24-Hour Amrit Vela — Every Moment Nectar

All the rivers of this book now flow into one ocean. The scriptures fixed the hour before dawn. Bapuji honoured that hour, lived it for years, and then walked through it into something the clock cannot hold: the twenty-four-hour Amrit Vela.

His declaration is complete and unqualified. When knowledge comes, he says — whether anyone accepts it or not, with right spiritual knowledge all twenty-four hours are Amrit Vela. In the path of knowledge, every moment is the hour of nectar. He experienced it in the morning stillness and he experienced it in the blazing afternoon; he experienced it in the tribunal and in the traffic; he experienced it exploring the upper worlds at midnight. After coming onto the path of knowledge, he says simply, Amrit Vela has remained twenty-four hours.

Bapuji explains how this stage quietly builds. As knowledge went on increasing within him, the effort needed for the experience of soul-consciousness went on decreasing, deep spiritual pursuit (purushaarth) grew less, — until the state that once had to be earned each dawn simply remained, all day and all night. And he honours the ladder he climbed: the first foundation of it all, he says openly, was the Amrit Vela itself — those years of soul-conscious sittings from three to five. The morning hour built the base; knowledge raised upon it a dawn that never sets.

He also marks, gently and clearly, where the paths divide. For the path of devotion, the fixed sacred hour is right and good — it is a true help for the devotee, and Bapuji does not take it away from anyone. But for seekers in the path of knowledge, he says, the Divine Hour (Amrit Vela) for spiritual awakened knowledgeable souls, is every moment. The hour is a rule for the body; the nectar is a state of the soul — and a state, once established through knowledge, does not consult the clock.

This, then, is the last secret of Divine Hour (Amrit Vela), spoken now in full. The hour before dawn is the training ground. Knowledge is the nectar. Soul-consciousness is the cup. And the awakened soul is the one for whom the whole of time has quietly turned into the hour of nectar.

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“Gyan aayega toh — koi maane ya na maane — 24 hours Amrit Vela hai. Gyan marg mein har pal Amrit Vela hota hai. Maine practical mein anubhav kiya hai.”

“When knowledge comes — whether anyone accepts it or not — all twenty-four hours are Amrit Vela. In the path of knowledge, every moment is the hour of nectar. I have experienced this practically.”

Churning Out the Nectar —

The Inner Samudra Manthan

How is the nectar actually churned out of a human life? In the live class, Shri Anant Patel answers through the most famous churning of nectar — divine story ever told—the Samudra Manthan, the churning of the ocean — and shows that it is, in truth, a precise map of the seeker’s inner journey to the elixir.

the Ocean of Milk (Ksheer Sagar) is not a physical ocean but the unfathomable ocean of the Sadguru’s spiritual knowledge. It is immeasurably deep, while the teachings of Vedanta are like waves that arise upon its surface, bringing the wisdom of the spoken word within the seeker’s understanding. When a soul sits before this boundless ocean and experiences its true atma swaroop (self-realised state), an inexhaustible joy begins to arise from within. This is why the previous chapter identified the sanidhya (presence) of the knower as one of the four forms of Amrit Vela. Simply sitting in the presence of such boundless knowledge is itself the true hour of Amrit.

Now comes the real churning. The ancient story of the churning of the Ocean of Milk is presented as an inner spiritual process rather than a historical event. Let your faith (vishwas) be as firm and unmoving as Mount Mandarachal, which symbolises the churning rod fixed at the centre. Let your detachment (vairagya) become Vasuki, the serpent that serves as the churning rope, allowing the process to continue without attachment to worldly desires. Within every person, the deva (higher, virtuous tendencies) and the danava (lower, ego-driven tendencies) both exist in the mind. Instead of allowing either side to dominate, hold them in perfect balance. When the mind becomes steady, free from inner conflict and agitation, begin the real churning through deep contemplation and self-inquiry. From this inner churning, spiritual wisdom gradually emerges, just as nectar arose from the churning of the cosmic ocean in the ancient allegory

What emerges first from this inner churning is not Amrit, but poison. The initial stirring of spiritual practice brings negativity (Halabal) to the surface—the accumulated viksheps (mental disturbances), attachments, fears, ego, and other impurities that have long remained hidden within. As spiritual power awakens, these inner impurities naturally arise to be confronted and purified.

