About Bapuji

Bapuji — full name Bapuji Dashrathbhai Patel, also lovingly addressed as ‘Dadaji’ by the younger generation — was born in 1956 in the small village of Akhaj in the Mehsana district of Gujarat. His childhood, however, was spent in another village named Ambasan, also in the Mehsana district.

In the earlier phase of his life, he was a highly successful lawyer. Later, he devoted his life to realising the supreme spiritual truth and bringing this divine knowledge forward for the welfare of humanity. Today, this supreme knowledge serves as a guiding light for true seekers to realise their ultimate destiny. It is a blessing of the highest divinity that the present time is witnessing the rise of this supreme spiritual knowledge, guiding souls on earth to return to their original source.

Despite being raised in a very poor family and facing challenging circumstances, Bapuji had a deep desire to transform this sorrowful and suffering world into a better place. At the young age of six, he questioned God repeatedly, asking why God remained silent about the suffering of humanity. This intense longing to end human suffering eventually led him to attain the highest level of spirituality later in life.

Even as a child, Bapuji would spend hours alone in the fields, often neglecting his own comfort. Due to poverty, he would walk barefoot without shoes or sandals, frequently getting pricked by thorns. Many times, he would stay late in the fields and, on his way back home, encounter subtle world entities. These experiences sparked his interest in communicating with subtle world souls.

Bapuji was courageous from a young age, which helped him overcome many obstacles. Alongside his studies in chartered accountancy, he gave tuition classes to support himself financially. Later, he completed his Bachelor of Law degree and became a well-known lawyer in Ahmedabad.

In 1997, he established a spiritual institution called Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay in Chenpur, Ahmedabad, with the mission of transforming this mortal world, filled with suffering and disorder, into an eternal divine world of immortality. Smt. Sushma Tandon, lovingly known as Maa, worked alongside Bapuji in this grand divine mission.

To accomplish this mission, Bapuji worked tirelessly, dedicating all his resources to this divine purpose. During that time, he would deliver continuous spiritual discourses for up to eighteen hours without rest. In these discourses, he explained the highest dimensions of divine knowledge, which he realised through deep meditation and divine vision in a state of super consciousness. This knowledge goes beyond the imagination of the ordinary human mind.

Bapuji's teachings cover a vast range of topics, including the types of celestial creators across different dimensions, the creation of our solar system, galaxy and universe, and most importantly, the transcendental knowledge of the multiverse and realities beyond it. His knowledge is supremely profound and is intended for highly evolved seekers, referred to as behad (boundless) souls. According to Bapuji, these behad souls will play a key role in transforming this mortal world into an eternal divine realm.

At present, Bapuji remains deeply engaged in intense meditation and samadhi for long hours. He does not meet anyone, as he is continuously immersed in his transcendental mission in a superconscious state.

There is a world that runs alongside this one. It cannot be touched, it cannot be photographed, and yet it presses upon every life on this earth. Bapuji calls it the sukshma jagat — the subtle world. From within it, souls of every kind shape the actions, thoughts and fortunes of human beings, often without their knowing.

This book gathers what Bapuji has revealed about that world, around a single thesis: the invisible world runs the visible one. It is not a study of folklore (traditional believes). It is not a survey of opinions. It is a record of what one who has witnessed the subtle world directly, through divine vision, has chosen to tell us about its laws — about its beings and their ranks, about the way they take command of the human body, about the events they set in motion in the visible world, and about how a soul may at last be set free from their grip.

The teaching is precise. The categories are exact. The numbers, the durations and the names are given as Bapuji has given them. No outside interpretation has been added. Where Bapuji uses a Sanskrit or Hindi term, the term has been kept and written here in italics, with a simple meaning drawn from his own usage and from the standard glossary of Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay.

The reader who is new to this knowledge need not be alarmed. The world Bapuji describes is not meant to frighten. It is meant to be understood clearly, so that no one need wander blindly through what is called the supernatural. Once the facts of the subtle world are properly understood, it can be transcended — and Bapuji shows the way.

That way, in his own words, is the path of atma swaroop (the soul settled in its own true nature) — to become established in the soul, to draw the param light (supreme divine light) into one's aura, and to let the vibrations of Param Shanti spread outward. Where these pure divine vibrations spread through the atmosphere, the bhoot, the pret and the pishach grow quiet. Where they prevail, the soul itself is liberated.

This book is offered to every sincere seeker, in the spirit of the mission of Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay — that each soul shall return at last to its original abode, the Paramdham (supreme abode).

CHAPTER ONE

The Law: The Invisible World Runs the Visible World

Behind the visible world there stands an invisible one. Bapuji calls it the sukshma jagat — the subtle world. Most people live their whole lives without once turning to look at it. Yet not a single hour of human life is free from its influence.

The teaching begins with the law on which everything else rests. Bapuji states it in a single line.

♦ सूक्ष्म जगत वाले ही स्थूल जगत को चलाते हैं।

Sukshma jagat waale hi sthool jagat ko chalate hain.

“Those of the subtle world run the gross world.”