At this stage, the seeker must become like Shiva known as, Neelkanth. With vivek (discernment) and the soul's awakened awareness, one must neither suppress these tendencies nor allow them to dominate. Instead, they are held with wisdom, just as Shiva held the poison in his throat, preventing it from spreading. The impurities are witnessed, contained, and transformed so that they neither poison one's own life nor affect others.

If the seeker continues this inner churning with patience and perseverance, the real treasure gradually appears. Slowly, the Amrit Kalash—the vessel filled with Brahm Ras, the bliss of divine knowledge—emerges from the depths of consciousness. This nectar is desired equally by both the deva (higher tendencies) and the danava (lower tendencies), for every part of the mind ultimately seeks fulfilment.

Then the symbolism of Mohini unfolds within. Mohini represents the transformation of one's vritti—the current of the mind. The very tendencies that were once drawn towards the ego, desires, and the body gradually change their direction and assume the Narayan Swaroop, becoming instruments of the Divine. As this transformation deepens, deh-buddhi—the identification with the physical body—quietly dissolves. The mind, once restless and divided, comes to rest in perfect contentment, serene and undisturbed, like Narayan reclining upon the tranquil Ksheer Sagar, the Ocean of Milk.

But the class is equally honest about the labour, and this is where the churning meets the clock. Such experience cannot simply be handed over in words; one must practise for oneself. Do somewhere near a thousand, two thousand hours of tapasya, Shri Anant Patel says, and then some real attainment can begin to come in life. Those who have not given even a thousand hours in a whole lifetime — what will they attain? People carry a world of questions within, yet cannot sit for one hour with closed eyes. Knowledge joins our yog and gives us peace — but effort must be made, practically, to rein in the mind. And where are those thousand hours most easily gathered? Hour by silent hour, in the Amrit Vela — which is exactly why the sacred hour and the churning belong together.

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Vishwas roopi Mandarachal parvat aur vairagya roopi Vasuki se ksbeer sagar ka manthan karo. Pebhle vikshep roopi halahal niklega — vivek roopi Neelkanth use dharan karega — aur dheere-dheere Brahm ras se bhara amrit kalash bahar aayega.”

“Churn the ocean of milk with faith as the Mandarachal mountain and detachment as the serpent Vasuki. First the poison of agitation will rise — the Neelkanth of discernment will hold it — and slowly the vessel of nectar, filled with the taste of Brahm, will emerge.”

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

The Final Practice — Keeping the Nectar Flowing

Who, in the end, truly drinks the amrit? The soul that is awakened by deepest spiritual knowledge — that attains atma gyan and comes to the direct experience of the Supreme — that soul alone drinks the nectar. And for the one who drinks the nectar, every moment is Amrit Vela. For the divine souls, Amrit Vela is twenty-four hours, three hundred and sixty-five days, into infinity. When the soul moves toward self-knowledge and recognises its own Creator, its real Amrit Vela begins — and it does not end.

Then comes a warning of great practical beauty: the nectar must flow continuously. Look, says Shri Anant Patel — amrit is needed continuously; it is not that you sipped once and became immortal forever. Knowledge is the Elixir/ Nectar — and every single day the soul needs something new to hear, to learn, to understand. This is no mere idea but a lived rhythm: since the twenty-fifth of March 2020, the live classes of Gyan Yog have run night after night — four years of unbroken practice at the time of this class — an evening Amrit Vela in which thousands of souls receive fresh nectar daily. The nectar hour must become the nectar life.

And so, the final practice — the very words with which Shri Anant Patel concludes with which is also Bapuji's divine message to all, sit for half an hour in your own home in self-directed yog. Spread supreme peace in the world — not for your own sake, but for all the souls of the world, for all living beings. Let everyone together make one single solemn resolve(sankalp) : Vishwa mein Param Shanti ho rahi hai — supreme peace is spreading in the world. Keep the chants of Paramshanti flowing in your home and across the whole world. Intake spiritual knowledge daily, for the nectar must flow fresh. Remain in soul-consciousness (atma swaroop) through your work, and even the crossroads at noon will become your temple. Churn the ocean within, and pour your peace out upon the world. Then the last secret of Amrit Vela will no longer be a teaching you have read. It will be the hour you live in — every hour, behad ki Param Maha Shanti.

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Sab milkar ek hi sankalp karein — Vishwa mein Param Shanti ho rahi hai. Apne liye nahi, vishwa ki tamaam atmaaon ke liye, sabhi jeevon ke liye.”

“Let all of us together make one single resolve — supreme peace is happening in the world. Not for ourselves, but for all the souls of the world, for every living being.”

BAPUJI INSIGHTS

The essential lines of this knowledge, gathered in Bapuji's own words.

Chapter Two · Brahma Muhurta — The Shower of Cosmic Nectar

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“धरती पर कॉस्मिक पावर का अमृत तीन से पाँच बरसता है — कॉस्मिक रेज़ अमृत बरसती हैं। इसलिए उसे अमृतवेला कहते हैं।”

“Dharti par cosmic power ka amrit teen se paanch barasta hai — cosmic rays amrit barasti hain. Isiliye usse Amrit Vela kehte hain.”

“Upon the Earth, from three to five, the nectar of cosmic power showers down — cosmic rays rain as nectar. That is why it is called Amrit Vela.”

Chapter Four · Amrit Vela in the Ved, the Shastras, the Gita and the Upanishads

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“गीता में कहा है — ज्ञानी तू आत्मा मुझे विशेष प्रिय है।”

“Gita mein kaha hai — gyani tu atma mujhe vishesh priya hai.”

“The Gita itself declares — the soul who knows Me through knowledge is supremely dear to Me.”

Chapter Six · Bapuji's Own Amrit Vela — Rising at Half Past Two

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“Gyan ki pipasa aur badhti gayi, aur badhti gayi. Mujhe gyan chahiye — bahut gyan chahiye. Mere prashnon ke jawab kisi ke paas nahi the.”

“The thirst for knowledge kept growing and growing. I needed knowledge — so much knowledge. No one had the answers to my questions.”

Chapter Seven · Amrit Vela at Two in the Afternoon — The Lawyer in the Traffic

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“जब भी मैं काम करता हूँ तो मैं आत्म स्वरूप में करता हूँ — तो मेरा हमेशा अमृत वेला रहा।”

“Jab bhi main kaam karta hoon toh main atma swaroop mein karta hoon — toh mera hamesha Amrit Vela raba.”

“Whenever I work, I work in soul-consciousness — and so, for me, it has always been Amrit Vela.”

Chapter Eight · The Night the Upper Worlds Opened

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“मैं जितना अपने अंदर खोने लगा, तब मुझे ज्ञान इमर्ज होने लगा। मुझे अपना ज्ञान अपने अंदर से मिला।”

“Main jitna apne andar khone laga, tab mujhe gyan emerge hone laga. Mujhe apna gyan apne andar se mila.”

“The more I lost myself within, the more knowledge began to emerge. I found my knowledge from within my own self.”

Chapter Nine · Gyan First — Why Knowledge Comes Before the Hour

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“ज्ञान होगा तो हर पल अमृतवेला है। ज्ञानियों के लिए हर पल अमृतवेला है। पहला सब्जेक्ट है ज्ञान — बाद में अमृतवेला।”

“Gyan hoga toh har pal Amrit Vela hai. Gyaniyon ke liye har pal Amrit Vela hai. Pehla subject hai gyan — baad mein Amrit Vela.”