— Bapuji Dasbrathbbhai Patel

This is not just a poetic image. As Bapuji explains, it is a law of nature. The mortal world — Mrityu Lok, this earth where birth and death take place — does not function on its own. Again and again, it is influenced and guided by beings who exist in the invisible realms beyond our physical world.

The devas in svarga lok (heaven), the gandharvas, kinnaras and yakshas in bhuvanloka (the realm just above earth), and lower down the bhoots, prets and pishachs near this earth — these are the beings whose intentions, whose vibrations, whose very presence shape what unfolds here.

The natural law of the heavier side

It is a law of nature, Bapuji says, that whichever side of the scale is heavier will run the world. At present the heavier side belongs to the tamo pradhan (heavy and ignorant) realm of bhoots and prets. They will keep running the world until the sato pradhan (pure) souls awaken.

It was not always so. In the satyug (age of truth), the world was sato pradhan. Its very atmosphere was light and pure, the population was small, and the bhoot-pret realm had no room to act. As the ages turned — through treta, the second age, through dvapar, the third, into kalyug, the age of darkness — the atmosphere itself grew heavy, and these beings multiplied beyond count.

Today, in his words, the atmosphere of the world is tamo pradhan. The eight hundred crore human beings on this planet are influenced by the bhoots and prets of the subtle world. This is the foundational fact from which the rest of the teaching unfolds.

♦ जब तक सतो प्रधान आत्माएँ नहीं जागतीं, तमो प्रधान वायुमंडल ही संसार को चलाएगा। यही प्रकृति का नियम है।

Jab tak sato pradhan atmayein nahi jaagti, tamo pradhan vayumandal hi sansaar ko chalayega. Yahi prakriti ka niyam hai.

“As long as the sato pradhan souls are not awake, the tamo pradhan atmosphere will run the world. This is the natural law.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbbhai Patel

Why this knowledge is given

It is for this reason that the laws of the subtle world are revealed here. The sincere seeker must understand the realm in which their own life unfolds. Without that understanding, every step of spiritual effort can be undone in a moment by negative forces the seeker never even sees.

With this understanding, the seeker becomes alert. There is one true protection, and the final chapter sets it out in full. It is the bond with the Behad ke Parampita (the Supreme Father of the boundless), the soul settled in its own true nature, and the steady outflow of Param Shanti vibrations. Everything in this book leads toward that one protection.

CHAPTER TWO

Beings of the Invisible World — How They Are Made

If the invisible world runs the visible, the seeker must know who its inhabitants are, and where they come from. Ordinary speech uses a few loose words — ghost, spirit, demon — and folds many different beings into a single blur. The actual law makes sharp distinctions. Each class has its own degree of power and its own way of acting on a human life.

Bhoot — the simplest class

A bhoot, Bapuji says, is the simplest of all. It carries little vasana (craving) and is of low desire. Bhoots dwell quietly in homes and jungles, and some sit in temples. Ordinarily they do not trouble anyone heavily. When a bhoot enters a person, it stays only on the outer covering of the sukshma sharir (subtle body).

Pret — the dangerous class

A pret carries a far stronger, overpowering craving. It enters more deeply than a bhoot and works far more strongly upon the person. A bhoot whose cravings grow and sharpen over time can itself be converted into a pret. The class is not fixed; it is decided by the force of the vasana within.

Pishach — the blood-drinking class

Above the pret stands the pishach, the blood-drinking being. When it enters a person it does not stop at the outer layers. It merges with the whole subtle body and takes control of the mind itself. The original mind of the soul is suppressed, and the mind of the pishach takes its place. From inside, it drinks the subtle energies of the person. This is what Bapuji means when he says a pishach drinks blood — it is the subtle force of the body that is consumed, not the ordinary fluid.

Chudail — the woman of intense vasana

Bapuji marks out a particular class of subtle female being. A woman who dies with a strong unfulfilled desire — a mother who dies at childbirth and remains bound to her child, or a woman who takes her own life in the agony of love — does not always pass on quietly. She becomes, in his expression, a chudail (dangerous female ghost). Her capacity to harm is great, and she may attach herself to others who fall into the same circumstances she could not fulfil.

Shaitan and brahm-rakshas

Above all of these Bapuji places the shaitan (devil). Even the pishach sits below it. The shaitan is, in his exact words, a brahm-rakshas — a being who holds the knowledge of brahm yet acts as a rakshas (demon). It is a being of high spiritual knowledge whose actions are wholly evil. It demands sacrifice, and drives the one it has entered to consume liquor, cigarettes and meat in impossible quantities. Once it has entered a body it is exceedingly hard to remove; it will not leave until it has consumed the soul itself.

A subtle being, then, is ranked by the negativity ingrained in the soul — from the simplest bhoot to the most harmful brahm-rakshas. But no soul is born any of these. Each such being is a soul that has fallen. The seeker must understand how.

How a soul falls to become such a being

A soul that begins in svarga lok falls from there and takes human birth on this earth. As a human being, that soul lives, acts and dies here. The crucial question is the state of the mind at the moment of death. There is an ancient law: ant mati so gati — as the final thought, so the destination.

If, at the time of death, the mind is full of vasana — cravings unfulfilled, longings still alive, attachments still gripping the heart — that vasana does not vanish when the body falls away. Craving is an imprint upon the soul, and it moves with the soul. To fulfil that craving, the soul becomes a bhoot. If the craving is heavier and more violent, a pret. If heavier still, a pishach. If the person lived a life of sin and violence, the soul falls further, into the lower realms, and becomes an asur (demon-soul).

Why does this happen? Because the soul has no knowledge of the true self. If, during human life, the soul had gained this knowledge and understood how to rise to higher realms, it would have followed the spiritual path and practices that lead upward, just as the great seekers and sages of ancient times did.

But it did none of this. The five vikaars held it tightly — kaam (lust), krodh (anger), lobh (greed), moh (attachment) and ahankar (ego). The same five that ruled the soul as a human being now rule it as a bhoot. The body has fallen away; the inner imprints upon the soul have not.

This descent belongs to no one tradition. The law applies to every soul, whatever path it has walked. Any soul that leaves the body still carrying craving remains bound by that craving, and the craving itself keeps it in the subtle realm. To break the cycle, the inner imprints — the sanskaar — must themselves be cleansed. No outer rite can take the place of that inner change.

Why these souls cannot rise

Once the soul has become a bhoot, it cannot rise. Bapuji is exact: a bhoot cannot climb more than one or two kilometres above the surface of the earth. Wherever it was born into this state — in a particular jungle, a particular village — there it remains for a very long time. It cannot reach the higher worlds. The descent is easy and almost automatic for the ignorant soul; the rise out of it is exceedingly hard, because the means of rising are unknown to the bhoot, and the very craving that pulled it down keeps it bound.

This is why the teaching itself is an act of mercy. The seeker who hears these laws while still in human birth can change the direction of the mind before death, and leave the body free of craving. That seeker does not become a bhoot. That seeker becomes free.

CHAPTER THREE

How the Invisible Beings Takes Control of the Human Body

The most direct way the invisible world runs the visible is by taking command of a human body from within. To understand it, the seeker must first grasp that the human body is not a single envelope. It has more than one body, and not all of them are visible.

The layers of the subtle body

Around the gross body of every person is the sukshma sharir, and around that is the aura. The sukshma sharir is not one single envelope; it is made of seven sub-layers, one inside the other, each finer than the one outside it. Each holds a record of the soul's journey. The first layer, on the surface, holds the present life. The second holds the life just before this one. As one moves inward, one moves backward through the lifetimes. Beyond the sukshma sharir lies the karan sharir (causal body), finer still, whose records run back over far greater spans of time.

It is into these layers that the subtle beings enter to feed their cravings. How deeply they go is not random. It matches exactly the kind of being they are.

Where each class settles

A bhoot enters only the first, outermost layer. From there it can be removed without great difficulty by taking the person into the positive atmosphere of a powerful temple. A pret enters the second layer; its grip is firmer, and it is not easily dislodged. A pishach enters the third and fourth layers, and finally the fifth, the innermost. Once it has reached this depth it has merged with the subtle body, and the mind of the person is no longer the mind of the original soul. It is the mind of the pishach.

Why the entry takes place

Why does a being enter a person at all? Because it has cravings it cannot satisfy without a body. So it presses itself into a body that resembles, in its tendencies, what it once was. A being craving liquor enters a body already given to liquor. A being craving violence enters a body inclined to violence. This is why the soul's own state matters so much. A subtle being cannot easily hold on to a soul whose aura is filled with the param light (supreme divine light). It can enter and hold only where its own nature finds a matching pattern.

Many wills in one body

A single body can hold many souls at once — small cells, each lodged in some part of the subtle structure. In one human body there are millions of cells, and each can be a lodging. Bapuji is unflinching about the numbers: in a single person, twenty, fifty, even one thousand bhoots can be lodged, each pressing its own cravings from its own quarter.

The result is grave. A human being who imagines they are a single person with their own free will may in fact be the meeting place of many wills, none of them their own. When a thousand bhoots are inside a person, what remains of that person's free will? The original wishes of the soul are erased, and the cravings of the entered beings take their place. The body acts as the assembly of those cravings demands.

Why only one removal is complete

A bhoot in the outer layer can be driven out by the atmosphere of a powerful temple. But a pret in the second layer will not yield to such measures, and a pishach in the deeper layers cannot be removed at all by any outer technique. Taking such a person to any number of temples, even the greatest places of pilgrimage, will not avail. The merging has gone too deep.

There remains only one path. The original soul must itself become powerful enough, and draw the param light into its aura. When the aura is full of that light, the entered being cannot remain; it is dissolved by the very atmosphere of the soul. This is the only complete removal, and the final chapter shows how it is done. Every other means is a temporary arrangement.

The mind is a doorway

This is why the seeker is asked to keep watch over their own thoughts. To dwell on thoughts of bhoots is to invite them. To watch endless videos about them is to draw them. The mind itself is a doorway. Each kind of thought attracts what it dwells upon. The whole direction of the mind, in this sense, is the seeker's armour — or the seeker's open door.