“Where there is knowledge, every moment is Amrit Vela. For the knowers, every moment is Amrit Vela. The first subject is knowledge — the hour comes after.”

Chapter Ten · For Those Who Cannot Wake Early

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“कभी भी आप जब भी उठो, आत्म स्वरूप का अनुभव करो। रात को सोते वक्त भी आत्म स्वरूप में सो जाओ — बुद्धि परमधाम में रखो।”

“Kabhi bhi aap jab bhi utho, atma swaroop ka anubhav karo. Raat ko sote waqt bhi atma swaroop mein so jaao — buddhi Paramdham mein rakho.”

“Whenever you wake, experience yourself as a soul. Even while falling asleep at night, sleep in soul-consciousness — keep the intellect resting in the supreme abode.”

Chapter Eleven · The Battery of the Soul — One Kala and the Behad Powerhouse

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“बेहद की आत्माओं को बेहद की कला की पावर हाउस से कनेक्शन जोड़ना है। ये ज्ञान चाहिए, ज्ञान — इसलिए पहला सब्जेक्ट है ज्ञान।”

“Behad ki atmaon ko behad ki kala ki powerhouse se connection jodna hai. Ye gyan chahiye, gyan — isiliye pehla subject hai gyan.”

“The limitless souls must join their connection to the powerhouse of the limitless degrees. For this, knowledge is needed — knowledge. That is why the first subject is knowledge.”

Chapter Twelve · The 24-Hour Amrit Vela — Every Moment Nectar

BAPUJI INSIGHT

“Gyan aayega toh — koi maane ya na maane — 24 hours Amrit Vela hai. Gyan marg mein har pal Amrit Vela hota hai. Maine practical mein anubhav kiya hai.”

“When knowledge comes — whether anyone accepts it or not — all twenty-four hours are Amrit Vela. In the path of knowledge, every moment is the hour of nectar. I have experienced this practically.”

ANANT PATEL INSIGHTS

The essential lines of the live class, in Anant Patel's own words.

Chapter One · What Is Amrit Vela? — The Nectar and the Hour

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Jis samay hamein gyan ki prapti ho jaaye, wahi hai Amrit Vela. Jis samay hum us gyan ko praapt karke apne andar amarta ko mehsoos karein — woh hai Amrit Vela.”

“The moment in which we receive knowledge — that is Amrit Vela. The moment in which we take that knowledge within and feel our own immortality — that is Amrit Vela.”

Chapter Three · The Science of the Silent Morning — Three Bodies at Dawn

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Vishwa ka kalyan vicharon se hota hai — acche vibrations se, positive energy se, Param Maha Shanti ke vibrations se hota hai.”

“The welfare of the world happens through thoughts — through good vibrations, through positive energy, through the vibrations of supreme great peace.”

Chapter Five · The Four Amrit Velas — Time, Place, Company and the Sadguru

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Jisko Behad ka Param Gyan mil gaya, unka toh Behad ka Amrit Vela shuru ho gaya.”

“For the one who has received the limitless supreme knowledge, the limitless Amrit Vela has already begun.”

Chapter Thirteen · Churning Out the Nectar — The Inner Samudra Manthan

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Vishwas roopi Mandarachal parvat aur vairagya roopi Vasuki se ksbeer sagar ka manthan karo. Pebhle vikshep roopi halahal niklega — vivek roopi Neelkanth use dharan karega — aur dheere-dheere Brahm ras se bhara amrit kalash bahar aayega.”

“Churn the ocean of milk with faith as the Mandarachal mountain and detachment as the serpent Vasuki. First the poison of agitation will rise — the Neelkanth of discernment will hold it — and slowly the vessel of nectar, filled with the taste of Brahm, will emerge.”

Chapter Fourteen · The Final Practice — Keeping the Nectar Flowing

ANANT PATEL INSIGHT

“Sab milkar ek hi sankalp karein — Vishwa mein Param Shanti ho rahi hai. Apne liye nahi, vishwa ki tamaam atmaaon ke liye, sabhi jeevon ke liye.”