CHAPTER FOUR

The Invisible Forces Behind Sudden Death and Mental Disturbance

Some of the most frightening events in human life are spoken of in purely physical terms. The heart, it is said, has stopped. The mind, it is said, has broken. Bapuji asks us to look at these from another side. Often there is a subtle cause behind such events, and once it is named, much of what seemed a mystery becomes clear.

An important note for the reader: The perspective in this chapter is shared for contemplative and informational purposes only. It is not medical, psychological, or psychiatric advice, diagnosis, or treatment, and it is not a remedy or cure for any condition, including heart disease or mental illness. Nothing here should be construed as a magic remedy within the meaning of the Drugs and Magic Remedies (Objectionable Advertisements) Act, 1954. Any reader experiencing symptoms of heart distress, mental disturbance, or any health condition must consult qualified medical professionals immediately and follow their advice. Readers assume full and sole responsibility for any interpretation or action taken.

The sudden heart attack

A man eats his dinner, lies down to sleep, and does not wake. His heart, it is said, simply stopped. Bapuji asks the obvious question: how does a heart stop all at once, without any earlier sign? A heart that is unwell gives many warnings before it ceases. Some such sudden events, in his teaching, carry a subtle-realm dimension alongside their physical cause.

What happens, in his teaching, is this. The souls of the subtle world — twenty-five, fifty, one hundred, two hundred of them — gather and become one. As a single combined force, they pull the soul of the sleeping man, together with his subtle body, out of the body. When the soul is drawn out in this way, the heart at once stops. The body has not failed of itself; the soul has been taken from it. From the standpoint of the gross world, the man has died of natural causes. From the standpoint of the subtle world, he has been seized.

Bapuji is careful to add that not every stopping of the heart is of this kind. There are heart conditions of the body itself, warnings the body gives, illnesses that run their own course. But in certain sudden cases — the stopping in sleep, the stopping without warning — a subtle-realm dimension works alongside the physical cause.

The mental hospitals

The same teaching extends to mental disturbance. Those whom the world calls mad are, in his vision, not only suffering from a defect of brain chemistry. Alongside the medical condition, the subtle bodies of many such patients have been overrun by influences from the subtle realm. The beings that have entered have merged with the inner layers, and from there they further disturb the mind.

Outer treatment can manage only the surface. While the body is restrained or sedated, the entered being may fall silent for a time, and those around the patient say it has gone. In truth, it has often only grown quiet in the subtle layer. When the conditions return, it may become active again. Medical care addresses the physical and chemical side; the subtle side must be addressed by the soul-work Bapuji teaches.

Possession in everyday life

This explains much that seems inexplicable in ordinary lives. A sudden change of conduct — a sudden craving for liquor where there was none, a sudden violence in a gentle nature — is a sign of the entry of a being from the subtle realm. One can recognise it by the conduct alone. The behaviour becomes saturated with cravings that did not belong to the original soul. The being demands: give me liquor, give me this food, give me that. The original soul does not speak in such tones.

The reach into public life

Even those at the very top of public life are not exempt. There have been, in history, people in positions of authority whose own souls had effectively weakened, while other souls entered them and acted through their bodies. Bapuji draws a parallel with the ancient principle of parakaya-pravesha, by which a highly evolved being is said to be able to enter another's body for a time and afterwards withdraw. If such a being can do this, then far more easily can the bhoots and prets. Any soul weakened in its own nature may in this way be overlaid by other beings, and those beings then express themselves through that body.

These teachings are sober. They are not given to alarm the reader, but to reveal the full depth of what surrounds human life. The body that suddenly fails, the mind that suddenly breaks, the powerful figure who suddenly turns — these are not random events. They have causes, and the causes lie in a layer of reality most never look at. To know this is not to fall into fear. It is to be released from a kind of helplessness, for once the cause is known, it can be addressed.

CHAPTER FIVE

The Invisible Forces Influence Addiction, Vice and Conflict

The invisible world does not run only single bodies. It runs whole currents of human affairs — addiction, conflict, the great tides of vice across the ages. And there is a teaching here that may surprise the reader: bhoots are not all the same in nature, even among themselves. They differ by the inner sanskaar of the soul.

The two kinds of bhoots

The bhoot of refined sanskaar, Bapuji says, is timid — very timid. Why? Because it still carries within it an awareness of the law of karma. The fear of the consequences of action is alive in it, and it is held back by that fear. The bhoot of degraded sanskaar, in which the inner law of karma has been forgotten, is not so restrained. Such beings are dangerous.

The subtle war behind human conflict

Wherever, in the long history of this world, acts of great destruction have taken place, those acts were not the work of human beings acting alone. Beings of like sanskaar stood with them, pressing upon them from within, while the more refined ones withdrew in fear. This principle is stated about the nature of souls and the alignment of their cravings. It is not a comment on any community, nation, faith, or period of history. Wherever repeated cycles of destruction have unfolded, the alignment of the subtle realm with the violence of the human will has played its part.

Bapuji tells these things not to inflame anyone, but so that the seeker understands what is actually unfolding behind the visible movements of the world. The conflicts of the human world are not only conflicts between human beings. They are also conflicts between the subtle beings of different orientations, working through the bodies of their respective peoples. To see only the surface is to misunderstand the cause. The teaching points to the law of the soul, and makes no charge against any community, religion, region, or organisation, all of which are spoken of with full respect.

The counter-force now descending

And yet a change is now under way. The refined beings, Bapuji says, are descending from the high subtle layers above the Himalayas. Above the snowline, in great spheres of subtle power, countless souls have long laboured in tapasya (spiritual austerity), and now the order has been given for many to descend. Their task is to dissolve the cravings of the degraded beings wherever such cravings are found, and to assist in their liberation. Wherever a degraded being is lodged, a refined one enters that subtle layer and draws away the craving that binds it, or gathers such beings into a sphere of power and grants them mukti (liberation). The cleansing of the subtle realm has already begun.

Why addiction spreads so fast

The same law explains the worldwide growth of intoxicants. Why, Bapuji asks, are drugs and addictive substances spreading so far and so fast in this age? The answer is the work of bhoots inside human bodies. The bhoot, having no gross body of its own, must use a body to drink, to smoke, to consume. The widespread use of intoxicants is, in large measure, a great activity of subtle beings in disguise. Twenty-five, fifty, one hundred of them can enter a single user and press their cravings upon that one body.

The seeker is therefore asked to look at the surface conflicts and cravings of the world with another set of eyes. What is fought and craved on the surface is, very often, the visible expression of an alignment in the subtle layer. The change now under way is unfolding in that subtle layer first; the visible events of the years to come will be its natural outcome. The teaching looks always to the inner change of the soul, never to the displacement of any community or institution in the outer world.

CHAPTER SIX

The Tantric Trade: Charms, Sacrifice and the Bhoot Exchange

There is a darker face of the subtle world, and Bapuji does not shrink from describing it. Around the bhoots and prets there has grown a whole trade — charms, rituals, sacrifice, the reading of fortunes. All of it takes place in the subtle dimension, and all of it, Bapuji warns, only moves the problem from one house to another. It never sets a soul free.

The charm is only a marker

Consider the small charms — the black thread, the ash, the marked needle. A tantrik (occult practitioner) gives a black thread to a person. A bhoot of the tantrik watches over that person. Another bhoot, seeing the thread, knows that this body is already under guard, and withdraws. The charm has driven nothing away by its own substance. It has merely signalled, within the network of bhoots, that this body is taken. This is the subtle politics behind what looks like mere superstition — and it is a very dangerous business.

The narrow tantric rituals

The same holds for certain narrow rituals in which bottles of liquor are offered. These are not the practice of mainstream worship, which is conducted in purity and devotion; they belong to a small and harmful sub-stream. Who drinks the liquor poured in such rites? It is drunk by the bhoots that the tantrik has drawn into the place. The tantrik seen consuming great quantities at once is not drinking alone; a hundred or two hundred bhoots have entered him, and the consumption is shared. This warns the seeker only against the narrow tantric streams, and casts no doubt on any place of worship or tradition of devotion.

The trade in soul energy

There is a far graver form of this trade, spoken of in many ancient warnings, in which the prize sought is not the body of a victim but the power of the soul. The energy of a soul whose life is cut short in such a rite is drawn into the one who performs it or the one to whom the offering is made. Such acts are wholly forbidden by the law of every land and condemned by the conscience of every sincere tradition. This book names their existence only so the seeker grasps the gravity of the warning and never comes near such practices — as participant, witness, or onlooker. To be even near such acts is to draw the gravest bondage upon one's own soul. Nothing in this teaching may, under any circumstance, be read as describing, endorsing, or instructing in any such rite. Those who take part are usually themselves already under the influence of beings of vice; the outer act is itself an offering to the being that inhabits the one who acts.

How fortunes are read

There is a softer side of the same system — the man who tells the future, the woman who sees back into past lives, the psychic who delivers messages from the dead. These too work within the network of bhoots. Every person's subtle body holds a record: the first layer holds this life, the next the life before, and so on. A being with the power to enter these layers can read what is written there and report it back. A being of greater power reads more deeply. Some can read into the karan sharir, where the records run for immense spans. Even much of what is to come is already inscribed in the deeper layers, drawn from the karmic accumulations of the soul, and a being of sufficient power can read it and speak it aloud through a medium. Whether the medium works in one region under one name or another region under another, the mechanism is the same.

Why this is no path to freedom

Bapuji makes it very clear that, for these reasons, the path of a tantrik is not the right path. To go to a tantrik for relief from a household haunting is to invite a fresh family of bhoots into one's own home. One tantrik's bhoots simply replace those that were driven out. The transfer is the whole transaction. There is no release — only an exchange of one occupation for another. The dance of bhoots from one home to another goes on unbroken.

There is, in this teaching, only one true resolution, and it does not pass the problem to another house. It is to make the soul itself powerful, so that its own light dissolves the cravings of every being that draws near. The seeker is asked, simply, not to take part in the trade. Do not visit the tantrik. Do not visit a grave or shrine out of mere curiosity, for there one takes on bonds. Do not place hope in charms. Place hope, instead, in the cultivation of one's own true nature — the path the final chapter now sets out.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Taking Back Control: The Awakened Soul Runs the New World

All that has been described of the subtle world points, in the end, to a single act. The seeker is to become free from every kind of subtle pull, and to help others to be freed. This is not an act of force, nor of ritual. It is the act of becoming what the soul originally was. Bapuji calls this becoming atma swaroop — the soul settled in its own true nature — and the means he places before the seeker is the path of the param light and the Param Shanti vibrations.