“Let all of us together make one single resolve — supreme peace is happening in the world. Not for ourselves, but for all the souls of the world, for every living being.”

GLOSSARY

A simple guide to the spiritual terms used in this book.

Aadi Shakti — The original, primordial divine feminine power that directs and runs the cosmos.

Aavaran — A covering; the subtle layers of element, record, and karma that form over the soul and hide its original freedom.

Ahankar — Ego; the false sense of “I am this body, this status.” It belongs to the elemental world, not the pure soul, and blocks supreme knowledge.

Akari — The subtle form of the soul, made of fine elements and not visible to the physical eye.

Alaukik—Divine, transcendental, or beyond the ordinary worldly realm.

Amrit — Nectar; the drink of immortality. In its deepest sense, the nectar of knowledge through which the soul tastes its own deathlessness.

Amrit Vela — The hour of nectar. Outwardly, the sacred hours before sunrise; inwardly, any moment in which the soul receives knowledge and experiences its immortality.

Anubhuti— Direct spiritual experience or realization.

Atma (Aatma) — The soul. The conscious, eternal being within everybody. Distinct from the body, the senses, and the mind. . It is the true self. The soul is the source of all life and awareness

Atma Gyan— Knowledge of the soul's true identity.

Atma swaroop — the state of dwelling in the soul's original nature. Is the state in which one fully identifies with the soul rather than the body, this is the foundation of spiritual practise/ knowledge. When a seeker attains Atma Swaroop, the soul's original light, peace, and power are fully activated. Brahm Swaroop is the cosmic expression of this same state: the soul dwelling in its full cosmic identity.

Aura (Ora) — The subtle field of light around a soul. Its brightness reflects the state of the soul and the mind.

Behad— Infinite-beyond all limits or without boundary. In Bapuji's knowledge, Behad refers to the infinite, boundless dimensions of creation. Key terms: Behad ki Atma (a limitless soul), Behad Gyan (infinite knowledge), Behad Seva (unlimited service), Behad ka Karma (imperishable action).

Bhajan— Devotional singing or hymns in praise of the Divine.

Bhakti Marg— The path of devotion and worship.

Bhogi—One absorbed in worldly pleasures.

Brahm — The supreme power that brings a creation into existence. Brahm is not a person. It is an infinite creative intelligence- the supreme power that gives rise to a creation

Brahm Gyan: Complete knowledge of the cosmos from its beginning to its end. Brahm Gyan is the complete knowledge of creation. how it was created, by whom, how it operates across its full cosmic time span, and how it dissolves. Supreme knowledge; the highest spiritual understanding of the ultimate reality.

Brahm Ras— The bliss or essence of divine knowledge.

Brahma Muhurta — The muhurta of Brahm; the still period before sunrise — taught by Bapuji as three to five in the morning — when the atmosphere is pure and cosmic power showers upon the Earth.

Brahma Vetta— A knower of Brahman.

Brahmand/ Bramand/Brahmands : Our solar system-one unit of creation. In Bapuji's knowledge, Brahmand refers specifically to a solar system-one universe created by Shiv.

There are countless such Brahmands inside a single galaxy. Our own solar system is our Brahmand. . Each Brahmand has a Kala measure.

Brahmapuri — A high subtle realm, the abode associated with Brahma, above the worlds of the sages.

Buddhi — Intelligence- the faculty of understanding. Buddhi is the intelligence or discerning faculty of the soul. When refined and oriented toward the eternal seed-form, allows the soul to read its own inner records of its journey and ascend. A Brahm Rishi's buddhi is encoded with the direct experience of multiple universes — not because they studied it, but because they lived it across immeasurable cosmic journeys. The higher the soul's purity, the clearer the buddhi.

Conscious mind — The mind that is awake and active when a person is fully alert.

Danava—Lower or ego-driven tendencies; symbolically, the inner demons.