Why power alone is not the answer

It might be supposed that what is needed is a great quantity of power — power to overcome the bhoots, to drive away the prets, to dissolve the pishachs. Bapuji corrects this in a single stroke. Power alone does not work. Power needs a medium through which it can act, and that medium is the vibration of Param Shanti (supreme peace). Where the param light enters with the vibration of supreme peace, it acts. Where power enters without that vibration, it does not carry the same effect.

♦ केवल शक्ति काम नहीं करती। परम शांति के स्पंदनों के साथ वह शक्ति
जाएगी — तभी वह कार्य करेगी।

Keval shakti kaam nahi karti. Param Shanti ke spandano ke saath woh shakti jaayegi — tabhi woh kaarya karegi.

“Power alone does not work. With the vibrations of Param Shanti, that power will go forth — and only then will it act.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbbhai Patel

The aura sealed in light

The first protection Bapuji gives is the sealing of the aura. As the soul becomes established in its true nature, the aura is filled with the param light. When the aura is sealed in this way, no subtle being can penetrate it. A bhoot that comes near is not pushed away; it is dissolved by the very atmosphere of the soul. The craving that made it cannot survive in the presence of that light, and the being is granted what it had no other means of attaining: mukti, liberation. This is why the awakened soul becomes, by its mere existence, a worker of liberation. The beings that come to it are freed into the supreme light from which all souls were first created. The seeker has not driven them into another house; the seeker has set them free for ever.

The home as a lighthouse

Bapuji extends the practice outward. The home of the seeker is to be made a lighthouse, its atmosphere sealed in the same param light as the aura of the soul. Where the home is sealed in this way, the bhoots cannot enter; those that enter are dissolved. Wherever the seeker goes, the aura of light goes too. Wherever they linger, the place is touched. Wherever they speak, their words carry the vibration of supreme peace. Slowly, by this presence, the atmosphere of the world itself is lifted toward a higher dimension. This is the natural law of the transformation Bapuji proclaims.

Do not fear the bhoot-pret

From this follows a simple instruction. Do not fear the bhoot-pret. Once a seeker begins this spiritual practice, even in a small way, they enter a path where the bhoot-pret can no longer control them. To fear them is to give them a foothold. The seeker is asked simply to turn toward the Supreme Father. To remember the Supreme Father is to receive power.

♦ जैसा सोचोगे, वैसा ही पाओगे। भूतों को सोचोगे तो भूत आएंगे। उनके बदले परमपिता को याद करो — शक्ति आएगी।

Jaisa sochoge, waisa hi paoge. Bhooton ko sochoge to bhoot aayenge. Unke badle Parampita ko yaad karo — shakti aayegi.

“Whatever you think, that you will receive. Think of bhoots, and bhoots will come. In their place, remember the Supreme Father — and power will come to you.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbbhai Patel

The work of the behad ki atma

Bapuji speaks of the behad ki atma — the soul of limitless capacity. To these souls he assigns the special work of the present age, and the first task he names is the liberation of the bhoots and prets. Wherever such a soul moves, sits, or sends out its vibration, the bhoot-pret are released. As more and more such souls awaken, the atmosphere of the earth shifts. The heaviness of the kali yug at last begins to retreat, and the atmosphere of satyug begins to draw near.

♦ बेहद की आत्मा का पहला कार्य है — भूतों और प्रेतों को मुक्ति देना।

Behad ki atma ka pehla kaarya hai — bhooton aur preton ko mukti dena.

“The first work of the behad ki atma is to grant liberation to the bhoots and prets.”

— Bapuji Dashrathbbhai Patel

The greater scale of the work

The work reaches even beyond this earth. The soul of one or two kala (a unit of soul-power) has limited reach. The soul that has drawn down ten kala is sealed in a different aura. The soul that reaches for the powers of forty, fifty, a hundred kala — that lays the vibrations of two hundred kala into the multiverse — liberates not only the bhoots of this earth, but the low-power souls of bramands (solar systems), of maha bramands (galaxies), of param maha bramands (universes). So far does the work of an awakened seeker extend, when the vibration it carries is the vibration of supreme peace.

✦ आत्मा की शक्ति बढ़ाओ। परम प्रकाश को आत्मा के तेज-मंडल में भर लो।
वहाँ जो कमज़ोर आत्मा पास आएगी, वह विलीन होकर मुक्त हो जाएगी।

Atma ki shakti badhao. Param prakash ko atma ke tej-mandal mein bhar lo.

Wahan jo kamzor atma paas aayegi, woh vileen hokar mukt ho jaayegi.

“Increase the power of the soul. Bring the param light into the aura of the soul.
From there, even a weak soul that comes close will dissolve and be set free.”

— Bapuji Dasbrathbbhai Patel

The new way

Bapuji presents this as a new path — a fresh research, in his own words. The old way, recorded in the ancient scriptures, spoke of the dissolutions, in which everything would burn and be reduced to ashes. That way was performed once. But now there is another way — a way that does not require anything to be burned. It is the slow conversion of tattva (element) into param tattva (supreme element), and of param tattva into param light, by the steady action of the Param Shanti vibrations. It is a gentle process. It does not destroy; it transforms. Slowly, it returns each soul to the divine light from which it was originally created. It does not require the world to end. It only requires enough souls to awaken and continuously maintain the vibrations of supreme peace.

The closing call

This, then, is the call with which the teaching closes. Become atma swaroop. Take the power of the Supreme Father into the soul. Seal the aura in the param light. Make the home a lighthouse. Let the vibration of Param Shanti go forth without ceasing, day and night. Do not fear the bhoot-pret, and do not seek their removal through tantriks or charms. Liberate them by your own light, and let the heaviness of this earth grow lighter through your steady presence.

The whole law of the subtle world points to this single conclusion. The invisible world has controlled the visible world throughout this dark age. Now, through awakened souls, the visible world will finally be guided by divine light. This is the mission of the behad ki atma. This is the true meaning of Param Shanti.

Glossary

This glossary draws upon the standard cumulative master glossary of Vishwa Parivartak Ishwariya Vidhyalay. Only the terms used in this book are listed here. Definitions are kept brief and aligned with Bapuji's own usage.

Ahankar — This false sense of "I am this body" creates the feeling of being a separate individual. From this feeling, an individual mind is born. This is the Ego - the primary veil that blocks higher knowledge. Wherever even a trace of Ahankara remains, supreme knowledge cannot enter or take root in the soul.

Ant mati so gati — The final state of consciousness/ last thought at the time of death. It determines where the soul travels next.

Asur — A soul that has fallen into the lower realms through prolonged tamo pradhan tendencies of sin and violence.

Atma — The conscious, eternal being within everybody - distinct from the body, the senses, and the mind. It is the true self. The soul is the source of all life and all awareness.

Atma swaroop — The state of dwelling in the soul's original nature - identifying fully with the soul, not the body. This is the foundation of spiritual practise/ knowledge. When a seeker attains Atma Swaroop, the soul's original light, peace, and power are fully activated. Brahm Swaroop is the cosmic expression of this same state: the soul dwelling in its full cosmic identity.

Behad ke Parampita — He is the supreme master creator of this limitless vast creation. So he can be called as the Supreme Father or Almighty Authority. He is the ultimate source of power of all creations. Beyond Multiverse.

Behad ki atma — A cosmic soul of infinite power. Behad means beyond limits. Behad ki Atma are souls of immense power, constituted of supreme divine light. They have travelled across galaxies, universes, and vast dimensions of creation. They come to Earth with a specific mission: to transmit knowledge and guide humanity.

Bhoot — The simplest class of subtle being. Carries low vasana. Enters only the outermost layer of a person's sukshma sharir.

Bhuvarelok — The realm of the gandharvas, kinnaras and yakshas, just above this earth in the cosmic order.

Brahmand — Our solar system-one unit of creation. In Bapuji's knowledge, Brahmand refers specifically to a solar system-one universe created by Shiv. There are countless such Brahmands inside a single galaxy. Our own solar system is our Brahmand. . Each Brahmand has a Kala measure.

Brahm-rakshas — A being of high spiritual knowledge who acts as a rakshas. The same as a shaitan in Bapuji's teaching.

Chudail — A dangerous female bhoot — most often a soul that left the body in tragic circumstances, carrying the great force of an unfulfilled longing.

Deva / Devata — A deity; a being existing in a three-element body in the higher worlds of creation called as Heaven.

Dwapar — The third age in the four-age cycle of existence described in Hindu cosmology.

Gandharva, kinnara, yaksha — Beings of bhuvarelok, the realm just above this earth in the cosmic order.

Kaam — Lust; one of the five vikaars.

Kala — Kala is a unit of measurement of power of the soul . Just like on earth we measure the electric power by “watt” that means it is the capacity of an electrical equipment, similarly in spirituality “kala” means the capacity of a creator or soul. In space there are many creators so they have different magnitude of power that we call power of different celestial degree or kala.

Kali yug / Kalyug — The Iron Age; the fourth and final yuga of a “chaturyug”, lasting 432,000 years. The age of darkness; the final era in the four-age cycle (chaturyug) of cosmic time on earth. In a chaturyug first comes sat-yuga, then treta-yuga , then dwapar yuga and finally comes kali yuga. This chaturyug also repeats itself.

Karan sharir — A human being has many bodies even though we can see only physical body but there are subtle bodies inside this physical outline which holds the energy of soul and operates the physical body. So gross physical body is only a medium to carry out work of soul. Physical body gets power from subtle body which comprises of ether element , air element and fire element. Subtle body gets power from causal body which comprises of ether element only. This is also called karan sharir which is the store house of the details of karmic accounts of a soul.

Karma — Karma means action. But it is more than the act itself — it is the energetic imprint left behind by every act, whether done through thought, word, or the organs of action and perception. Every thought, every word, every bodily action leaves its trace. These traces bind the soul to repeated experience — pulling it back, again and again, into the cycle of cause and effect until the imprint is resolved.