Deva— Higher, virtuous, or divine tendencies.

Devta: A deity; a being existing in a three-element body in the higher worlds.

Gita — The Bhagavad Gita; the scripture from which the teaching “Manmanabhav” — give your mind to Me — is drawn.

Gyan Daan Mahadaan: The donation of knowledge as the greatest of all donations. The principle under which all of Bapuji's books and teachings are offered freely to humanity.

Gyan Daan: The act of sharing knowledge; considered the highest form of charity.

Gyan Sagar: The ocean of knowledge; a metaphor for the vast expanse of supreme spiritual wisdom.

Gyan: Knowledge; specifically, divine or transcendental knowledge.

Gyani Atma: The soul that has become the very embodiment of knowledge, no longer merely holding wisdom as belief but living from it directly. From this state, liberation from karma at every level becomes possible.

Had ki Atma / hadh ki atma / hudh ki Atma: Common souls of lower power, whose composition goes up to the element of ether or the supreme ether, without Param Prakash at their core. They are ordinary souls with limited spiritual power and awareness. Most souls on Earth are Had ki Atma Halahal — The poison that rose first in the churning of the ocean; inwardly, the impurities that surface from within when power begins to enter the soul.

Kala: Kala is a unit of measurement of power of the soul . Just like on earth we measure the electric power by “watt” that means it is the capacity of an electrical equipment, similarly in spirituality “kala” means the capacity of a creator or soul. In space there are many creators so they have different magnitude of power that we call power of different celestial degree or kala.

Kirtan — The loving singing and glorification of the Divine Name, form, virtues and leelas; the reversal of the dance of maya.

Kshir Sagar/ Ksheer Sagar: The ocean of milk in Vishnupuri where Vishnu rests. symbolically, the limitless ocean of the Sadguru's knowledge.

Laukik— Worldly or material.

Maha brahm — The greater formless being above Brahm, from whom Brahm receives the impulse to create.

Man (Mann) — The mind; the faculty of thought that lives within the soul and moves according to the causal record.

Mandarachal (Mandara Mountain) — The mountain used as the churning rod in Samudra Manthan; symbolically, unwavering faith.

Manthan — Churning. Vichar sagar manthan is the churning of the ocean of thought with knowledge, by which realisation emerges from within.

Mohini— The divine enchantress; symbolically, the transformed current of the mind.

Muhurta — A classical unit of time equal to forty-eight minutes; the day and night together contain thirty muhurtas.

Multiverse — The vast system of many universes; in this knowledge, a realm described as being of a hundred kala.

Narayan Swaroop — A divine state in which the mind becomes an instrument of the Divine.

Narayan — The Divine Sustainer; symbolically, the mind resting in perfect peace.

Neelkanth — "Blue-throated"; a title of Shiva who held the poison without letting it spread.

Nirakari — The formless state of the soul; the soul's original pure nature, in which the mind was not yet present.

Param maha brahm — The supreme great formless being, a higher source still in the chain of creation.

Paramanand — Supreme bliss; the immense bliss of the higher realms, far beyond ordinary happiness.

Paramdham — The supreme abode; the highest formless realm, the soul's true home.

Paramshanti — Supreme peace; the highest peace of the soul, and the vibration spread by an awakened soul. (Always written as one word.)

Purusharth: Sustained spiritual exertion; the prolonged inner effort by which the soul, having taken on form, gradually returns toward the formless state of its origin. Spiritual effort of self-enquiry and meditation carried out to understand the science of the soul.

Raj Rishi: A royal sage- a king who lives with the purity of a sage. A Raj Rishi holds a position of worldly power yet lives with the inner purity of a sage. King Janaka is the classic example. A Raj Rishi is honourable but different from a Brahm Rishi.

Sadguru — True Spiritual Master; the knower of Brahm whose close presence is itself an Amrit Vela, and whom even the Vedas cannot fathom.

Sakari — The gross form of the soul; the form taken in the mortal world of the five elements.