Krodh — Anger; one of the five vikars disorders of mind.

Lobh — Greed; one of the five vikars, disorders of mind.

Maha Bramand — A Maha Brahmand is a galaxy — a vast cosmic structure within which billions of solar systems revolve in their own orbits. Our own Maha Brahmand is the Milky Way, and within it, our solar system finds its place — one among billions.

Moh — Attachment and emotional binding;; one of the five vikaars.

Mrityu lok — The mortal realm — the world of death. the soul, having descended through the higher realms, takes a body of all five elements. This Earth, this physical existence, is Mrityu Lok — the realm of death. Everything here is temporary. The purpose of life in Mrityu Lok is to use it as a crossing: to travel from Mrityu Lok to Amar Lok (the immortal realm, Paramdham). Understanding this transforms one's relationship to the world entirely.

Mukti — Freedom; liberation from the cycle of birth and death. Same as moksha. the stage when soul no longer exist in the creation. It dissolves in its creator.

Parakaya-pravesha — The yogic ability to enter a body other than one's own, exercised only by the highest yogis for sacred purpose.

Param Maha Bramand — A universe. The larger structure within which galaxies are contained.

Param Prakash — The Supreme Divine Light described in the Sanatan scriptures as the power of Brahma, or Brahma itself. It is pure, silent, and beyond all thoughts (Sankalp) and disturbance. As the highest and most powerful divine radiance, it is the source and foundation of all creation.

Param Shanti — The Supreme Peace — the original state of the soul when it unites with the Supreme Soul through Yog. In this state, the soul is completely free of desire, utterly silent, without a single affirmation stirring within it. Even the causal body of the soul dissolves, or becomes wholly inactive. Param Shanti is not merely the absence of noise or conflict. It is something far deeper: the soul's original state, established firmly in its pure, divine form of light, in constant remembrance of the Supreme Father. This is why every pure and powerful soul ultimately seeks Param Shanti — it is not a state to be attained from outside, but a return to what the soul already, originally is.

Param tattva — A Param Tattva is a finer, purer, and more powerful form of a Tattva (element). It possesses far greater energy and creative power to transform and manifest the soul's affirmations. It is the fundamental substance of the higher realms of creation. Just as the nucleus is finer and more powerful than an atom, Param Tattva is finer and far more energetic than a Tattva. The three Param Tattvas are Param Akash, Param Vayu, and Param Agni.

Pishach — A subtle being of intense vasana that consumes the subtle energies of a person. Enters the deepest layers of the sukshma sharir and merges with the whole subtle body.

Pret — A subtle being of overpowering vasana. Enters the second layer of the sukshma sharir and is far harder to remove than a bhoot.

Rakshas — A demon; a being whose actions are wholly given to harm.

Sanskaar — Deep inner impressions or tendencies carried by the soul across lifetimes. In the pure Nirakari stage there are no Sanskars; they accumulate as the soul takes on form and acts within the realms of creation. This is character of soul which is recorded in its causal body. The mind of a soul works according to its sanskar.

Sato pradhan — Predominantly pure; the quality of soul and atmosphere in the satyug.

Satyug — The first and most elevated of the four Yugas (Chaturyuga), known as the Golden Age. It is the age of complete Sattva, where souls and all creation exist in perfect purity, peace, and harmony, free from every trace of negativity.

Shaitan — A being above even the pishach in the order of dangerousness; the same as the brahm-rakshas.

Sukshma jagat — Same as above subtle world, invisible to the physical eye.

Sukshma sharir — The subtle body. It has seven layers, one inside the other, and each layer holds the record of one lifetime in the soul's journey.

Svarga lok — The Heavenly Realm—a higher dimension of creation within the fourteen realms of the universe. It lies above the physical world and is the third level above the Earth. Many higher realms exist beyond Swarg Lok. Like the Earth, it is not eternal but undergoes periodic dissolution and recreation as part of the cosmic cycle.

Tamo pradhan — Predominantly heavy, dark and ignorant; the quality of soul and atmosphere in the kalyug.

Tantrik — A practitioner who works with bhoots and prets to perform charms, exorcisms and predictions. In Bapuji's teaching, his remedies only exchange one set of bhoots for another and give no settled liberation.

Tapasya — Spiritual austerity. Is deep- intense spiritual austerity and discipline sustained across many lifetimes. Tapasya purifies the soul from disorders of mind known as Vishay Vikaar and prepares the intellect to receive knowledge that the ordinary mind cannot contain.

Tattva — Element. The fundamental building blocks of creation. The visible world is composed of five elements: earth, water, air, fire, and ether. Tattva in spiritual language is finer than element in the scientific sense. Water, earth, fire elements are visible but air and ether are invisible. Air can be felt by body but ether cannot be felt by physical body. Water, earth are heavier atoms representing heavier elements whereas air, fire and ether are very lighter atoms representing lighter elements.

Treta — The second of the four ages, following satyug.

Vasana — Deep-rooted desires and attachments that drive the soul's actions into negative dimension.

Vikaar — Vice within a soul. The five great vikaars are kaam, krodh, lobh, moh and ahankar.