Samadhi : A state of deep meditative absorption in which the soul experiences its true Origin.

Samudra Manthan — The churning of the ocean of milk in the scriptures, from which poison rose first and the vessel of nectar rose at last; a precise map of the seeker's inner journey.

Sanidhya Sacred presence or close proximity to an enlightened master.

Sankalp / Sankalpa: A divine intention or resolution. Sankalp is not an ordinary wish — it is an intention charged with spiritual power. As the soul's aura grows through knowledge and Yog, the sankalp it offers for betterment of world gradually and surely come to fruition. When soul resolves something to do, this is called as affirmation or Sankalp. Mind power is the power of soul. So higher the kala, higher the power of affirmation.

Sanskar — The deep impressions and tendencies stored within the soul, upon which the intellect and mind rest.

Sarjan — Creation; the bringing forth of a cosmos through resolve.

Satsang — In the company of truth; the gathering of souls in remembrance and discussion of the Divine, spiritual knowledge, chanting, meditations, all aimed at raising ones' consciousness.

Shastra: This is a Hindu scripture where spiritual matters are discussed.

Shiv /Maha Shiv/ Param Maha Shiv: Shiv is the incorporeal creator of a solar system. He resides in the paramdham of a solar system which is the supreme abode of solar system. Maha shiv is the incorporeal creator of a galaxy, he resides in the supreme abode of galaxy. Param Maha shiv is the incorporeal creator of a Universe, he resides in the supreme abode of universe. All Paramdhaam are incorporeal worlds of creation whether it is at the level of solar system or galaxy or universe or any creations at higher dimensions of creation

Subconscious mind — The mind that becomes active in the half-awake, half-asleep state.

Sukshma jagat — The subtle world; the realm of subtle bodies and subtle creation, above the gross physical world.

Sushupti — Deep, dreamless sleep; the state from which the conscious mind emerges silent and fresh in the early morning.

Unconscious mind — The mind linked with total unconsciousness and the deepest sleep.

Vairagya: Detachment. living in the world while remaining inwardly free from excessive attachment and bondage. Freedom from worldly attachment. inner withdrawal from illusion (maya). A person may live in Grihastha Ashram and still possess true vairagya internally.

Vasuki The serpent used as the churning rope in Samudra Manthan; symbolically, detachment.

Vedanta: The culminating wisdom of the Vedas, concerned with the knowledge of the Self and Brahman.

Vela — Time; an hour or period. In Punjabi, vela is the everyday word for time itself.

Vichar sagar manthan — The churning of the ocean of thought; deep, sustained reflection upon knowledge until the intellect becomes detached and realisation dawns.

Vikarma — A wrong action whose record binds the soul; vikarmas are destroyed as power cleanses the causal body.

Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay: The spiritual school established under Bapuji's guidance, dedicated to the divine knowledge that transforms the world.

Vishwa Parivartan: World transformation; the grand mission of changing the mortal world into an immortal one.

Viveka — Discernment; the clear, wise judgement with which a seeker chooses thought, word, and deed.

Vritti : An inner tendency or mental disposition that shapes how one perceives the world.

Yog: Conscious connection between soul and supreme souls or with Almighty Authority through which power is drawn into the soul's being via knowledge and meditation. (Note: Bapuji corrects it as yog not yoga)

VIDEO SOURCES

Original discourses by Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel and Anant Patel

The teachings presented in this book have been drawn directly from two spoken sources: the discourse of Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel on Amrit Vela and the Brahma Muhurta, and the live class on Amrit Vela taken by Shri Anant Patel on 14 March 2024 in the nightly Gyan Yog series. Both are available freely on the official YouTube channel.

Readers are warmly encouraged to explore the original discourses for a deeper and more direct understanding. Hearing Bapuji's own voice carries a vibration that no written word can fully convey. The book and the videos are best received together — the book for quiet reflection, the videos for the living transmission. Search the channel for “Amrit Vela” to reach both source videos directly.
